BILLION DOLLAR U. S. BILL IS CUT ONLY 44 MILLION

Dry Law Cash Swells Appropriations.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 24.—[Special.]—Despite their announced programs of economy in government expenditures, the administration and the Democratic leadership of the house together could cut only 44 million dollars out of the billion dollar appropriation bill for the treasury and postoffice departments, it was revealed today when the bill was reported in the house.

REAR ADMIRAL F. C. BILLARD.

The exact total to be appropriated for the fiscal year 1933 is $1,059,893,563. Of the $44,688,327 decrease from 1932, the bureau of the budget succeeded in chopping away about half; the remaining half was cut by the house appropriations subcommittee.

Through three items in the treasury department—for the coast guard, the bureau of industrial alcohol, and the customs service—prohibition helped swell the cost.

Liquor Smuggling Unchecked.

Though cut four millions below 1932, the coast guard will receive $28,882,220 during the next fiscal year.

In the testimony given by Rear Admiral F. C. Billard, coast guard commandant, before the subcommittee, he listed only 2,397 of the coast guard's 11,137 men as assigned to life saving districts. But smuggling of liquor has not been substantially checked in the last year, he said. The coast guard's activities, however, have driven out the little fellow and forced rum runners to incorporate.

"A noticeable development" his testimony went on, "has been the perfection of the organizations by the international smuggling syndicates. Smuggling is now carried on almost exclusively by large, highly organized international combines. The ships are navigated without lights and use smoke screens which sometimes contain poisonous gas.

Radio Helps Rum Runners.

"The development of high frequency radio transmission has provided the smuggling syndicates with the means of instantaneous secret communication, by secret code, between their ships at sea and their agents on shore. It permits change of plans at will. There are 171 foreign vessels engaged in rum running off our coasts."

During the first six months of the fiscal year 1932 the coast guard arrested 223 persons, seized 93 vessels and 31,000 cases of liquor.

The bureau of industrial alcohol will receive appropriations of $4,725,000, which is $89,420 less than the previous year.

The use of medicinal whisky is falling off, Dr. Doran, bureau head, testified, due to lower cost of the bootlegged product. Nevertheless, he showed that the number of physicians and dentists taking out permits is still growing.

Near Beer Loses Favor.

Near beer, said Dr. Doran, was declining in consumption. Brewers of it complained, he said, that illegal brewing was robbing them of trade.

The third bureau which touches prohibition enforcement, the customs service, will receive $22,700,000, or $1,283,000 less than in 1932.

The total annual appropriation for the treasury department for 1933, according to the bill, will amount to $364,311,988.

The total for the postoffice department will be $805,586,575. The gross postal deficit, the hearings revealed, will amount to approximately $208,000,000 during the present fiscal year.

FORTY HUNGRY PEASANTS KILLED FLEEING RUSSIA

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Feb. 24.—(AP)—Police reports from the border point of Olanesti today said that forty Russian peasants were shot dead by soviet border guards while trying to cross the frozen Dniester river.

Rumanian guards heard rifle fire during the night, they said, and on investigating found a band of sixty Russians trying to cross the ice.

They reported that twenty succeeded, but several were wounded and taken to Olanesti hospitals. The Rumanian guards quoted the wounded peasants as saying that hunger and privation had driven them to their desperate attempt.

Hunt Bigamist in Mystery of 2 Auto Deaths

Ralph Rootkowski, alias Root, 43 years old, was being sought by the police last night for nonsupport, bigamy, escaping from the federal prison at Leavenworth, Kas., and for questioning in connection with the deaths of his supposed wife and her 10 year old daughter in an automobile accident. A police message for the arrest of Rootkowski was broadcast following the dramatic story of a woman who said she was one of his many wives, at the inquest yesterday into the two deaths.

RALPH ROOTKOWSKI [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Mrs. Hazel Beckner Root, 45 years old, and her daughter, Hazel May, were fatally injured while riding with Rootkowski on Feb. 16. The car, which he was driving, skidded on the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul, and Pacific railroad viaduct at Central avenue and dropped twenty-five feet to the tracks below. Rootkowski was injured but left St. Anne's hospital two days later. He did not attend the funeral of Mrs. Root and the child, according to the police.

Another Mrs. Root Appears.

Mrs. Jane Root, 12556 Maple avenue, Blue Island, was a surprise witness at the inquest. She said she had married Rootkowski under the name of Root in Blue Island on March 18, 1929, and had never been divorced from him. She said she was seriously injured on June 6, 1929, while riding with her husband in Spencer, Ind. He leaped from the car as it was going over an embankment and escaped injury, she said.

On two other occasions she escaped death while living with her husband, Mrs. Root said. Once he left the gas on in their home and again he tripped her on the edge of a resort lake, she declared. She said she was insured for $1,000. She also said she had learned that her husband had served time at Joliet and Leavenworth prisons and had been married previously several times.

Sisters of Victim Testify.

Two other witnesses at the inquest were Mrs. Charlotte Horvath and Mrs. May S. Roede, both of Detroit, sisters of the dead woman. Mrs. Horvath said she was a witness at the wedding of Rootkowski and her sister in Toledo last Nov. 6.

She testified that she had visited Rootkowski while he was in the hospital following the accident and that he had talked constantly of a $1,700 insurance policy which her sister had taken out in favor of her daughter. Two days after the accident Mrs. Horvath said, she took Rootkowski from the hospital to the home of his brother, Ray Root, at 3910 Altgeld street. He has called her by telephone several times since then, she said.

Capt. Willard Malone of the Cragin police ordered an investigation after the inquest had been continued until March 15. He said Rootkowski has a police record dating from 1905, including charges of nonsupport, bigamy, and operating confidence games. Rootkowski was sentenced to Leavenworth prison in 1918 for violation of the Man... act, but escaped, Capt. Malone said.

NEGRO HAS GUN TROUBLE WITH HIS NEW RICHES

Raleigh, N. C., Feb. 24.—(AP)—John B. Ford, Raleigh Negro, who recently received approximately $9,000 in world war risk insurance, shot and probably fatally wounded another Negro here and then rode to police headquarters in his own automobile and gave himself up.

Ford said Tom Williams, the victim of the shooting, tried to rob him, but officers said evidence they obtained apparently indicated the shooting followed an argument between the two Negroes.

Ford had $350 in cash in his pockets when arrested. He said he had just drawn $1,000 from the bank to have a "little change."

A week ago Ford paid $25 and costs for shooting at another Negro under the pretext that a "rich man" must "protect his interests."

Ruth Judd to Die on May 11; Retrial Denied

Phoenix, Ariz., Feb. 24.—[Special.]—Winnie Ruth Judd tonight was sentenced to die on the gallows May 11 for the trunk slaying of Agnes Anne Le Roi.

Judge Howard C. Speakman passed sentence after overruling defense motions for a new trial, based on affidavits of bias and prejudice on the part of Juror Dan Kleinman, and erroneous instructions to the jury by the judge.

Will Appeal Conviction.

An appeal to the state Supreme court, mandatory under the law, and announced by Mrs. Judd's attorneys as in course of preparation, automatically will stay execution. No person has ever been hanged in Arizona in less than 15 months from the date of conviction.

Mrs. Judd made several attempts to tell the judge a rambling story and to charge an insufficiency in the state's proof, but he reminded her she had had ample opportunity during her three months in custody to talk.

Defiant at Sentence.

Finally, just before sentence was passed, she exclaimed, "Those women were not murdered."

Then she stood half defiantly at the counsel table to hear the death sentence passed.

She was taken from the Maricopa county jail here shortly before 8:30 tonight and driven in the automobile of Sheriff J. R. McFadden to the state penitentiary at Florence, 55 miles distant. With Mrs. Judd and the sheriff were a matron and two deputies.

At the prison Mrs. Judd was lodged in the women's quarters, rather than in a death cell. The only woman ever hanged in Arizona, Eva Dugan, spent but three hours in a cell in the death house. Mrs. Judd became convict No. 8,811.

Judge Speakman's decision was given today only after Defense Attorneys Herman Lewkowitz and Joseph Zaversack argued for four hours for a new trial.

Juror Denies Charges.

Controverting their principal plea, County Attorney Lloyd J. Andrews presented an affidavit by Kleinman, denying that in advance of the trial he had publicly made the observation, "Mrs. Judd ought to be hanged."

Beside Mrs. Judd when sentence was passed was Mrs. H. J. McKinnell, her mother, who had the place which was occupied throughout the trial by Dr. W. C. Judd, husband of the defendant, Dr. Judd today entered Whipple Barracks, U. S. Veterans' hospital, at Prescott.

The Rev. H. J. McKinnell, Mrs. Judd's father, also was in court.

A sensation, forecast for Mrs. Judd's court appearance, based on a confession letter published in California this morning, failed to materialize.

SCHOOL BOARD FORGETS PLAN TO CUT BUDGET

Approval Near for $90,000,000 Draft.

The county board completed its budget totaling $37,000,000, a slash of $5,000,000 from its figures of two weeks ago. It stood pat on dismissing 553 employes and reducing pay of others 15 per cent.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The school board indicated yesterday that it has forgotten about any attempt to trim $20,000,000 or $30,000,000 from its budget. The appropriations total $90,197,000. No one has predicted that the board will get enough cash to pay the expenditures authorized.

The expressions of the trustees at the meeting yesterday indicated that enough votes are ready to pass the budget as now framed. Trustee James A. Hemingway, chairman of its finance committee, made a formal motion to adopt it, but more than $3,000,000 in savings which the trustees had promised the D. F. Kelly tax warrant sales committee they would make were not shown in the budget. Consequently action was deferred for a week.

Savage Opposes Pay Cut.

Trustee Joseph Savage said that a reduction of $20,000,000 or $30,000,000 necessarily means a cut in teachers' salaries, and then said four times in a speech that he would not vote for a salary cut. The teachers' gallery applauded. Mrs. Helen Hefferan was given a hand when she asserted she would "never vote for a teachers' pay cut." Trustee John English made a like statement, and then added: "In all of the meeting and conferences with outsiders no one has advocated a salary reduction for the teachers, and I do not think that any suggestion of that kind will be presented to the board."

Trustee Robert Carr added that no one is willing to see the teachers' salaries cut, but he urged that action on the budget be delayed.

Wants Balanced Budget.

"Much good work has been done on the budget," he said, "but we have another month in which to improve it. It would be unsound and unwise to pass an unbalanced budget. The teachers are nervous, and I and you are nervous and worried. We have been advised we will not get anything like the money we now propose to appropriate. If we pass this budget, which I think is very foolish at present, we may cripple the educational facilities for several years to come."

"Dr. George Strayer [head of the Columbia university investigation of the Chicago schools] told us at the Union League club dinner that the cuts already made in the instructional side of the budget are too drastic and about the worst that have been made in the country," said Mrs. Hefferan.

Protests Additional Cut.

"The teachers have made the only sacrifice so far of all public employés. They have been cut about 10 per cent, and I have heard that another 10 per cent cut is contemplated. I protest against such a move. I am for the budget as it stands, except that I desire to cut the operating costs of the school buildings when Dr. Strayer makes his report later."

President Lewis E. Myers urged that all appropriations for sites be eliminated from the budget. He climaxed his speech with this declaration: "I will not vote for the budget with that item in. Real estate will be as cheap a year from now. Why tie up money in sites when we cannot build new schools on them?"

Tax Warrants Called Legal.

An opinion of Chapman & Cutler, law firm specializing in the legality of securities, informed the board that the tax anticipation warrants which the board proposes to issue against its educational fund are valid. This firm advised strongly against issuance of teachers' pay checks and then stamping them "no funds." The lawyers said that the tax warrants are a first lien on the taxes and must be paid before the teachers' pay checks. The board also proposes to issue tax warrants against its building and playground funds. The lawyers desire more time to pass upon the validity of these.

The school board decided yesterday to move May 1 from the Kelly building, Foreman building and Steuben building, where its offices are now scattered, to the Builders' building, La Salle street and Wacker drive.

The board will get a ten year lease at $2 a square foot for approximately 89,227 square feet. It is estimated that the board will save thereby $66,000 a year and have all of its departments in one structure.

JAPS ADVANCE IN FIERCEST FIGHTING OF WEEK'S BATTLE

SHANGHAI, Feb. 25 (Thursday). — (AP) — Japanese forces crushed the Chinese offensive late this afternoon northwest of Kiangwan and were sweeping forward in an encircling movement toward Tachang in the fiercest battle of nearly a week of fighting.

They claimed they had broken the Chinese first line defenses completely and that the Chinese troops were forced into a disorderly retreat marked by confusion and panic.

The village of Kiangwan still was held by the Chinese, but it virtually was surrounded. The Japanese artillery moved forward to two new positions during the afternoon and the infantry had long since left the locations it occupied in the morning.

TOKIO, Feb. 25 (Thursday).—(Special.)—According to advices from Shanghai today the Chinese were in general retreat and Lieut. Gen. Uyeda and his staff had crossed the Woosung-Shanghai railway near Kiangwan. The Japanese infantry forces were pursuing the Chinese.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 25 (Thursday) — Six ships believed to be troop transports tied up at the Japanese wharves in the international settlement during the night. Shops and homes in the Yangtzepoo section, through which the expected Japanese reinforcements must march, were rigorously combed in a search for Chinese snipers.

KING CRIME RULES U. S. WITH MILLION MEN, SAYS BRITON

New York, Feb. 24.—[Special.]—A criminal army of 1,000,000 persons is operating in the United States, and "25,000 gangsters alone have died by gun-fire since prohibition came in," the English-reading public has been told by Collinson Owen, an Englishman writing on crime in this country. Mr. Owen's book was published last year in England and will be brought out here shortly by Henry Holt with the title "King Crime."

The Sunday Times, London, is quoted on the book jacket as having reported that "'King Crime' will find an enduring place in the sociological literature of the twentieth century."

Of the "criminal army" Mr. Owen admits that "exact statistics are impossible to get," but asserts the figure of 1,000,000 "is not so fantastic as it first sounds, and it may be an understatement."

Prohibition brought about "a great flaring-up of criminality" in the United States, he believes, and "the ebb of the prohibition tide might even cause a situation far more desperate than its flow," for "you cannot throw some hundreds of thousands of well-armed and ruthless criminals out of profitable employment with impunity."

"The American churches and chapels, which so largely brought about prohibition," Mr. Owen declares, "find themselves on the horns of a terrible dilemma, or, rather they would be so finding themselves if they had any conscience in the matter. But that, so far, has not been conspicuous."

Robbers Slug Watchman But Fail to Open Safe

Three burglars slugged and bound Charles Schroeder, 52 years old, 3020 Indiana avenue, watchman, in the woodenware plant of his brother at 1345 West 21st street, late last night. After 15 minutes of unsuccessful labor in an attempted opening of the office safe the intruders departed empty handed.

PLANES SPILL GASOLINE AND FIRE VILLAGES

Bombs Ignite Cans of Explosives.

United States threatens Japan with abrogation of naval treaty if she continues to flout the nine power pact guaranteeing the territorial integrity of China.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 25 [Thursday].—(AP)—The heaviest fighting of the Shanghai conflict thus far was going on today northwest of Kiangwan, as far as the village of Miaohungchen, in a supreme effort of Japanese forces to break the Chinese defenses.

The Japanese threw all available men, guns, tanks and airplanes into the attack without waiting for their fresh soldiers to aid them in the push that has been turned back for the last five days.

The Japanese planes dropped cans of gasoline on Kiangwan and Miaohungchen, and many homes and other buildings were in flames. Bombs ignited the explosive.

The Chinese positions were blasted in a fierce attack of artillery and airplanes, but the assault gained the Japanese no appreciable advantage.

Chinese Hold Fast.

The mikado's soldiers sought to crash through under the barrage into the area where yesterday they poured down a terrific onslaught of giant aerial bombs.

But, although the Chinese had suffered from the air attack, they were still there, pouring a steady fire of rifle and machine gun bullets into the face of the attacking Japanese.

Japanese officers behind the lines claimed their men were pushing ahead, but there was no indication as to what the outcome might be.

The Japanese also laid down a terrific bombardment in the Chapei area of Shanghai before dawn broke. The shells started numerous fires and soon there was a tremendous conflagration which raged unchecked, lighting up the horizon north of the international settlement.

Warn Foreign Ships Away.

The Chinese today warned foreign shipping away from the Japanese military base on the Whangpoo—a step that was taken as notification that they were determined to stop with guns the Japanese effort to land two divisions of army reinforcements.

Some military observers expected that the Chinese would seize the offensive with a mass attack on the Japanese positions in Hongkew.

All foreign consuls were asked by the Chinese authorities to evacuate their nationals from the Hongkew district without delay. This request was accepted as another portent of an imminent drive to clear out the area before it was swarming with new Japanese troops.

United States consular and military officials said they would announce shortly a plan by which all Americans in the international settlement could be concentrated quickly in the event of an emergency. They said although they did not consider that the danger had yet increased considerably, they thought it best to take the proper precautions for a quick evacuation if it became necessary.

The Japanese flagship Idzumo, headquarters of Vice Admiral Kichisaburo Nomura, is moored alongside the Japanese consulate, which is in the Shanghai bund just above the point where Soochow creek runs into the Whangpoo. It is the center of the area in which the Chinese announced it would be dangerous for foreign ships to anchor. The consulate is less than two miles from strong Chinese gun positions in Chapei.

The German and British consulates, the closed Russian consulate, the Astor House hotel, the American Missions building, the Eastman Kodak building and the New York Times office are within two blocks of the Idzumo, and thus they are likely again to come within range of the Chinese shellfire.

JAPS BOMB ARSENAL

BY JOHN POWELL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Feb. 25.—[Thursday.] Two squadrons of Japanese planes visited the Lunghua district, about 5 miles south of the French concession of Shanghai yesterday afternoon. The first dropped five bombs, which destroyed a number of peasants' straw thatched homes adjoining a small Chinese aviation field. The second squadron of three planes dropped nine bombs near the railway station, damaging the platform.

The plans then flew over the Lunghua arsenal and dropped about six bombs. They missed the mark. Fears were expressed that should the Japanese blow up the arsenal Shanghai might be seriously endangered, since a big store of explosives is kept there.

This was the first Japanese action against the section of the Chinese city south of the foreign concessions and is contrary to Lieut. Gen. Uyeda's earlier declaration that the Japanese are concentrating their attention north of the foreign settlements.

Lone Gunner Still on Job.

[Copyright: 1932: By News Synd. Co., Inc.]

SHANGHAI, Feb. 25. [Thursday].—A lone Chinese gunner, sitting behind a sandbag barricade in an exposed spot of the Chapei sector a few yards from the American front defense lines, from where he is gleefully hurling shells at the Japanese, was still on the job at an early hour today. The American marines have christened him "Our Baby." Although he has been under intermittent shell fire for 72 hours, and the leathernecks are mystified as to how he is being fed, he takes part in every scrap.

From his isolated position it is highly unlikely that he can tell precisely what's afoot, but every time the other guns start he loads up and bangs away. When Japanese bombers appear overhead he tosses a gunnysack over his one-pounder and ducks to cover under his pile of sandbags.

Discover Second Lone Fighter.

The marines have discovered another single handed Chinese fighter, whom they have dubbed "Our Hero"—and since that somewhat fulsome nom de guerre comes from the marines, you may believe "Our Hero" is quite a guy. He's been holding his sandbag fort in the ruins of the North Station since Jan. 29 and he has not missed a single daylight battle yet.

His particular ambition apparently is to down a Japanese plane, for whenever they fly low he abandons interest in everything that's going on and cuts loose at the airmen.

The activities of a third lone Chinese warrior, a civilian, who has come to international attention, are not being so enthusiastically received. Every so often he bobs up on a rooftop across the bund from the Japanese consulate and takes potshots at the members of the municipal police, whose blue uniforms strikingly resemble those of the Japanese naval patrols.

Chinese Put Price on Japs.

The Japanese asserted yesterday that they had discovered papers in the home of a Chinese spy, one of which was a circular placing prices on the heads of high Japanese military and civil officials as an incentive to sniping by noncombatants.

Fifty thousand dollars was offered for the life of Lieut. Gen. Uyeda, Japanese commander in chief; $25,000 for any brigadier general; $15,000 for a regimental commander, and a like sum for any high government official, the Japanese authorities assert.

Japanese Admit "Blunders."

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

SHANGHAI, Feb. 24.—Inner official circles of the Japanese command here today reluctantly admitted that the Japanese had made a series of costly blunders in dealing with the Chinese situation. First, an inadequate naval force was despatched to Shanghai to "rescue the Japanese civilians" and it was beaten back in Chapei and threatened with disaster in the face of strong Chinese forces.

Then Lieut. Gen. Uyeda was sent with two army divisions to the rescue of the naval men. Now two more army divisions are coming to the rescue of Gen. Uyeda's force, which, foreign observers say, has put itself into a dangerous strategic situation.

The attack of the initial naval force and that of Gen. Uyeda were both based on a strategy presupposing an easy success. In both cases this theory has proved to have been based on colossal errors of judgment.

Chinese Morale High.

A visit to the Chinese lines between Tachang and Chenju revealed the splendid morale and genuine cheerfulness of the Chinese, greatly contrasting with the Japanese nervousness. That area is conspicuous for the vast number of large family grave mounds, hundreds of which have now become dugouts, while machine gun tanglements zig-zag across the country from grave to grave. These defenses are invisible from the air and difficult to observe on land except at close range.

This situation involves an amazing psychological development on the part of Chinese civilians, who have for ages long held the graves of their ancestors to be sacred soil, but now cheerfully witness them converted into defense dugouts which are formidable to the Japanese.

Italian Warship Damaged.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 24.—(AP)—Admiral Taylor, commander of the American Asiatic fleet, reported to the navy department today that the Italian cruiser Libia at Shanghai had been struck by a Chinese shell and its side pierced. No other details were given.

The admiral advised the department that he had urged the commanding officer of the Libia to use forebearance if the Chinese again struck his vessel. The Libia's commander informed Admiral Taylor he would return fire if struck again. Taylor suggested to him that such action would be in error unless there was evidence of intentional and sustained shelling by the Chinese. The British and French senior naval officers concurred in Taylor's suggestion.

Three Arrested After They Break Into S. Side Church

The Hyde Park police yesterday arrested Daniel Baker, 22 years old; his brother, James, 19 years old, of 5520 Drexel avenue, and John Harland, 29 years old, 624 South State street, soon after they broke into the First Unitarian church at 1176 East 57th street. The flashing of a burglar's light in the church led to the capture.

Given Year for Practicing Medicine Without License

Mrs. Olive Kendall Harvey, 42 years old, 401 South 17th avenue, Maywood, who was found guilty by a jury of practicing medicine without a license on Tuesday, was sentenced to one year in the county jail and fined $200 and costs by Municipal Judge Thomas A. Green yesterday.

TOKIO AGAIN PUTS CENSORSHIP OVER MILITARY MOVES

Sending of New Troops Veiled in Secrecy.

TOKIO, Feb. 24.—(AP)—Censorship was invoked again today to cloak the movement of Japanese reinforcements to the Shanghai front.

Only meager accounts of military preparations appeared in a few newspapers, the government apparently taking the position that by controlling the news it might be possible to disguise the seriousness with which the Shanghai situation is viewed.

Earlier in the month, when two army divisions were moved to Shanghai after several thousand bluejackets had failed in their attempt to drive the Chinese out of Chapei, a similar censorship was invoked.

May Replace Commander.

A few early editions of yesterday's evening papers printed brief reports of the cabinet decision to send more men to China. Those meager reports are about the only information most of the Japanese people have received.

Although the cabinet decided to double the army force in Shanghai—raising it from 25,800 to 50,000—no details of troop movements and dispositions have been published.

People Back Campaign.

For the most part the Japanese people continued to support the government's military decisions and to approve the operations in Manchuria and at Shanghai, for there is a growing realization of the risks involved in the campaign and it has produced a determination to see things through.

Japanese patriotism is a strong force, but nevertheless the people are watching anxiously the reaction abroad, especially as it concerns a possible economic blockade by foreign powers.

Public Is Bewildered.

Scant intimations reaching here of widespread censure of the Japanese course produce bewilderment in the public mind, and American correspondents are asked many times about the chances of the United States and Great Britain joining an economic blockade.

When this issue is discussed in careful newspaper editorials and in guarded private conversations with leading citizens it is almost unanimously emphasized that Japan would consider a blockade an act of war to be opposed by acts of war.

A foreign office spokesman, commenting on the Japanese reply to the latest note on the Sino-Japanese conflict from the league of nations council, said Japan believed the powers should agree to "a more realistic application" of international treaties regarding China.

Wants to "Save China."

Denying that the government planned to propose revision or abrogation of those treaties, the spokesman said Japan was convinced some form of international intervention was necessary "to save China."

He explained this was the "natural implication of Japan's statement on its inability to consider China an organized people"—a statement that was contained in the Japanese reply to the league of nations council.

TOKIO, Feb. 24.—Believing, apparently, that the Japanese public fails to realize the strength of hostile feeling Japan's policy is evoking, Katsuji Debuchi, Japanese ambassador to the United States, in an interview with Nichi Nichi's New York correspondent, today warned the Japanese people not to take an optimistic view just because certain United States senators oppose economic sanctions. The American people, he says, are becoming more hostile to Japan day by day.

JAPANESE CLIMB OFF HIGH HORSE; ASK LEAGUE HELP

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, Feb. 24.—The Japanese delegation to the league of nations council has developed a complete change of tactics during the last few days after their country's reverses at Shanghai.

They are busily putting out assurances that they would be delighted if "all the great powers which are not members of the league, but interested in the orient," would attend the league assembly March 3 to help "advise" Japan in her trouble. This represents a change of opinion from some months ago, when the Japanese fought tooth and nail American participation in the council's discussions.

Baron Tsuneo Matsudaira, Japanese ambassador to London, saw foreign secretary Sir John Simon for forty minutes tonight.

China to Bury U. S. Flyer Slain by Japs with Military Honors

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Feb. 24.—The shooting down of Robert Short, American aviator, by Japanese planes last Monday was confirmed tonight when the Chinese government's official Kuo Min news service published a report which said:

"The American aviator, Lieut. Robert McCauley Short, who volunteered for air service only a week ago, was shot down during a fight with Japanese planes on Feb. 22.

"On the previous day Lieut. Short shot down a Japanese plane near Woosung. While flying a Boeing pursuit plane on scout duty on Feb. 22, he sighted three Japanese bombers, escorted by three pursuit planes.

Tackles the Japanese.

"Without hesitation, the intrepid American aviator attacked the bombers and managed to kill the observer in one plane. He was attacked in turn by the three Japanese pursuit planes and after an exchange of fire was overpowered and crashed in flames.

"While volunteering his service, he requested that his identity be kept secret 'until my fate befalls me. I am supposed to be a neutral, but I cannot bear to witness the bombing of women and children in this undeclared war.'

"Short was a second lieutenant in the United States air corps reserve and was the first foreigner to give his life in defense of China against Japanese aggression. He will be given a public burial with military honors, and aviation circles have recommended that he be given the posthumous rank of colonel in the Chinese army. His valiant death has greatly moved the Chinese army and the Chinese people."

Finance Minister T. V. Soong today cabled condolences to Short's mother at Tacoma, Wash.

Japan to Protest.

The death of Short also produced a strong reaction in Japanese military circles. Ichiro Kanai, spokesman at the Japanese headquarters of Lieut. Gen. Kenkichi Uyeda, today announced that Japan will protest to the United States.

"Consul General Murai and other Japanese officials were shocked and surprised that a neutral was participating on China's side against Japan and a strong protest is contemplated directly to the state department at Washington as well as to American consular and diplomatic officials here," he said.

The Japanese aviator who shot down Short was highly eulogistic of his bravery. He circled three times over the wreckage of Short's plane and saluted his brave action in single handedly attacking six Japanese planes.

MA, CHINESE HERO WHO DESERTED, REPORTED SLAIN

Nanking Hears Defender of Tsitsihar Is Dead.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 25 [Thursday.]—(AP)—Chinese dispatches from Harbin, Manchuria, reported today that Gen. Ma Chan-san, Chinese hero of the battle of the Nonni river bridge last fall, had been assassinated.

From a national hero Gen. Ma fell low in Chinese public opinion recently when he called on Gen. Jiro Tamon, Japanese commander at Mukden, whose forces Gen. Ma's army opposed at the Nonni river, and said he regretted having caused Gen. Tamon "inconvenience."

Gen. Ma was the defender of Tsitsihar, Manchuria, against a Japanese offensive late last year, and his forces were routed only after severe fighting in the bitter cold weather.

Later, however, his arder for the Chinese cause cooled, and only last week he participated in conferences sponsored by the Japanese to form an independent Manchuria. When the new state was announced, it was understood that Gen. Ma would be a provincial governor. Yesterday's dispatches said he had been formally inaugurated as governor of Heilungkiang province, of which Tsitsihar is the capital.

Boy Emperor Is "Crowned."

MUKDEN, Feb. 25.—[Thursday.]—(AP)—The northeastern executive committee of the new Manchurian state announced today that it would be nominally a republic for the time being, with Henry Pu-Yi, former boy emperor of China, as "provisional chief executive."

But both the name to be given the country and the title of its head would be carefully chosen to leave the way open for the establishment of a monarchy in the future, an outline of the new state's constitution indicated.

Chinese Revolt Grows.

HARBIN, Manchuria, Feb. 24.—(AP)—As Gen. Jiro Tamon concentrated his Japanese division here today for a campaign against Chinese troops rebelling against the new Manchurian government, dispatches were received telling that the rebels had occupied still more territory.

Part of the Chinese units that took over Imienpo, important railroad position, moved on eastward and seized several towns on the Chinese Eastern railway, dispatches said. Other reports declared that the rebels had occupied Maoerhshan, 65 miles southeast of Harbin.

Ask Soviet Permission.

Gen. Murai's brigade of Gen. Tamon's division arrived in Harbin for the campaign and negotiations were started with soviet Russia for permission to use the Chinese Eastern railway to move the expeditionary force.

Julius Rudy, managing director of the road, which is jointly owned by China and Russia, asked Moscow for instructions.

Chinese General Declares He Will Fight Japan to End

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Feb. 24.—Chinese military authorities today took advantage of the Japanese action in barring foreign newspaper correspondents from the Japanese lines by inviting the entire corps, consisting of more than forty correspondents—American, British, French, German, and Russian, and including several women writers — to Gen. Tsai Ting-kai's headquarters at Chenju, near Shanghai.

TSAI TING-KAI

Gen. Tsai, known as the poet soldier, has been in the Chinese army for twenty years. He is 38 years old and of a slim, lithe, and soldierly build. Although comparatively unknown when the Shanghai hostilities broke out in January, the stubborn defense which his 19th route army maintained soon brought him into prominence. He was rewarded recently by being named commander in chief of all the Chinese armies at Shanghai.

A buffet luncheon was served in the courtyard. The Chinese commander mingled with his guests. Six movie cameras recorded events. When three Japanese bombing planes circled overhead Chinese soldiers, lined up on all sides, took pot shots at them.

Followed by Planes.

The Japanese planes, seeing the long line of motor cars carrying the correspondents leaving the city for Gen. Tsai's headquarters, circled overhead but kept their distance to avoid shots from Chinese troops patrolling the roadway. The planes finally flew toward Kiangwan and dropped a few bombs on the Chinese trenches. Shortly after the correspondents left Chenju, the Japanese planes returned to the Chinese headquarters and dropped some bombs.

Speaking to the correspondents in a bombproof dugout, his sleeping quarters, as a precaution in the event the Japanese bombers decided to let loose their deadly missiles during the interview, Gen. Tsai denounced and repudiated the recent statement of Lieut. Gen. Uyeda, Japanese commander, that the 19th Chinese route army which is defending Shanghai is acting independently. He declared his forces are a definite part of the national army and said that more than 30,000 of Gen Chiang Kai-shek's national guards are also taking part in the fighting in the Miaohungchen sector.

Referring to the expected arrival of Japanese reinforcements, Gen. Tsai declared that that would not alter the final outcome, as the Chinese now realize that a long struggle is in prospect and are determined to fight to the last soldier and the last bullet to preserve the Chinese race.

"I realize that the Japanese have superior equipment, but even though they burn and blow up all our cities and win a military victory, Japan will eventually be the loser because the Chinese people will never submit to Japanese might," Gen. Tsai said.

"I hope the world realizes that China wants peace, not war, but we cannot help but fight when our country is invaded and our cities, towns, villages and countryside are laid waste and innocent women and children massacred."

Says 5,500 Civilians Slain.

When asked why he did not press his advantage and cut through the Japanese lines before Japanese reinforcements arrived, Gen. Tsai said he had received strong protests from the British and American consuls against menacing the safety of the settlement, hence he had not pressed his advantage.

He said the Chinese casualties since the beginning of the Shanghai fighting on Jan. 28 were 4,200, 1,700 of which resulted from the battling since Feb. 20.

He placed casualties among Chinese civilians in the Shanghai district at a minimum of 5,500.

USE MRS. HOOVER IN JAPANESE SILK BOYCOTT APPEAL

Washington, D. C., Feb. 24.—[Special.]—Mrs. Hoover was brought into the Sino-Japanese imbroglio today when the fact that she wore a cotton dress at a White House reception on Feb. 4 was cited in a campaign to boycott Japanese silk.

The campaign was launched by members of Kappa Alpha Theta, national sorority, who are sending letters to all parts of the country urging a boycott against Japan's chief export to the United States.

"Mrs. Hoover has led the way by appearing in a cotton dress at a White House function," a letter sent out by a Kappa Alpha Theta committee read.

This letter, shown at the White House this afternoon, caused considerable concern and one of Mrs. Hoover's social secretaries issued a denial that Mrs. Hoover had meant to pave the way for a boycott against silk.

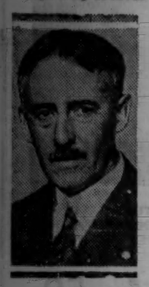
U. S. THREATENS TO ANNUL PACT, BUILD UP NAVY

New Sino-Japanese Stand Voiced by Stimson.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 24.—[Special.]—The Hoover administration today indirectly threatened Japan with abrogation of the Washington treaty limiting the capital ship strength of the naval powers and restricting American defenses in the western Pacific if Japan persists in flouting the nine power treaty guaranteeing the territorial integrity of China.



SECRETARY STIMSON.

A few hours later the naval affairs committee reported favorably to the senate the Hale bill authorizing the building of the United States navy up to the limits imposed by the London treaty on cruisers and other auxiliaries. The committee declared the immediate adoption of a naval building program imperative for numerous reasons, among them being the fact that otherwise the United States navy, by 1936, will have declined to a tonnage parity with Japan, with only 68 modern ships to 156 for Japan.

Notice Is Required.

Dec. 13, 1936, is the earliest date at which the Washington naval treaty can be abrogated and notice therefor must be given not later than Dec. 31, 1934.

The administration's threat was conveyed indirectly through the medium of a letter addressed by Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson to Senator William E. Borah [Rep., Idaho], chairman of the senate committee on foreign relations, ostensibly in reply to the latter's inquiry whether present conditions in China render the nine power treaty inapplicable or ineffective. The letter was made public by the state department following publication of the Japanese government's reply to the league of nations' protest against Japanese aggression on China, in which Tokio asserted that China is no longer a responsible nation. The Stimson letter, however, is in effect a reply to the feelers put forth Monday by Foreign Minister Yoshizawa of Japan in an interview suggesting revision of the nine power treaty.

Reviews Treaty History.

Mr. Stimson explained in his letter that the nine power treaty put in legal form John Hay's principles of the commercial open door and the territorial integrity and independence of China, the history of which he reviewed. The treaty, said Mr. Stimson, represented a "covenant of self-denial" on the part of the powers of aggression on China.

The nine power treaty was one of several agreements, including the naval limitation treaty, entered into by the powers in Washington in 1922. All of these treaties, Mr. Stimson asserted, are "interrelated and interdependent."

"No one of these treaties," he continued, "can be disregarded without disturbing the general understanding and equilibrium which were intended to be accomplished and effected by the group of agreements arrived at in their entirety. The Washington conference was essentially a disarmament conference, aimed to promote the possibility of peace in the world not only through the cessation of competition in naval armament but also by the solution of various other disturbing problems which threatened the peace of the world, particularly in the far east. These problems were all interrelated.

Cites Self-Denying Covenants.

"The willingness of the American government to surrender its then commanding lead in battleship construction and to leave its positions at Guam and in the Philippines without further fortification, was predicated upon, among other things, the self-denying covenants contained in the nine power treaty, which assured the nations of the world not only of equal opportunity for their eastern trade but also against the military aggrandizement of any other power at the expense of China. One cannot discuss the possibility of modifying or abrogating those provisions of the nine power treaty without considering at the same time the other promises upon which they were really dependent."

The nine power treaty was reinforced six years later, said Mr. Stimson, by another self-denying ordinance, the Kellogg-Briand anti-war pact, signed by fifty nations.

"These two treaties," the letter continued, "represent independent but harmonious steps, taken for the purpose of aligning the conscience and public opinion of the world in favor of a system of orderly development by the law of nations, including the settlement of all controversies by methods of justice and peace instead of by arbitrary force.

Sees China's Welfare Vital.

"The program for the protection of China from outside aggression is an essential part of any such development. The signatories and adherents of the nine power treaty rightly felt that the orderly and peaceful development of the 400 millions of people inhabiting China was necessary to the peaceful welfare of the entire world and that no program for the welfare of the world as a whole could afford to neglect the welfare and protection of China."

In what has happened in Manchuria and at Shanghai, the secretary of state perceives a reason not for modification but for more implicit observation of the treaties.

"It is not necessary in that connection," he went on, "to inquire into the causes of the controversy or attempt to apportion the blame between the two nations which are unhappily involved, for, regardless of cause or responsibility, it is clear beyond peradventure that a situation has developed which cannot, under any circumstances, be reconciled with the obligations of the covenants of these two treaties and that if the treaties had been faithfully observed such a situation could not have arisen.

Points to Shanghai Perils.

"The signatories of the nine power treaty and of the Kellogg-Briand pact who are not parties to that conflict are not likely to see any reason for modifying the terms of those treaties. To them the real value of the faithful performance of the treaties has been brought sharply home by the perils and losses to which their nationals have been subjected in Shanghai.

"That is the view of this government. We see no reason for abandoning the enlightened principles which are embodied in these treaties. We believe that this situation would have been avoided had these covenants been faithfully observed, and no evidence has come to us to indicate that a due compliance with them would have interfered with the adequate protection of the legitimate rights in China of the signatories of those treaties and their nationals."

The secretary then made indirectly an appeal to the European powers to support his warning to Japan and China of Jan. 7, last, that the United States will recognize no arrangements infringing American rights that are entered into in violation of the two treaties. To the disappointment of the administration, Great Britain and France failed to take similar action.

But if the powers would do so even now, said Mr. Stimson, "a caveat will be placed upon such action which, we believe, will effectively bar the legality hereafter of any title or right sought to be obtained by pressure or treaty violation, and which, as has been shown by history in the past, will eventually lead to the restoration to China of rights and titles of which she may have been deprived."

Believes in China's Future.

The American policy has always rested, said Mr. Stimson, on an abiding faith "in the future of the people of China and upon the ultimate success in dealing with them of the principles of fair play, patience, and good will."

"We appreciate the immensity of the task which lies before her statesmen in the development of her country and its government," the secretary concluded. "The delays in her progress, the instability of her attempts to secure a responsible government were foreseen by Messrs. Hay and Hughes and their contemporaries and were the very obstacles which the policy of the open door was designed to meet. We concur with those statesmen representing all the nations in the Washington conference who decided that China was entitled to the time necessary to accomplish her development. We are prepared to make that our policy for the future."

There was varied reaction to the letter in the congressional cloakrooms. Comment was heard to the effect that the Stimson utterance constitutes a confession that the United States illadvisedly entered into the Washington naval treaty which scrapped the nation's great fleet and rendered us incapable of protecting our interests in the far east. Some thought the administration's move sounds the knell of the Washington naval treaty, the London treaty and of the current efforts for further restriction of armaments being made at Geneva.

From one source came the opinion that the result of the Stimson letter will be the genesis of such resentment and anti-American feeling in Japan as produces the incidents which lead to war. In another quarter there was speculation that President Hoover and Mr. Stimson are trying to excite the American people into a spontaneous informal boycott of trade with Japan as an approach to the formal boycott Newton D. Baker and other petitioners are urging on the administration.

Borah Withholds Comment.

Senator Borah declined to discuss the letter for publication. It was learned, however, that he is not in agreement with Mr. Stimson in declaring the treaties interdependent and the naval treaty must be terminated if the nine power treaty is disregarded. Senator David A. Reed [Rep., Pa.], also a member of the foreign relations committee, expressed his agreement with the secretary of state on this point.

While taking a dig at the "singular mode of diplomatic correspondence" adopted by the administration Senator Hiram Johnson [Rep., Cal.] applauded the burden of the Stimson argument.

"Of course, yielding our naval superiority," he said, "was based upon the promises of the treaty and the good faith of the signers in carrying out their promises. The implication of the letter that we are free now to pursue our own course is fully justified, and I trust will become a reality. Treaties and high sounding phrases are fine, and enable a certain class of statesmen to deliver beautiful speeches in tearful tones. We have now our object lesson of the efficacy of solemn agreements in resounding phrases."

More Building Sentiment.

As the result of the events in China there is more sentiment now than hitherto in favor of the pending bills for building our navy up to treaty limits. Representative Carl Vinson [Dem., Ga.] said today he now expects to report from the house naval committee, of which he is chairman. His bill authorizes 120 ships at a cost of 616 millions. This bill was shelved a few weeks ago. The Hale bill contemplates construction of not less than 120 ships and considerable modernization which would run the cost up to 998 millions.

The senate committee's report recommending passage of the Hale bill asserts that our navy "is rapidly becoming a navy of obsolete ships, and will in the near future be entirely inadquate properly to protect our country, our foreign trade, our foreign possessions, and our citizens at home and abroad."

'HEALER' GIVEN CHANCE TO WORK AT HIS TRADE

State Agents Uninvited Guests at Meeting.

Prof. John Hugh Lally, self styled evangelist of health, delivered a lecture last night before an audience of 200 in a banquet room at the Auditorium. hotel. Among the uninvited guests were Chief Inspector J. E. Edwards and four of his men from the state department of registration.

Some of the professor's literature, advertising his cures of the blind, the lame and the halt, and proclaiming his ability to bring fame and fortune to students of his method, had fallen into the inspector's hands. Police records had disclosed that the professor had once been convicted of practicing medicine without a license here and was now at liberty on a $1,200 bond for the same offense in Minneapolis.

Pays $20 Each for Course.

The professor was in the midst of his lecture when the inspectors arrived and unobtrusively took seats in the rear. All in the audience had their feet planted wide apart on the floor, with the right hand resting on the head and the left firmly pressing the back of the neck. Each had paid $20 to take the course.

"Now let the waves of love flow through you," the professor exhorted. "They are coming from above, coursing through the brain, down past the duodenum and out through the feet into the earth. They are washing away the congestion in your brains, curing all your ills, healing your cuts and driving away your pains."

Under the spell of his voice the members of the audience closed their eyes. A few of the more elderly groaned softly.

"Ah, the waves of love," the professor exclaimed. "They will send you forth from here tonight as different men and women. You who are poor will become rich. You who have frozen real estate will be able to sell it. You who are unemployed will find jobs."

Asked to Take Own Cure.

At this juncture Inspector Edwards announced the presence of his party. One of his men, familiar with surgical practice, posed a question for the lecturer. Since the professor guaranteed to cure the cuts of others, would he be willing to have an artery opened in his wrist, knowing the "love waves" would instantly cure it?

All eyes turned upon the inspector. A loud and protracted hiss arose. The professor obtained silence with a wave of his hand.

"I have been persecuted by these men before," he said. "I once delivered a lecture before an institute for the blind and they falsely charged me with practicing medicine to restore a poor boy's eyesight. I was arrested in Minneapolis, in Winnipeg, and elsewhere. I am willing to go before a jury of men and women such as you dear people any time."

Asks Doctors to Rise.

After a woman had interrupted, the professor went on:

"We need pay no attention to these men. There are doctors in this class, men of science, taking notes on everything I say.

"Doctors, will you stand up and tell the inspectors who you are?"

A man and two women arose, glared at the inspector and stated their names. When the meeting ended they were asked their professional rating. One was a chiropractor, another a doctor of physiotherapy and a third said she was a doctor of medicine.

Two women joined the "doctors" in offering testimonials. One stated that the professor had cured her leg, injured in a motor accident.

Inspector Edwards said he would give the professor an opportunity to demonstrate his powers before a committee of physicians today. He said he would have a blind person and a deaf person in his office and would invite him to perform a cure. If the professor carried out his promise the department will take no further action, the inspector promised.

Three Cops Dismissed; One Trapped with Bribe

Three patrolmen were dismissed from the police department yesterday following hearings before the civil service commission. Theodore R. Johnson of the Town Hall district was charged with accepting a bribe from a woman speakeasy proprietor, who trapped him with a marked bill. Edward A. Wynn of the Rogers Park district, and Herbert A. Tarleton of the Englewood district were charged with intoxication.

$6,500 HOARDED MONEY IS BACK IN CIRCULATION!

Six $1,000 bills and one $500 bill, all hoarded money, were put into circulation last night by George Grakos, 5301 Maryland avenue, a restaurant owner, when two armed bandits walked into his apartment while he and a friend, Thomas McCormick, were listening to a radio broadcast. The bandits also took a diamond ring, valued at $400, from Grakos, but overlooked another hoard of $2,300 in a trunk in his apartment.

Grakos drew the $6,500 out of his bank shortly before it closed and had it sewed in the watch pocket of his trousers. The $6,500 and the money in the trunk represented the life savings of himself and his brother, James, owners of the Chicago Motor Coach club restaurant at 5201 Cottage Grove avenue.

After taking the bills the bandits locked Grakos and his friend in a closet. The victims freed themselves. Grakos told the Hyde Park police the remainder of his hoard will be put into circulation.

BADLY DAMAGED STEAMER ADRIFT IN THE ATLANTIC

LONDON, Feb. 24.—(AP)—The steamship Aggersund was reported badly damaged in the North Atlantic, with all lifeboats gone, in a radio message from the station at Valentia, an island off the west coast of Ireland, tonight.

The message, received at Valentia from the steamer Montcalm, said the Aggersund was listing at an angle of 45 degrees. Its position was given at 52 degrees 20 minutes north latitude, 21 degrees west longitude, which is about 500 miles west of the Irish coast.

The message, as sent to the Lloyds Shipping agency, reported "heavy damage" and said the funnel was lost.

The Aggersund, a Danish ship, sailed from Grangemouth, Scotland, on Feb. 10 for Boston. It is a vessel of 1,849 net tonnage.

ALFALFA BILL PAINTS GLOOMY FUTURE FOR U. S.

Tells Gary Audience the Remedy for Ills.

Gov. William H. (Alfalfa Bill) Murray of Oklahoma, candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, painted a gloomy picture, with reservations, of the economic future of the country in a stump speech last night before a responsive audience of 5,000 men and women at the Indiana National Guard armory in Gary. Many of his listeners were steel workers.

The governor arrived early, flanked on either side by Democratic chieftains of northern Indiana. He sat on the platform smoking a large cigar as the crowd filled the auditorium. He waded into his compound subject immediately, touching local, national, and international issues. He also included several slaps at the Hoover administration.

Worse Times in Sight.

"We haven't had any hard times yet," asserted Gov. Murray after he had warmed up a few minutes. "The winters of 1932, 1933, and 1934 will be far worse."

Gov. Murray paused a moment to allow his dire prediction to sink in. Then he added his reservations.

"That is," he added, "they'll be worse unless there's a change of administration. I mean not only a Democratic administration, but one that will get back to the progressive democracy of Jefferson, the economic principles of Bryan and Wilson, the nationalism of Jackson, and the liberality of Lincoln.

"If we don't get that kind of administration, there won't be any administrations after that. The country will be ruined beyond salvation."

Three Possibilities for U. S.

Gov. Murray outlined what, to his mind, constituted three possibilities open in the future of the country. They were: First, a few of the people owning everything; second, nobody owning anything, and third, loosening up credit so that the little fellow, no less than the big fellow, will receive help.

He criticized the two billion dollar federal reconstruction corporation as being designed to aid two New York banks and industries in the United States, while overlooking the smaller groups. In this connection he undertook a description of President Hoover as the "great engineer who ditched us, who drained us, and who dammed us."

"Special interests" received the Oklahoma governor's attention. Alexander Hamilton, with the assistance of Gallatin, in founding the nation's financial structure, favored the financial and speculating interests, he asserted. The same interests were being served advantageously now, he declared. Continuation of this policy, he prophesied, would lead to revolution within four years.

DIVORCE MADE LEGAL IN SPAIN FOR FIRST TIME

MADRID, Feb. 24.—(AP)—The national assembly tonight approved the final article of the new divorce law, the first ever enacted in Spain, and it will become effective after formal reading of the entire measure and publication in the official gazette.

It permits divorce by mutual consent, for non-support by the husband, for imprisonment of either party for more than ten years, for physical cruelty, desertion or adultery.

The divorce may be granted whether the marriage was by civil or ecclesiastical authority, and except in certain cases, either party may remarry when the decree becomes final. The bill provides also for maintenance of the children.

BAIN AND SONS IN COURT; PLEA IS "NOT GUILTY"

Teller Jailed by State; Shortage Found.

While John Bain and his two sons and son-in-law were pleading not guilty yesterday to charges of banking irregularities, a bank teller was jailed. Victor E. Olson, 48 years old, 104 West 112th place, head teller of the Wiersema State bank, 11108 Michigan avenue, which suspended on Jan. 29, was arrested by order of Assistant State's Attorneys Wilkie Ham and Charles Bellows.

The Bains, who at one time headed a chain of twelve banks, appeared before Chief Justice Harry Fisher in the Criminal court for arraignment on the indictment charging them with conspiracy to defraud depositors by accepting deposits while the banks were insolvent.

Two Defendants Absent.

John Bain, the father; John H. and Robert A. Bain, sons, and W. Merle Fisher, son-in-law, were there but Frank A. Mulholland and Dr. Walter H. Buhlig, indicted with them, were absent.

State's Attorney Swanson informed the court he wished to place the defendants on trial as soon as possible. Attorney Nelson Wettling, spoke for the defendants, saying they had not yet received copies of the indictment, a voluminous document, and asked for time to study it before the men were asked to plead to it. Judge Fisher said that to expedite the hearing he would ask that pleas be made at once and later if there were motions to quash or similar moves he would allow the pleas to be withdrawn.

Prosecutor Swanson asked if the defendants intended to ask a jury trial or a bench trial. Attorney Wettling said he could not answer at the moment as the bankers had not yet decided what lawyers would represent them. Judge Fisher continued the case until Monday when the defendants are to return and make known their decision.

Teller Admits Embezzlement.

Olson, the teller, is reported to have admitted to Prosecutor Ham last night that he embezzled $15,000 from the Wiersema bank by the juggling of accounts. He admitted, according to Mr. Ham, that he withdrew the money over a period of a year and lost it in the stock market. He is being held at an outlying police station.

Carl Ring, 4909 North St. Louis avenue, a meat peddler, who with his brother, Meyer, was co-signer of a note for $20,000 held by the closed South Side Trust and Savings bank, was sent to the county jail by Judge Michael Feinberg. Ring was opposed by Meyer in court. Meyer said a bitter feeling had arisen between them regarding their loan when he learned that Carl had lost the money borrowed and then lost the $18,000 bonds he put up as collateral. Carl said his brother had then transferred his business and property to Louis Rosenfeld, an attorney married to Carl's daughter, Betty.

Judge Feinberg ordered Carl into custody to see if he would change his testimony and agree to repay his loan. Subpoenas were issued for the daughter and son-in-law.

State Collects $12,821 More.

Assistant State's Attorney Henry Ayers, in charge of the bank investigations and prosecutions and also head of the prosecutor's "extralegal" department which is aiding in the collection of debts for closed banks, announced he had collected $12,821 yesterday, making a total of $700,000 collected by the department. The money was owed the closed Industrial State bank and Ayers acted on the request of Paul Corkell, the receiver, who said some of the debtors refused to pay.

Announcement was made yesterday by the Roosevelt Trust and Savings bank of Forest Park, 7227 West Roosevelt road, that it was closing and would pay its depositors in full. The notices went out yesterday and $5,000 was withdrawn by depositors. Joseph Bristow, president of the bank, said the directors had decided to close it when deposits dwindled to $43,000 from a peak of $420,000 in 1928.

Its closing leaves Forest Park without a bank, but was necessary, Bristow said, because of the lack of confidence displayed by the depositors.

FOOTBALL TEAM AT STATEVILLE GIVEN 'PENALTY'

College spirit at Stateville penitentiary, where prisoners have been playing football during mild days all winter, was penalized half the distance to the goal line yesterday by Warden H. C. Hill.

Warden Hill was informed that two footballs and two uniforms had disappeared from the prison athletic stores. Since none of the players has been caught running punts through the prison gates, the material is presumably hidden in the institution.

Warden Hill immediately ordered football games stopped until the stolen footballs are returned. Members of the convict cheering section started inquiries over the prison "grapevine" to locate the loot.

HAMMOND ORDERS SCHOOLS CLOSED A MONTH EARLIER

Failure of Banks Ties Up Funds.

The Hammond school board yesterday voted to close the city schools a month earlier this year because its funds are exhausted. The schools will close May 15, giving 13,000 pupils an additional month of summer vacation.

The failure of Hammond banks and deficiency of tax collections were blamed for the closing order. For the last month the schools have been operating on revenue of the fall term. The board collected taxes in advance and sold securities which escaped the bank failures.

Teachers are to be paid in full to the date of closing. The board hopes to open schools on the regular schedule in the fall when money may be received in the liquidation of the banks and from tax collections. The board has been unable to sell tax anticipation warrants.

Gary Schools to Remain Open.

In Gary the schools will continue through the full spring term, although the board has announced that opening a month later in the fall is inevitable. Bank failures and low tax collections are also responsible for the Gary problem.

The 600 teachers received their last full pay last week. Further payments are to be made partially in cash and the balance in scrip. Under the scrip plan the proportion of certificates ranged from 40 to 60 per cent depending on salary. The Gary board attempted to sell $300,000 in tax anticipation warrants but the issue was not subscribed. The majority of the warrants sold were purchased by teachers.

East Chicago in Trouble.

The school board of East Chicago is facing difficulty. All salaries have been paid to date but the school fund is near exhaustion. The board has sold tax anticipation warrants, but is expected to consider opening a month later in the fall.

In Whiting where the situation is better the board has sufficient funds to meet the expenses for the balance of the year.

Bullet Proof Glass Foils Bandits in Bank Holdup

Two bandits fled without loot from the Orland State bank at Beacon and 153d streets yesterday when their bullets flattened out against the glass surrounding the cashier's cage without effect. George E. Gee, the cashier, defied the demands on the pair to hand over the money. When the bandits entered, Gee stepped to a drawer, in which he kept his own revolver. M. A. Strand, assistant cashier and Miss Lavonne Kay, a bookkeeper, were in adjoining cages, also protected by bulletproof glass. After firing two shots the bandits realized that the glass was bulletproof and they joined two companions in a sedan outside and sped away.

URGES PURCHASE OF WARRANTS TO SPEED UP RELIEF

Clarke Stresses Chance for Investors.

An appeal to the business sense of the public was made yesterday by Philip R. Clarke, chairman of the organization selling the $18,750,000 issue of 6 per cent state tax warrants, in urging prompt action to purchase the outstanding securities for relief of the unemployed.

The public is confronted with three courses of action, according to Mr. Clarke. They are:

1. Purchasing the 6 per cent notes, the soundness of which is evidenced by the $1,000,000 subscription of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company.
2. Making outright contributions to the Joint Emergency Relief Fund.
3. Permiting the cutting off of relief from 500,000 destitute persons in Cook county.

"Opportunity for Investors."

"The last is unthinkable," said Mr. Clarke. "The second seems silly in view of the investment opportunity, and that leaves the first as the obvious choice. It is to the distinct advantage, rather than to the disadvantage of the public, to buy these tax notes. It is seldom that one can get six per cent on his charity."

Sales yesterday totaled $881,900, including a $500,000 subscription by the First National bank. To date $8,219,300 of the $18,750,000 issue has been sold. Other subscriptions yesterday included $250,000 by Armour & Co., $6,000 by C. Gulbransen, $5,000 by Sutro Brothers & Co., and $5,000 by 229 Lake Shore Drive, Inc.

Urges Prompt Buying.

"All our chairmen and workers are doing their utmost, and if corporations and individuals would duplicate their spirit the entire issue would be taken up in a few days," said Mr. Clarke.

Mr. Clarke said the solicitors might not be able to see all prospective purchasers and urged the public to assist the selling organization by subscribing through any bank or sending their subscriptions directly to the headquarters of the Joint Emergency Relief fund, 10 South La Salle street.

AVIATION NOTES

C. T. Robertson, night air mail pilot of United Air lines on the Dallas-Chicago run, discovered a $100,000 school building burning at Mount Pleasant, Ia., ten miles off his course, at 4 a. m. yesterday. He circled low over the city and gave a warning, which was too late, however, to save the structure.

Northwest Airways, operating out of Chicago, has ordered more than $50,000 worth of radio telephone units from the Western Electric company, the New York office announced yesterday. The units will equip four ground stations and 17 planes for two way conversations. One station will be at Chicago airport.

SURVEY SHOWS RISE IN COST OF MUNICIPAL COURT

Increase of $238,086 Over 1930 Expense.

Another division of the local governments—the Municipal court—began a survey of expenditures yesterday in conformity with the movement for economy. It was found that the expenses of the court were $238,086 more in 1931 than in 1930.

Chief Justice John J. Sonsteby of the court, under whose administration the increase occurred, said he was in accord with the policy of lightening the taxpayers' burden but that the extra jobs created since he took office in December, 1930, are necessary.

Judge Sonsteby, Clerk Joseph L. Gill, and Bailiff Albert Horan, all Democrats, were elected in November, 1930, and the comparison undertaken was that of the first year of their administration with the last year of the preceding chief justice, Harry Olson.

Extra Jobs Authorized.

Soon after Judge Sonsteby became the presiding officer of the court there was a meeting of the judges. They authorized the addition of 35 clerks and 35 bailiffs at salaries of $2,500 a year, Judge Sonsteby said. For his own office two additional clerks at $3,000 were provided and one law stenographer at $2,500.

A budget was prepared for which the city council is required to appropriate. Compared with the 1930 actual expenses and the requests for appropriations in 1932, the 1931 budget for the three departments of the court was as follows:

Chief just.	$ 480,569	$ 511,580	$ 519,707
Clerk's ofc.	1,127,855	1,267,170	1,116,390
Bailiff's ofc.	795,500	937,250	878,927

But there was a saving in each of the three departments of the court, for 1931, Judge Sonsteby showed. The chief justice's saving was $7,577 but the total yearly expenditure was $23,434 higher than the previous year. The clerk's saving was $53,763. The expenses of his office, however, were $85,550 higher than for 1930. The bailiff's saving was $12,647, but his total expenditures were $129,101 higher than for the preceding year.

Expects to Save in 1932.

Judge Sonsteby said a considerable saving is expected during 1932. Part of the saving of 1931 was due to the clerk's and bailiff's offices drawing pay for only eleven and a half months.

"My department starts off with fixed charges of $375,000 a year," Judge Sonsteby said. "I can't reduce that although my predecessor in 1930 was able to save some because there were four vacancies in the court. I cut the printing expense from $7,475 to $5,000, the probation department from $76,285 to $70,200, personal service [that's for hiring outside judges] from $16,320 to $8,180, of which $2,180 was for old bills contracted in 1930.

"Through the use of the extra men we have caught up on the jury cases so that now we are able to give a trial within a month instead of two or three years. We spent $20,000 in remodeling the clerk's office and the bailiff's office had an extra expense of $20,000 because the telephone bill was not paid in 1930. Another added expense in my department is the pension of $7,500 paid to former Chief Justice Olson.

"Earnings have fallen off in the criminal branches because people can't pay fines as large as they could a few years ago and consequently the judges fix lower amounts as penalties for infractions of the law. But we are saving $50,000 a year through using six jurors instead of twelve."

PLANE CRASHES DURING TEST OF SAFETY DEVICE

Twin Parachutes Fail to Open; Pilot Hurt.

The test of a new safety device for airplanes, consisting of two parachutes intended to lower the plane slowly if it is disabled in flight, nearly ended fatally for the pilot of the craft at Ford airport at Lansing, Ill., yesterday afternoon. One of the parachutes failed to operate and the plane crashed.

The pilot, said by field attaches to be Lieut. Hugh McKee, a wartime flyer, had climbed from the cockpit when the second parachute failed to open at 2,000 feet, and he was thrown from the plane when it crashed on one wing, observers said. He suffered only a few cuts and bruises, they said.

The safety device was the invention of James E. Bradley, who had Lieut. McKee demonstrate it at St. Charles airport last fall. The two parachutes were released, however, before the plane reached the ground in that test. Yesterday Lieut. McKee took the plane up to perform a descent while a news reel company took photographs.

At 2,000 feet Lieut. McKee operated the mechanism that was to release the parachutes. The device was designed to force them out of two metal containers on the top of the center section of the upper wing of the biplane. It was operated by compressed air. One of the parachutes opened and the other did not.

Lieut. McKee stayed with the plane, attempting to loosen the fouled parachute, observers said. When his attempts failed and the plane neared the ground he was seen to climb from the cockpit onto one of the wings, where he remained until the plane crashed.

WASHINGMACHINE HIDES BIG CACHE OF DYNAMITE

Police yesterday were summoned to remove 75 sticks of dynamite which had been discovered hidden in a washing machine in the basement of Clarence Suer, 5949 Eddy street. Suer is a prisoner in the county jail, awaiting grand jury action on a charge of robbery. He was captured Saturday after an attempt to hold up the Fair store.

Suer's wife and child left the apartment Monday. William Foder, their landlord, discovered the explosive and notified Sergt. Joseph McDowell of the Irving Park police.

Lieut. Frank Johnson of the bomb squad removed the dynamite to the Bridewell. Thirty caps, used for detonating the stuff with an electric battery, were also hidden in the washing machine. Lieut. Johnson, expressing the belief that Suer was a member of a gang of safeblowers and that the dynamite was intended to provide nitroglycerine for their operations, went to the county jail to question the prisoner.

FIRST TAX CASH OF 1930 PAID TO CITY TREASURY

$1,000,000 Is Ready to Redeem Warrants.

The city got its first cash from 1930 tax collections yesterday. The sum of $1,014,894 was turned over to City Treasurer Kearns by County Treasurer McDonough. Although this money will be paid out immediately to redeem 1930 tax warrants, Controller Szymczak said that every effort will be made to induce the holders of these securities to reinvest the payments in 1931 tax warrants.

Meanwhile the plans to slash the city budget by the dismissal of 2,479 employés went forward. A finance subcommittee headed by Ald. John S. Clark [30th] spent the day hearing city department heads and employés' representatives.

These witnesses were unanimous in protesting that the proposed cuts in their particular departments would bring activities there to a complete stop. Most of them asserted that the city government would break down if the jobs they argued for were abolished.

$1,185,105 Paid in Warrants.

The tax revenue received from the county by Treasurer Kearns included, besides the cash, $1,185,105 in 1930 tax warrants which holders had turned in as payment for taxes. Mr. Szymczak said that holders of the first $1,000,000 worth of 1930 tax warrants issued by the city will be notified today that cash is on hand for the retirement of those warrants.

When these investors appear for their money they will be urged to buy 1931 city warrants with it. Mayor Cermak made it known several days ago that he had high hopes that banks would start purchases of 1931 warrants as soon as the funds which they have tied up in 1930 warrants are made available.

Mr. Szymczak said there was no agreement with the bankers for the automatic exchange of 1931 warrants for 1930 warrants when funds for retirement of the latter become available. It was considered likely that banks will make no purchases until the city's share of tax collections reaches the larger sum, perhaps $10,000,000.

See Credit Improvement.

The controller pointed out, however, that the retirement of 1930 warrants, either through their surrender in payment of taxes or their redemption with cash collected as taxes, improves the credit of the city by reducing its total outstanding indebtedness.

"Holders of the 1930 warrants have had the impression lately that they would not get their money until some indefinite time in the future," Mr. Szymczak said. "The immediate redemption of warrants with the money at hand should have an important psychological effect in encouraging purchase of 1931 tax warrants."

Protest Job Trimming.

Every witness who appeared yesterday before Ald. Clark's subcommittee assured the aldermen that abolishment of the jobs he was defending would result in serious difficulties for his department.

Acting Fire Marshal Carmody said that eight fire companies have been disbanded already, the members being sent to other companies, because of the 75 unfilled vacancies in the department. Five more companies will be taken out of service by April, he said.

The dismissal of 305 firemen and 57 battalion chiefs, proposed under the emergency economy plan, would make it impossible for the department to cover the city adequately, he said.

Firemen's Head Gives Warning.

William S. Johnston, president of the Firemen's association, said that the proposed reduction in the fire fighting forces would mean the disbanding of 35 fire companies.

"I think it's appropriate at this time that we give some attention to that picture there," said Ald. Clark, pointing to a painting which hung in the committee room, portraying the courthouse in flames during the fire of 1871.

Police Commissioner Allman assured the committee that if the police force is cut at all, the city may expect no reduction in its crime rate.

Sergt. Eugene O'Connor, speaking for the 572 police sergeants whose dismissal is proposed, termed those men "the hub of the police department" and predicted that a wave of crime would follow if the rank were abolished.

Suggests Raising Water Rates.

Philip Steele, one of the 42 first assistant engineers at city pumping stations, whose discharge is recommended, asserted that the city water system would have to shut down if he and his mates were dismissed. He suggested that the water rates be raised 20 times and that those who pay them be reimbursed later out of tax collections.

President Bundesen of the board of health, in whose department it is proposed to dismiss 112 nurses, protested that the health office is already undermanned.

William A. Jackson, commissioner of gas and electricity, defended the 30 electrical inspectors whose dismissal is suggested.

"The department is carrying 10,000 more street lights than in 1930, with no increase in personnel, and a light is as good as a policeman," he said.

Arthur Kenny, appearing on behalf of 40 playground directors, asserted that through their guidance children were kept off the streets.

HOOVER CLAIMS "DELIGHT" OVER ECONOMY SLAM

Washington, D. C., Feb. 24.—[Special.]—President Hoover today replied to the Democratic attack of yesterday on his program for reorganization of the federal government with the statement that he still thought his plan of allowing the executive to effect the proposed reorganizations was the proper one.

Without referring directly to Speaker John Garner's statement that President Hoover was suggesting that congress abdicate its prerogative, the President said he was "delighted" that congress was taking up the reorganization of the federal machinery. He also put in a bid for whatever credit may be derived from the economies which would be effected by reorganizing the federal departments.

"I will be entirely happy," he said, "if my repeated messages to the congress on the subject succeed in securing action in an effective fashion."

MRS. BRENNAN WON'T ADMIT SHE'S FOR IGOE

Mrs. George E. Brennan, widow of the Democratic chieftain, refused yesterday to confirm or deny reports that she will support Michael L. Igoe in the race for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination. From various sources, however, it was learned she already has endorsed him among her friends.

"I have not authorized any such statement for publication," she said last night in her home, 3150 Sheridan road. "I am not even sure that I shall do so later. At present all my efforts lie in the work I am doing with the Woman's Organization for National Prohibition Reform."

BERLIN SALOONS ON BEER STRIKE; SPURN TAX CUT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Feb. 24.—All saloons in Berlin went on a "beer strike" today, refusing to accept cuts in the beer tax ordered by the price dictator. The government had agreed to reduce the beer tax, starting March 20, to "ease hardships," but the saloonkeepers, following the advice of communist and Fascist agitators, voted to strike regardless of the government's promises.

Hamburg, where the suds flowed freely, has been dried up by the beer strike, which is now well in its second week. Of 6,500 saloons, only 24 still serve beer.

In Hamburg 10,000 retail merchants today went on an "electric strike" to compel the electric company to cut prices.

The strike idea has even gripped the German wives. In Frankfurt they joined open air market dealers in a strike to compel the town to reduce the rent for the quaint stalls in Frankfurt's old streets and squares.

COUNTY BUDGET OF $37,000,000 IS COMPLETED

$5,000,000 Is Cut from Tentative Draft.

A county budget totaling approximately $37,000,000 was completed by the county commissioners last evening. This represented a cut of about $5,000,000 from the tentative budget of $42,000,000 set up two weeks ago. The budget is scheduled for final passage next Monday.

Despite strong pressure from department officials the board members refused to reconsider most of their economy slashes. The budget calls for the dismissal of 553 county employés on March 1, a 15 per cent cut in salaries for those who remain, and a number of cuts in appropriations.

Money Back to Nurses.

In the absence of Commissioner Charles H. Weber the board voted to return to the budget $200,000 they had taken away from the Cook county School of Nursing on motion of Commissioner Weber. The nursing school appropriation was raised from $800,000 to $1,000,000, only $20,000 below the amount asked for.

The $5,000,000 slash includes $2,000,000 saved by cutting the highway tax levy from 10 to 5 cents. Commissioner Amelia Sears urged that the tax levy be suspended entirely for one year at a saving of $2,000,000, pointing out that the board still has $4,000,000 coming in uncollected 1931 taxes. This motion was lost, all the commissioners but Miss Sears voting against it.

Two Trustees Oppose Budget.

The vote was 10 to 2 in favor of the budget with Commissioners Dan Ryan and Mrs. Glenn E. Plumb against approval because of the salary cuts. On motion of Commissioner Ryan, the board approved a plan whereby the 533 discharged employés may be paid their salaries in full when they are fired. County employés have not been paid since Nov. 1.

Michael O'Connor, assistant controller, said he had been informed by the sheriff and county treasurer that they would not dismiss any employés until forced to do so by court action. He said he believed that other officials might keep their employés working and hope that wages may somehow be found for them.

Behavior Clinic Loses.

Two attempts were made by Commissioner Sears to restore the behavior clinic at the Criminal courts building to the budget. Both attempts were defeated by votes of 6 to 5.

The discovery was made by the commissioners during their poring over the budget that the coroner pays 45 cents a page for stenographic work and the state's attorney pays 75 cents a page for the same kind of work. After much criticism of the state's attorney the board solved the problem by raising the coroner's rate to 55 cents per page.

Two jobs were returned to Recorder Clayton F. Smith on recommendation of J. L. Jacobs, efficiency expert. He said the recorder had coöperated in slashing his force and that the cuts in his department had been too heavy.

YOUTHS PUT ON PROBATION.

Joseph Ensminger, 21 years old, 4308 Sheridan road, and Morris McCormick, 20 years old, 1660 Farwell street, were placed on probation for one year by Judge J. William Brooks in the Boys' court yesterday on a charge of malicious mischief.

OFFICIALS TO APPEAL TO LARGE PROPERTY OWNERS FOR TAXES

Owners of large properties in the loop and near north side have been invited to a conference this morning in the chambers of County Judge Jarecki, at which they will be urged to make payments on their 1930 taxes at once.

Those taxpayers who contemplate protests of their tax bills will be asked to pay that portion of their taxes which they consider fair, pending the settlement of their litigation in the County court. Judge Jarecki, Corporation Counsel Sexton and County Attorney Bell will speak at the meeting.

The county collector's office sent out 1930 tax bills yesterday for 94 banks in the towns of Jefferson, Lake View, West Chicago, and Hyde Park.

The bills totaled $787,474 on assessments totaling $11,779,065. Officials said, however, that collections from the banks would be considerably below the total of the bills, since a number of the institutions have closed or merged with other banks since the 1930 assessment rolls were made up.

POLICE DRAW GUNS TO HALT EVICTION RIOT

Police guns were drawn yesterday afternoon to disperse an anti-eviction demonstration in front of 2220 High street. Four men were arrested. The demonstration was similar to one in front of 2216 Lewis street Tuesday, in which 36 men were seized.

Yesterday's disturbance occurred when a crowd of men started to carry furniture into the High street flat from which Michael Schackney had been evicted. Schackney protested. He did not desire to return to the apartment, he shouted. At the time he was awaiting the arrival of a truck which was to move him to a Belden avenue flat.

However, the demonstrators persisted in carrying in his furniture from the sidewalk. A riot call was turned in to the Hudson avenue station and Policemen Edward Mee, Thomas Young, Walter Wagner, and James Madigan arrived. The crowd was so hostile the policemen finally drew revolvers.

2 FACULTY MEN ARE SUSPENDED AFTER RUM RAID

Nebraska Student Paper Jeers at Prohibition.

Lincoln, Neb., Feb. 24.—[Special.]—L. C. Wimberly, professor of English at the University of Nebraska, and N. E. Eliason, instructor in the same department, today were suspended until Sept. 1 as the aftermath of a raid on an all-university party in the Nebraska Coliseum Feb. 13 at which liquor was found.

Dr. E. A. Burnett, chancellor of the state university, announced the disciplinary action voted by the board of regents.

The announcement brought grumbles of dissatisfaction from the student body. The student controlled Daily Nebraskan in commenting editorially on the suspension jeered at prohibition. Nebraska is known as one of the driest states, although locally its citizens make no claim to eclipse the aridity of the neighboring state of Kansas, but point proudly that their representatives vote just as dry in congress.

Paints "Hypocritical Horror."

"Dat old debil public has been satisfied," the editorial said. "He is licking his chops with glee and raising his hands high in hypocritical horror. Even now he is casting about with his bloodshot eyes for a new victim. . . . He is made up of thousands of cowardly parts and gains his courage from the fact that he is large and therefore not responsible."

Prof. Wimberly and Mr. Eliason were chaperons at the function in the Coliseum. Before the board of regents Tuesday they said that they had just discovered the liquor and were debating what course to pursue when the raiders broke in.

The raiders said the entire party, which included several women, were under arrest. Later all but Alan Williams, to whom the liquor was alleged to have belonged, were dismissed. Williams' case is pending.

May Ask Reinstatement.

Williams is no longer a student, but is business manager of the Prairie Schooner, "the voice of middle western culture," a publication which is partly subsidized by the university. Prof. Wimberly is editor of the publication and will continue in that position despite the suspension. While in school Williams was a leader of nonfraternity students. His group sponsored the function.

Students talked of circulating petitions for reinstatement of the suspended men, particularly Prof. Wimberly, who is the son of a minister and one of the most popular faculty members.

TUNNEL COMPANY AND CITY RENEW DEBATE ON NEW FRANCHISE

Negotiations for a renewal of the franchise of the Chicago Tunnel company, which expired three years ago, were renewed yesterday by the local transportation and gas, oil, and electricity committees of the city council, sitting jointly.

The committee held a hearing at which a number of business men testified regarding the value of the tunnel system under the downtown district to their companies. The committee was told that stoppage of the tunnel service for the transportation of merchandise, coal, and refuse would put 5,000 more trucks into the loop daily, and create a traffic snarl of huge proportions.

The aldermen will ride through the tunnels tomorrow morning on an inspection trip and will meet again Tuesday to discuss a franchise ordinance which has been drafted by the corporation counsel's office.

RANDOLPH BACKS BRUNDAGE; DENY DENEEN SUPPORT

Former Head of Trade Group Tells Views.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Robert Isham Randolph, former president of the Chicago Association of Commerce and head of the "secret six," issued a statement yesterday warmly indorsing the candidacy of Edward J. Brundage for the Republican nomination for governor.

ROBT. I. RANDOLPH

In his utterance, Randolph declared that he is for Brundage in the primary and that if some other Republican is nominated — the other prominent candidates being Omer N. Custer, Attorney General Carlstrom and William H. Malone—he will support the Democratic nominee in November.

Randolph a Deneen Man.

Politically, Randolph has been associated with the Deneen group for years and has been a candidate on its ticket. His coming out for Brundage led to reports that this group as an organization might indorse Brundage, but inquiry in the high places brought a response that action of this character will not be considered for another two weeks and a hint that an indorsement is considered unlikely.

However, there was an undenied report that there may be a hook-up between Brundage and John E. Northup, first assistant state's attorney, who has announced his candidacy for attorney general.

"I am going to vote in the Republican primary for Edward J. Brundage for governor of Illinois," read the Randolph statement, "because I believe that he is money honest and intellectually honest; that he has the courage and ability to restore government in Illinois and aid in the restoration of government in the distressed cities and counties of the state.

Will Be for Remapping.

"I shall vote for him because I believe that he will support the constitution of the state of Illinois and use his influence to give proportionate representation to Cook county in the legislature; that he will declare himself squarely on all questions of public policy and not pussyfoot or temporize with these questions as all other candidates have.

"I am for him because I believe he will not stultify himself by bidding for the support of the questionable elements and factions in the party and that he will continue the fight against official corruption that he waged so fearlessly and ably in the prosecution of the Small interest suits.

"His candidacy offers the only leadership that I care to follow in the present emergency, and if he is not nominated I shall have to vote for a Democrat, any Democrat, in November."

No Cermak-Igoe Peace.

Mayor Cermak's departure for Hot Springs, Ark., where he will undergo a week's rest cure, put an end to a fairly general belief that there might be efforts to effect a reconciliation between the regular organization and Michael L. Igoe, candidate for governor, before the last day for withdrawals from the state ticket next Saturday.

Before leaving, Mayor Cermak indicated he would not take the initiative in any movement for harmony which might save a bitter primary battle that would have its effect on the November election. He said he was willing to talk to Igoe if the candidate had some proposal to offer, but implied that he would not be loath to see the Democrats kept in their own primary by a battle over the nominations.

In the meantime reports of fairly complete understandings between Igoe and at least two other candidates for state office—Representative Truman A. Snell of Carlinville for attorney general and Scott W. Lucas of Havana for United States senator—were verified and there were hints that similar alliances with other candidates may be developed.

Banker's Name Mentioned.

One candidate mentioned specifically in this group was T. B. McGrath Jr., an entry for the state auditorship. McGrath was president of the Mayfair State bank and, avoiding a possible crash, he closed it in time to pay off all the depositors in full.

Igoe spoke at noon before the Chicago Real Estate board and said that the responsibility for the present tax muddle lies on the shoulders of Gov. Emmerson and the state tax commission, and not upon the legislature.

Judge Michael Feinberg, candidate for the Republican nomination for state's attorney, will be the principal speaker at a massmeeting in the Erlanger theater this noon.

Brundage headquarters on the 18th floor of the Hotel La Salle will be opened with a reception between 1 and 3 p. m. on Saturday.

Pile Sufferers

Can You Answer These Questions?

Do you know why external remedies do not give quick and permanent relief?

Why cutting does not remove the cause?

Do you know the cause of Piles is internal?

That there is congestion of blood in the lower bowel—the veins flabby, the parts almost dead?

Do you know that there is a harmless internal remedy for piles discovered by Dr. Leonhardt and known as HEM-ROID that is guaranteed?

HEM-ROID banishes piles by removing the cause. It stimulates the circulation in the lower bowel—drives out the thick impure blood, heals and restores the affected parts.

Dr. Leonhardt's HEM-ROID has an almost unbelievable record of success right in this city. So why waste time on external remedies or worry about an operation when Walgreen's invite every Pile sufferer to try HEM-ROID with guarantee of money back if it does not end their Piles no matter how stubborn the case?

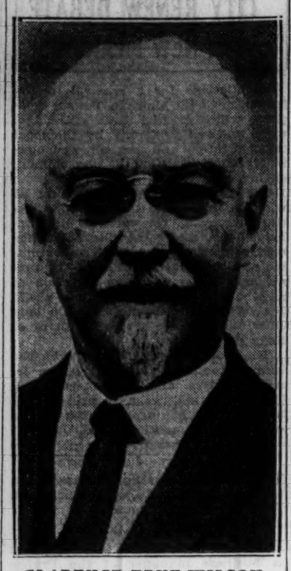
ARREST SOUGHT



CLARENCE TRUE WILSON.

Portland, Ore., Feb. 24.—[Special.]—A warrant charging Clarence True Wilson, prohibitionist and preacher, with reckless driving was issued by James A. Bain, deputy city attorney, after L. F. Welch, 891 East 29th street, signed a complaint against Wilson.

The warrant charged that a car operated by Wilson collided with a car driven by Welch and that Wilson drove at excessive speed before the accident and failed to stop within one block after the accident.

Wilson, who had been visiting at the home of his daughter here, left for California before the warrant was issued and will not be back in Portland for several months, according to information given Mr. Bain, so service of the warrant will have to wait his return. Mr. Bain made arrangements, making it unnecessary for Wilson to give bond when the warrant is served.

H. O. STONE SUIT RIDICULOUS, SAYS BANK ATTORNEY

Charges in a suit for an accounting and return of assets, filed at Waukegan in behalf of H. O. Stone & Co., defunct investment house, against the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company, were characterized as "perfectly ridiculous" by Attorney Carl Meyer, counsel for the bank, yesterday.

The bank purchased the entire assets of the company, which it held as collateral for loans, for $137,500 in a foreclosure sale before Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward on Dec. 30. The assets represented an investment by the public of $14,000,000.

The bill filed at Waukegan charged that all the loans had been paid off to the Continental bank, with interest. Attorney Meyer said this charge was false.

"The affairs of the company were carefully scrutinized by the receiver, the Chicago Title and Trust company, the auditors, the federal master in chancery and finally by Judge Woodward, who approved the sale," said Attorney Meyer. "That is all that need be said about that suit."

Attorney Harry Olsen said he had been incorrectly described as attorney for the plaintiff in the suit. "I am not the attorney for Leslie Needham [the plaintiff] and did not file the suit," he said, "but am attorney in the federal court for one of the defendants named in the Lake county suit."

OHIO DRY LEAGUE DECIDES TO STICK TO OLD TACTICS

Opposes Referendum on Prohibition.

Columbus, O., Feb. 24.—[Special.]—The opposition to a referendum as a means of settling the prohibition question is to be continued by the Ohio Anti-Saloon league, it was announced here today.

Anticipating that prohibition will be the most important issue of the May primaries and the November elections, the organization has laid plans to meet the rising tide of the "wet" element.

Gird for Battle.

This stand was brought out by S. P. McNaught, who yesterday was reelected superintendent of the Ohio league chapter, in an address before trustees of the board.

"Plans have been laid for the organizing of groups in each county—down to the last precinct—and to the last voter in that precinct—to make a fight for prohibition," McNaught said.

"And while there will be an intensive organization for the primaries and fall elections," he said, "greater dependence will be placed on the spreading of informative literature, especially to those who are voting for the first time.

Crisis in League's History.

"We appreciate the fact that prohibition is going through a serious period in its history and because of the onslaught of the wets a few of our friends, through lack of faith, vision and persistency, have a notion that we are going to lose prohibition, but I feel that so long as we have men and women who have dedicated their lives to the cause, we will continue to win," McNaught said.

COP FINDS CAT'S TAIL; CAT MAY KEEP ON YODELING

So far as Policeman William Tapscott is concerned, J. J. Cavanagh of 1358 Madison park, secretary of the Chicago Motor club, and Cavanagh's neighbors will continue to be annoyed by the wails of an anonymous black cat. Late last night Cavanagh summoned police aid to terminate the nuisance. Policeman Tapscott was assigned.

Together Tapscott and Cavanagh stole into the alley in the rear of East 51st street, where the wails were thought to emanate. "I don't hear a thing," announced Tapscott after a while. Just then there was a screech; Tapscott jumped. A black object whizzed past him. It was the cat. Tapscott had stepped on its tail.

SERVING OF 'SETUPS' NO RUM VIOLATION, OHIO HIGH COURT FINDS

Columbus, O., Feb. 24.—[Special.]—The mere supplying of "setups," more universally known as ginger ale and cracked ice, to drinkers does not constitute a violation of the prohibition act, the Ohio State Supreme court ruled today.

The court refused to admit for review the case of A. W. Smith, operator of a roadhouse near Akron.

Smith was arrested when liquor was found in the possession of guests at his establishment, and while he denied ownership of the liquor, he readily admitted furnishing the cracked ice and ginger ale.

He was subsequently found guilty by the local and Common Pleas courts, but the Court of Appeals reversed the decision on the grounds that the mere act of serving "setups" did not constitute a violation of the national prohibition act, so long as the accused did not do anything directly contributing to or assisting in the illegal possession.

According to the ruling the Supreme court is not empowered to review evidence in a case, but only to determine if the legal rules were complied with.

STATE CHARGES INTIMIDATION IN BOMBING CASE

A charge that a prosecuting witness had been intimidated in the case against Harry Karg, alias John Hennessey, accused of tossing a stench bomb in the Chateau ballroom, at Broadway and Grace streets, on Jan. 21, was made yesterday by Assistant State's Attorney Donald Thompson in the Felony court. Judge James F. Fardy continued the case to March 4.

The missing witness is Carleton E. Fox, 823 Sheridan road, owner of the ballroom. Thompson told Judge Fardy that he had received information that Fox is out of the city and plans to stay out until the trial is over. He asked for the continuance in order to conduct a search. George Watkins and Leonard Stahl, employés of the ballroom, the other two state's witnesses, appeared in court.

DRY RAIDERS HELD INCOMPETENT AS EXPERTS ON BEER

Indiana Ruling May Alter U. S. Procedure.

South Bend, Ind., Feb. 24.—[Special.]—Prohibition enforcement methods in northern Indiana were dealt a severe blow by Federal Judge Thomas W. Slick in United States District court today when he ruled government agents, unless they can qualify as expert witnesses, are not competent to testify by taste alone that beer purchased and imbibed in line of duty is intoxicating.

As a result of the ruling, made through an objection raised by Walter R. Arnold, defense counsel, the district attorney's staff was forced to move for dismissal of a case against Frank Craig, Mishawaka.

In his ruling Judge Slick applied the decision of the late Judge Francis E. Baker of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, which was handed down in 1921 in the case of Thomas Berry.

The ramifications of Judge Slick's ruling are far reaching. It may require revamping of the entire procedure of federal prohibition agents. It will probably preclude issuance of search warrants based upon an agent's purchase and consumption of beer unless he can qualify as an expert or can manage to obtain a sample of beer for chemical analysis.

Asked what he would consider an expert witness, Judge Slick replied: "A brewmaster."

Leadership and Appearance

Men of outstanding leadership reflect distinction not only by their ability but by their character of dress. While clothes do not make the man, they add materially to appearance, and the matter of appearance concerns every man of prominence. Mass production so limits the possibility of individuality in dress that those who desire distinctiveness find it preferable to patronize the custom shop, where they may give expression to their personal ideas in exclusive selections.

With us, each patron is a distinct type and we are prepared to capably carry out their most exacting demands in Shirts, Neckwear, Robes and other unusual Requisites. Intelligent understanding of individual requirements has won for us a notable patronage in our four Shops—New York, Chicago, London and Paris. Our prices are now lower.

What is the most important consideration in buying automobile insurance?

Financial stability is the most important consideration in the purchase of insurance. As a prudent motorist, this year you will carefully investigate the financial standing of the concern carrying your automobile insurance. In the easy-come-easy-go days many motorists neglected this precaution. Today, however, the fear of a judgment that would sweep away car, savings and home, will prompt a greater number of motorists to use precaution in the selection of their automobile insurance.

Your investigation will prove to you that in addition to financial stability, the Inter-Insurance Exchange of the Chicago Motor Club provides you with special features such as the valued form contract, coverage on accessories without additional charge, and cash savings.

Last year the "exchange" returned to subscribers in cash, $816,473.76, an amount larger than the cash return in any previous year. The auditors' statement prepared by William C. Kirby & Company follows:

PLANT HAS JOBS, TOWN HAS IDLE; STATE BARRIER

Whole City Pleads for Night Shift Permit.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Madison, Wis., Feb. 24.—[Special.]—The city of Beaver Dam pleaded with the state industrial commission today to permit the Bear Brand Hosiery company, its leading industry, to absorb 150 of its unemployed by putting on a night shift of women workers, but the session broke up with intimations that the commission order would stand unchanged.

The commission has been operating on a policy against night work for women since before the world war and recently turned down pleas from seven manufacturers asking that night shifts of women be permitted. Every activity in Beaver Dam was represented today in the delegation that asked the commission for a modification of the order.

Ruling Affects 1,000 Jobs.

Circuit Judge C. M. Davison, who led the delegation to Madison, declared that the refusal to permit night work by women deprived citizens of about 1,000 jobs, and he said that the proposed night shift hours, from 6 to 10, were neither harmful to health or morals.

The Bear Brand plant at Beaver Dam now employs 365 workers, representing a full crew for six days a week, Judge Davison said. He said the Beaver Dam plant might close entirely unless the labor law is modified, and said that even now many of the company's orders are being filled at the Kankakee, Ill., plant.

"The only question is whether the orders are to be filled at Kankakee, Ill., or at Beaver Dam," he said. He added that the company is not hampered by Wisconsin's restrictions at Kankakee.

Means $93,000 in Wages.

The city of 10,000 now has 350 unemployed, and a change in the night work prohibition would mean $93,000 more in wages for Beaver Dam, the judge explained.

Wisconsin women are well able to take care of themselves, Judge Davison said, in attacking the commission's order.

"Women of Wisconsin need no guidance of any man or any law or any commission," Judge Davison declared. "Who is it that says women need supervision? It's vainglorious men. It reminds one of a polecat who admonishes a rabbit to lead a cleaner life."

Fred M. Wilcox, chairman of the commission, declared that any ruling by the commission would necessarily be of state-wide application and that the commission could not make an exception of Beaver Dam.

Asks Emergency Rule.

Senator Eugene Clifford, Juneau, a Democrat who supported La Follette legislation at the last session, also asked that the commission drop its night shift restrictions. He said he believed that a general order could be entered permitting factories which have orders beyond the day shift capacity of their plants to put on night shifts of women as an emergency measure.

Assemblyman Ira Burtis, Beaver Dam, announced that he is liquidating his manufacturing plant at Beaver Dam because he cannot stand competition from other states. He said that he has made a study of hosiery mills in Wisconsin and in Tennessee and that he has found that while the Phoenix plant at Milwaukee has lost money, the plants in the southern states have showed increased earnings.

Commissioner Wilcox asked if the difference in wages paid might not be a factor, and Burtis replied that he would not go into a discussion of wage rates because there was no sentiment among Wisconsin manufacturers to cut wages.

Calls Rule "Poor Law."

Mayor Rae Weaver said that if the girls of Beaver Dam could be given employment they could help parents meet their tax bills and save the family homes.

"It is a poor law that says you can't work but must starve when work is available," Mayor Weaver declared.

J. F. Malone, city attorney of Beaver Dam, presented to the commission a petition from the city council asking that a night shift be permitted for the Beaver Dam plant.

CHEMIST MAKES BEER FROM WINE; "NOT HALF BAD"

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BRINDISI, Italy, Feb. 24.—Dr. Rafael Fornaro, noted chemist of this city, today announced that he has discovered a formula to convert white wine into beer. Several connoisseurs who tried the beer today said it is "not half bad."

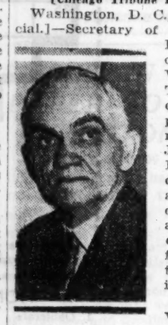
So far, Dr. Fornaro said, he has only been able to make the conversion with white wine, but hopes also to succeed with red wine.

His discovery, he declared, while not hurting the Italian beer industry, will be a life saver for Italian wine producers. The latter will now be able to supply grapes instead of hops for beer making. Hops have to be imported.

HURLEY HITS BACK AT CRITICISM FROM TWO CONGRESSMEN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 24.—[Special.]—Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley today charged Joseph W. Byrns [Dem., Tenn.], chairman of the house appropriations committee, and John J. Cochran [Dem., Mo.], chairman of the house audit and expenditures committee, with attempting to reduce the armed forces of the nation to a state of impotence.



REP. JOSEPH W. BYRNS.

The accusation was made in a public statement issued in reply to charges by the two Democratic leaders yesterday that the secretary of war and the secretary of the navy were lobbying against legislation amalgamating the army and navy into a single national defense department.

Secretary Hurley denied that the war department had been engaged in lobbying. He asserted that Representatives Byrns and Cochran apparently objected to army and navy officers expressing their honest opinions when called before congressional committees. He charged also that the two Democrats were attempting to make a political issue out of proper national defense.

WINS PROBATION AFTER SPREE.

Nick Nauert, 27 years old, who was arrested early yesterday when he indulged in a spree and smashed windows in his home at 2142 Warner avenue, was placed on six months' probation later in the day by Judge Edward B. Case.

Fraternity House Burglar Robs Seven and Gets $6

Lafayette, Ind., Feb. 24.—[Special.]—While seven students in a room at Beta Theta Pi fraternity house at Purdue were discussing Big Ten basketball prospects early today, Charles F. Clancey of Sioux Falls, S. D., one of the group, opened a closet door and out stepped a bandit. He lined the students up against the wall and robbed them, but got only $6 and Clancey's wrist watch. The burglar evidently had planned to ransack the house after the students went to bed, but when surprised he turned robber.

GOV. ROOSEVELT FIRES NEW YORK SHERIFF FARLEY

Rejects "Tin Box" as Big Income's Explanation.

New York, Feb. 24.—[Special.]—With the nation's political attention focused on him to see how he would handle an affair involving an important Tammany official, Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt today ordered Sheriff Thomas M. Farley of New York county removed from office.

In a 1,000 word decision, the governor said he was not satisfied with the explanation Farley gave in the public hearing here last week as to the source of his $396,000 bank deposits. Farley insisted much of the money came from a magic little "tin box" he had in his possession.

Gambling Charge Passed.

In reference to the charge of gambling in the Farley clubhouse the governor said that they concerned actions three years prior to his election as sheriff and that it is presumed by him that the electorate knew all about it. The governor therefore deemed it unnecessary to pass on this charge.

The governor dismissed the charge that Farley willfully refused to testify before a subcommittee of the Hofstadter committee on the grounds that he acted on advice of counsel and that the legality of secret legislative investigations has not been definitely upheld.

The governor said he was not impressed by the charge that Farley employed inefficient subordinates, and that he did not find the testimony that the sheriff himself was unqualified sufficient to justify removal.

On the charge of appropriating to his own use interest on funds left in his custody the governor said that this question rests to a degree on a determination of the courts.

Source of Income Hidden.

The governor also held that "Farley has not complied with the spirit as the letter of the rule which should guide public officers," that rule being one the governor laid down himself; that public officers should be ready at any time to explain fully and satisfactorily the source of their incomes.

Farley is the first Tammany leader and the first public officer to be removed as a result of the Hofstadter legislative committee's investigation of the New York City administration.

The political reaction to the decision is nation-wide because of the prominence of Gov. Roosevelt as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for President and the strained relations which are sure to result between the governor and Tammany Hall. An open break is not expected at this time, although there is evident a strong feeling of resentment against the governor among members of the Tammany organization. Many believe that a break may be the ultimate result.

BOY'S NAME CHANGED TO 'MICKEY M'GUIRE'; FONTAINE FOX SUES

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 24.—[Special.]—Suit was begun in Superior court today in which Fontaine Fox, newspaper cartoonist, seeks to restrain 11 year old Joseph Yule Jr., motion picture actor, from using the name Mickey McGuire as his real name.

Fox asserts "Mickey McGuire" is the name of one of his newspaper cartoon characters and that for a time young Yule appeared in the movies with Fox' consent, in films depicting the cartoon character. Since that time, Fox contends, the boy changed his employment and went through legal proceedings which granted him a lawful right to the name McGuire.

His mother, Mrs. Nell Yule, at the same time assumed the name Mrs. Nell McGuire. Fox contends these proceedings were conducted without due notice to or permission from him, and were undertaken for the sole purpose of capitalizing on popularity of Fox' brain child.

ILLINOIS GAS TAX FOR 1931 TOTALS OVER 30 MILLION

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 24.—[Special.]—Director Kinney of the department of finance announced today that the collections from the gasoline tax for the last half of 1931 were $16,505,508, making a total of $30,495,596 for the year.

The finance director also announced the allotment to counties of their 1 cent portion of the collections of the last half of 1931. This fund totaled $5,148,994, and is apportioned in relation to last year's motor license fees paid in the various counties.

Cook county, with the largest registration of the state, received $2,387,043 on the state treasure's ledger, against which the county can bill the state for road building. The allotments to other metropolitan counties are as follows: Kane, $104,500; Lake, $98,197; Du Page, $79,392, and Will, $78,482.

This is the first Turkish naval order which has been given to British shipyards since the war.

CHARGE MOODY INSTITUTE BROKE FAITH WITH CITY

Attorneys Criticize Failure to Move Buildings.

Attorneys for the city criticized the Moody Bible institute yesterday, charging that it has failed to keep an agreement to move its buildings in North La Salle street back to the new building line fixed when the thoroughfare was widened. The resulting narrow sidewalks in front of the institute buildings have been called a menace to the safety of pedestrians by city engineers.

Until officials of the institute conform to the agreement, which was written by the previous city administration at the time the institute was given an increased award for land taken in the street widening, the city intends to refuse payment of moneys due to the institute, it was announced.

Delay Final Settlement.

"We have taken the position," said Joseph F. Grossman, assistant corporation counsel, "that the institute should remove its obstructing buildings before we will enter into further negotiations for settlement of the institute's claims.

"Our position is based on the institute's agreement to surrender its property and move back its buildings when the city had paid the amount of the original award given to the institute by the court.

Extra Award Claimed.

"The city has paid that amount. Now the institute is claiming $350,000 extra award allowed by the previous administration, and also $266,162 for damages. We will not confer with them about these items until the buildings are moved."

In reply to a query whether the city has the authority to move the buildings and charge the expense to the institute, Mr. Grossman answered that offhand he doubted the city's power to take that action.

CANADA DEMANDS CHICAGO REDUCE LAKE DIVERSION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 24.—With Canada and the United States nearing an agreement with respect to the St. Lawrence seaway development, two of Canada's conditions became known here today. They are:

1. Because of the American senate's rejection of the sockeye salmon treaty affecting the Pacific, the treaty respecting further diversion of Niagara falls waters for power purposes, and also America's failure to ratify the treaty of Versailles, Canada's parliament will not ratify any St. Lawrence waterway treaty until after it has received the approval of the United States senate.

2. Canada insists upon inclusion in the agreement direction to the Chicago sanitary commission for progressive reduction of the quantity of water being diverted from Lake Michigan.

INDICTED

DUNCAN RENALDO.

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 24.—[Special.]—The federal grand jury today indicted Duncan Renaldo, film actor and star in "Trader Horn," on a charge of making false statements on a passport. The indictment charges Renaldo is a Rumanian, real name being Vasile Dumitri Dughieanas, and that he was not a citizen of the United States, born in Camden, N. J., as he stated when taking out papers to leave the United States to appear in the "Trader Horn" picture when it was made in Africa in 1929.

LLOYD GEORGE IS ACQUITTED; FREE TO TAKE HIS SEAT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 24.—A technical violation of the corrupt and illegal practices act, which prevented David Lloyd George from taking his seat in the house of commons since he recovered from his illness, was erased from the wartime prime minister's record by Judge Henry A. McCardie of the king's bench division today.

Lloyd George had neglected to file a personal declaration of expenses for the October general election, as provided by the act, and thereby laid himself open to prosecution and a fine of £100 [about $348]. Judge McCardie declared he was satisfied that the omission was due to illness and inadvertance.

Lloyd George's election agent had filed a statement, but a personal declaration also is required.

Scaramuzzo Raid Captive Gets U. S. Prison Term

Federal Judge John P. Barnes yesterday found Silvio Belgivello, 39 years old, guilty of possessing equipment for the manufacture of counterfeit money, and sentenced him to five years in the Leavenworth penitentiary. The case against Belgivello grew out of a raid last November at 604 Blue Island avenue, in which Louis Scaramuzzo, 41 years old, was arrested. In the place was found 64 revolvers with their numbers erased. Scaramuzzo has been sentenced to serve a year in the Bridewell for possession of guns with defaced numbers.

MARY MULHERN SUES PICKFORD FOR A DIVORCE

Bases Action on Cruelty Charges.

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 24.—[Special.]—Mary Mulhern, New York show girl and dancer, filed an action for divorce from Jack Pickford today in which she asserts that life with Mary Pickford's brother became unlivable because of his constant nagging, accusations and sulkiness.

She asserts that she was compelled to dodge behind trees and bushes to avoid her husband after she fled one household quarrel, and was forced to beg money from a stranger on the street to get to the home and protection of friends.

Her papers accuse Pickord under three names: Jack Pickford, John Pickford and John Smith. Miss Mulhern's attorney refused to divulge the amount of property settlement which Pickford and his sister yesterday agreed to give Miss Mulhern.

Miss Mulhern married Pickford at Monterey, Cal., in August, 1930. They separated here on Feb. 15.

The misappropriation is alleged to have taken place last Nov. 24. Mindlin was held in bonds of $2,000 for examination on March 9. Although Mindlin's attorney said the charge was baseless and that his client would fight extradition, Chief Schoemaker said he would be returned here.

HAPPY CHICAGO LADY LOSES 12 Pounds of FAT

Overjoyed Chicago Woman Wins Reduction in Weight With New Battle Creek Treatment. Regains Youthful Figure, Feels—Oh So Light and Full of Pep.

Suppose you weighed 168 pounds, and every time you looked in a mirror you were discouraged as you gazed upon a huge double chin, heavy arms and legs, large hips and bust.

And suppose this over-fat condition made you too heavy for your own feet—until you felt constantly all dragged out, stomach upset, gas pains that made you cry out with pain.

And then you tried one thing after another—and you're all ready to give up in despair.

Such was the dilemma of Mrs. Bessie Helstrom, 6109 Kenwood Ave., Chicago, Illinois. Her druggist recommended Bonkora to her, which he knew to be the one safe, natural way to take off excess poundage by cleansing wastes from the intestines and removing retained moisture from fatty tissues. But let her tell her story:

"Ever since girlhood, no matter what I tried, I kept getting heavier. Imagine my supreme joy when I started to lose fat as soon as I began the Bonkora treatment. Besides, I used to suffer from gas, bloat, constipation and indigestion. I couldn't walk up or down stairs without getting dizzy spells and when I lay down my heart palpitated so badly I sometimes thought I would die. Now all those troubles have disappeared. Before I took Bonkora I weighed 168 pounds; now I am down to 156. A loss of 12 pounds in five weeks and without any special diet. I can wear dresses 2 sizes smaller, for I have lost 4 inches in both bust and waist, and 3 inches in the hips. My youthful enthusiasm, energy, and vitality have been restored. I feel like a new woman. I am so grateful and happy I want everybody to know how Bonkora takes off unwanted fat and makes you look younger."

You may want to lose more or less than 12 pounds. But if you have excess fat you can lose it in the famous "3 easy stages," as shown in this picture. For the next week before meals, take a little Bonkora, the new Battle Creek treatment, in half a glass of water. No need to starve. Eat as much as you want. Avoid fatty meats and starchy foods. The big secret is selecting for each meal the proper combination of foods that do not clog the system and turn to fat. An almost endless choice of correct combinations of foods you probably like best furnished free.

Bonkora, the safe and effective method to reduce—recently perfected by a skilled chemist—contains only the choicest and most efficacious medicaments of Nature. No thyroid or other drug that may jeopardize your health.

Simply get a bottle of Bonkora, the new Battle Creek treatment, at Walgreen's today—unhealthy fat will quickly disappear and with bloat, gas, and other stomach ills. You'll feel younger; yes, you'll look younger with those bright eyes and that clear skin and stunning, youthful figure which only perfect health can impart.

DON'T MAKE WAR RULES; DISARM! ARMS MEET TOLD

Henderson Orders Work Begun at Geneva.

BY JAY ALLEN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, Feb. 24.—Arthur Henderson, president of the disarmament conference, today closed the period of general discussion, which had entered its third week.

ARTHUR HENDERSON.

Speaking with great solemnity and with something of his old vigor, the former British foreign secretary pointed to "the wide agreement that already exists on certain fundamental principles." He mentioned specifically the points on which almost everybody agrees on humanizing war, and pointed to the tendency to limit offensive armament.

He added that "it would be a tragic thing if, having given up the right of war by the pact of Paris, this conference should now settle down to make rules by which future wars should be conducted.

"Task Looms Large."

"The task of the conference as it appears to me at the end of the general discussion," he said, "looms very large. The labors of the general commission and of the various technical commissions will be long and difficult."

Henderson remarked, however, that there is generally a "more hopeful" atmosphere. Reminding the conference again of the world's hopes and expectations for its success, he said:

"One class has had no spokesmen here. I mean the children of the world. Many more children's lives were sacrificed by the great war than men's, due to slow starvation and all its consequences, such as tuberculosis, rickets, and paralysis of vital forces."

The conference today boiled itself down into a smaller room, where its two first achievements were to postpone the Franco-German clash which is due to develop sooner or later and to prepare the slides down which the soviet proposal of "general and immediate total disarmament" will assuredly go tomorrow.

Isolates Bolsheviks.

Advancing from the stage of general discussion into a stage of more discussion, that if less general will be more complex, the conference became "the conference commission" until further notice.

After a morning of conversations between the British, French and Germans, Sir John Simon, British foreign minister, in a most benevolent manner performed a two-edged trick.

He proposed "that the general commission resolve to carry on its discussions within the framework of the draft disarmament convention, full liberty being reserved to all delegations to develop their own proposals in subsequent debate and move their amendments in the form of modifications, additions and omissions at the appropriate point."

This was the formula by which the Germans consented to drop their opposition to the draft convention as drawn up in 1930 as the "basis" for discussion and to fight out later their equality in disarmament plan. This accord left the soviets standing alone with their total disarmament plan in opposition to the draft convention.

The Russian situation will be voted on tomorrow, when it will likely be decided that the soviet proposal has no place in the discussions of a draft convention which deals only with the limitation and reduction of armaments.

Maxim Litvinov, soviet commissar of foreign affairs, has no illusions about the fate of the Russian project. "It is not utopian," he said in presenting it, "but you'll make it so by turning it down." That is why he has a second plan on the table of disarmament over a period of years as well as concrete proposals to ban offensive armaments.

"Dog Fight" Avoided.

A regular Franco-German "dog fight" was expected today when the German plan, sponsored by Rudolf Nadolny, German ambassador to Turkey, was discussed. Why an armistice was declared is not known unless the French decided that harsh words here would give Adolf Hitler, German National Socialist leader, ammunition to use against Heinrich Bruening, German chancellor. Andre Tardieu, French premier, told Nadolny that if his proposals were presented in opposition to the draft convention, instead of piecemeal as arranged today, the naval clauses alone would weigh heavily against them.

The question of disarmament equality, if it does not come up in general political debate, will be raised when article 53 of the draft, prescribing with respect to existing treaties, comes up.

When Nadolny today stiffly reminded the conference that many of the Germans' proposals are not aimed to amend but to supplant part of the draft, Tardieu quickly cut in that France will have a lot to say before anything like that can take place.

Agree on Draft as Basis.

Everybody agreed that reviving what until today was considered an unlucky draft is the most practical method. Hugh S. Gibson, chief American delegate, in giving his blessing, agreed with Sir John Simon that the draft as a framework left the door open to all proposals, in fact "everything devised by the ingenuity of man."

Many see today's developments as further evidence of the conference's desire to talk in such a manner as not to graze the vital issues until there is a fairer wind.

While the conference met today, Swiss police broke clubs over the heads of a thousand Socialists rioting in another part of Geneva in protest against Swiss "militarism."

Girl Scout Wins Trip to Ireland

Golden Eaglet

Patricia Caron, 18 years old, a Girl Scout of troop No. 87, Convent of the Sacred Heart, was the first of eight Girl Scouts from all sections of the country to be named to attend the international Girl Scout and Girl Guide encampment in Ireland from June 17 to 28, it was announced yesterday. The encampment will be held on the estate of Lady Powerscourt, near Dublin. The Scouts will also stay at Camp Foxleafe, London, a camp given to the international Girl Scout movement by Princess Mary of England.

Patricia is a golden eaglet and was chosen on merit, Mrs. Frederick Edey, national president of the Girl Scouts, and Miss Josephine Schain, national director, said. Both women came to Chicago from New York to notify her. Patricia is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. J. Caron, 442 Wellington avenue, and is in her senior high school year at the convent.

TRY TO END LIVES IN CELLS.

Maney S. Crutcher, 35 years old, and Harry C. Kinneld, 38 years old, both of 947 West Madison street, tried to kill themselves by slashing their wrists yesterday in adjoining cells at the Des Plaines street station.

$160,000 IN TAX PAPER SOLD IN EVANSTON DRIVE

A total of $160,000 in 1931 tax anticipation warrants has been sold thus far in Evanston's $750,000 warrant sale drive, it was announced last night.

The drive was started three weeks ago in an effort to raise enough money to keep Evanston's two school districts and high school running until June. The amount required was set at $750,000, and predictions were made at the time that unless the goal was achieved a tieup of school affairs would result.

Officials handling the campaign said last night that they were disappointed in the results. They pointed out that the efforts of 300 campaigners had been employed to sell the $160,000 in warrants. A survey showed, they said, that only 6 per cent of potential taxpayers had subscribed to the drive.

Steals Ride on His Stolen Cab and Captures Robber

William Wagner, 5492 University avenue, clung to the spare tire of his taxicab, which a bandit took from him early yesterday, and when the gunman got out of the cab in an alley near Halsted and Center streets, Wagner jumped on him, took his revolver and turned him over to the police. The bandit identified himself as George Hansen, 32 years old, 3130 Fullerton avenue.

SOCIALISTS BACK VON HINDENBURG FOR PRESIDENT

Party Reverses Stand in Former Election.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Feb. 24.—"Socialists will vote for Paul von Hindenburg for president," Dr. Rudolph Breitscheid, Socialist leader, announced in the reichstag today.

"Seven years ago this party, the strongest in Germany, was against him. We feared he would not protect the republican constitution. We were agreeably mistaken. He is not in favor of socialism, but he stands for protection of the constitution. Since Von Hindenburg alone can avert the threatening reign of Fascism we must elect him."

Deals with Hitlerites.

Lieut. Gen. Wilhelm Groener, war minister, started the reichstag's day with a move to put the Hitlerites in their place. He branded Deputy Joseph Goebbels, one of Adolf Hitler's lieutenants, who was excluded from yesterday's session because he insulted Von Hindenburg, as a "man who knew war only by hearsay."

In the name of the majority of Germans, Groener paid tribute to Von Hindenburg as the "victor of Tannenberg, who offered his services to the country in 1914 and remained at his post when everything broke down in 1918."

Answering charges that the reichswehr was favoring enlistment of men belonging to Hitler's National Socialist party, Groener declared, "The reichswehr's aim is to uphold the German constitution. To protect it the state will make use of all means of power at its disposal—so will the reichswehr."

Twice the president of the reichstag adjourned the meeting to avert fist fights, Hitlerites and Socialists charging into each other after exchanging insults.

DARROW ASKED TO HELP DEFEND MRS. FORTESCUE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HONOLULU, Feb. 24.—Clarence Darrow, noted criminal lawyer of Chicago, has been asked to lead in the defense of Mrs. Granville Fortescue, Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, and two seamen against second degree murder charges in their trial set for March 10, according to reports here today. Mrs. Fortescue, Lieut. Massie, and the sailors are accused of killing Joe Kahahawai, who was tried for the raping of Lieut. Massie's wife.

Mr. Darrow was not in Chicago last night and his partners said they did not know anything about the Honolulu report. A New York dispatch said Dudley Field Malone had also been invited to aid the Fortescue defense.

BRITAIN BEGINS PRUNING OF ITS ANNUAL BUDGET

Slashes $26,400,000 Off Civil Service Funds.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 24.—Taxpayers of Great Britain who are carrying the heaviest load in modern times saw today the first evidences of governmental economies which it is hoped will lighten the burden of the next budget to be introduced in April.

Estimates of the civil service and revenue departments on which the budget will be partly based were issued today and show a reduction of 7,586,660 pounds sterling [about $26,400,000].

[The pound today is quoted at $3.4825 American exchange, and a year ago was $4.8575.]

The total figures this year are £402,028,105 against £409,614,765 in 1931.

Actually the civil estimates are better than £9,000,000 down, but the revenue department is asking for more. The chief cuts in the civil estimates are: Board of education nearly £6,500,000; road fund, £4,250,000; ministry of pensions, £2,795,000. The department, however, is demanding increased expenditures over last year, such as an addition of £5,892,000 for the ministry of labor, an extra £1,544,000 for old age pensions and another million pounds for widows and orphans and old age contributory pensions.

The cost of royal palaces, parks and pleasure gardens is cut. Palaces cost £87,000 last year, but will get £69,900 this year. In 1931 parks cost £220,000 and in 1932 will cost £188,000.

MEXICO REOPENS CHURCHES CLOSED FOR EIGHT WEEKS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 24.—Several churches will resume services tomorrow after eight weeks of suspension because of the promulgation of the recently passed law limiting the number of priests in the federal district. Among them will be the Basilica at Guadalupe; the Home of Our Lady of Guadalupe, the patroness of the Mexican people, and probably the Mexico City cathedral, and El Sagrario Metropolitano, the latter the parish church of Mexico City.

Today all the 25 churches permitted in the federal district had been assigned priests by the government and the priests had been accepted by the archbishop, Pascual Diaz, head of the Catholic church in Mexico.

Archbishop Diaz today issued a pastoral letter to the faithful in which he enjoined them to observe the strictest penance during the Lenten season as a protest against the iniquity of the world.

Mothers, Mix This At Home for a Bad Cough

You'll be pleasantly surprised when you make up this simple home mixture and try it for a distressing cough due to a cold. It takes but a moment to mix, costs little, and saves money, but it can be depended upon to give quick and lasting relief.

Get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist. Pour this into a pint bottle; then fill it with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. The full pint thus made costs no more than a small bottle of ready-made medicine, yet it is much more effective. It is pure, keeps perfectly and children love its pleasant taste.

This simple remedy has a remarkable three-fold action. It goes right to the seat of trouble, loosens the germ-laden phlegm, and soothes away the inflammation. Part of the medicine is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly upon the bronchial tubes and thus helps inwardly to throw off the whole trouble with surprising ease.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest medicinal agents for severe coughs and bronchial irritations.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

HOW NOT TO CUT COSTS.

Representative John J. Cochran, Democrat of Missouri in the national house, says that behind Mr. Hoover's requests for economies are his cabinet ministers—each plugging for his own appropriations. He mentioned the secretary of agriculture, who had prevented the elimination of dispensable items from his budget; Mr. Wilbur of the interior, who was stirring up newspapers to protest against reductions, particularly as affecting the public domain survey; Mr. Hurley of the war department, who was appealing to public sentiment to save the citizens' military training camps.

One may sympathize with Mr. Hurley and not with Mr. Wilbur and Mr. Hyde, or with any one against the other two, or with any one project against all others. The thing is illustrative of economy methods. It indicates the road which reductions must take. Each department and each group tries to save whatever it is interested in. They trade for support and nothing is touchable. Wherever the knife reaches it finds a defense. Theoretically the gentlemen will agree that reductions are necessary. Privately they will concede that the other fellow ought to take a cut. Together they are forced to stand against all cuts if any one of them is to keep what he wants.

When a government encounters such increasing deficits and decreasing in revenue as are in reality and prospect for the United States even desirable activities must stop. It is not enough that worthless enterprises be abandoned. The effect of having encouraged extensions of government into undesirable undertakings is that retrenchment, when it is forced, hits the good as well as the bad. That is the price of foolishness. Functions which might have been maintained if it had not been for waste in favorable years must suffer when revenue vanishes and increased taxation is impossible.

Mr. Garner has appointed a house economy committee which will try what the Democratic party, controlling the house, can do in retrenchment. The Democratic house has adhered to one of its pets. It has passed the $11,300,000 appropriation for Volstead enforcement, refusing to reduce it. We'll wait to see what the other Democratic ideas of economy may be. One might be to consult the taxpayers rather than the tax spenders.

SONG OF FAITH.

Without presuming to invade the field of Mr. Moore, this department would like to express its admiration for Mr. John Alden Carpenter's "Song of Faith" and for the spirit of its composer. Written for the celebration of the Washington bicentenary, Mr. Carpenter might have turned to those dramatic elements of Washington's and the nation's story which are the obvious materials of a patriotic celebration. He has all the equipment for an easy and flamboyant triumph of that sort. But Mr. Carpenter has done a far more difficult and in our opinion a nobler and more significant thing. To those who look beyond the dramatic scenario of our material accomplishment, Mr. Carpenter has chosen to speak with a fine eloquence and understanding of that deep and quiet stream of faith which flows under the surface of our material striving. Strangers seldom see that stream, but it sustains the American spirit through generations of trials and triumphs. Drums and trumpets may celebrate the crises of the nation's life, but the song of faith rising from the heart in quiet hours and places is stronger and more enduring.

The "Song of Faith" is the song of happy children and strong men, the song of motherhood looking into the long vista of the nation's destiny. Washington, who put away the sword and the scepter and went back in deep content to the fields he never forgot amidst the high business of war or state, would have understood it. In this hour of doubting and sacrifice, of struggle and tribulation, an American singer brings us this song of our faith, a song of the quiet hours which make the character of a people.

GET RID OF TRIMMERS.

Peoria is too substantial and important a community to be represented in congress by William E. Hull. It is entitled to a representative who knows his own mind, or, rather, whose mind its people know and can depend upon. Hull was formerly a distiller, but he voted for one of the most obnoxious of the laws devised by dry fanaticism, the notorious Jones five and ten law. Hull's latest flop was ostensibly to modification. He has been talking for 3.2 per cent beer, and last year cabled from Paris that the Republican party must have a modification plank in its platform. Hull ought to be unacceptable to both wets and drys. The drys he has deserted, at least apparently, because the tide is running against them. The wets know him for a deserter when the tide was running the other way. Neither, on the record, can rely upon him.

His opponent is of a different sort—Everett M. Dirksen of Pekin, who ran a strong race against Hull in 1930 and will run a stronger in 1932. Peoria indeed preferred him in 1930, and also Tazewell county. But Bureau, Marshall, Putnam and Stark counties pulled Hull through. Republicans need strong candidates and strong representatives in congress. Dirksen has not pussyfooted. He made his fight for modification in 1930 and no one doubts he will carry it on in congress if elected. Self-respecting Republicans throughout the state are sick of trimming and trimmers. There ought to be enough of such Republicans in the 16th district to overrule the Small-Hull machine and elect Dirksen.

THE PACIFISTS SEEM TO WANT WAR.

Sensible men have tried to warn the internationalists and pacifists that they are idiotically belligerent in demanding that the United States slap an embargo on trade with Japan as a coercive measure. The boycott is vested with moral worth to persons who are addicted to peace pacts and international conferences. It is a vent for the indignation with which the illusionists see their world upset and their theories routed. Senator Borah has his soft spots, but he has endeavored to subdue the enthusiasms which would start the United States upon these wild courses.

A boycott is a warlike measure. Regardless of its economic effect upon the nation adopting it as a policy, it is an invitation to retaliation, and inasmuch as trade relations have caused many wars it is an open door to warfare. A nation which breaks its commercial relations with another and tries to coerce it by starving its industries and its people should be prepared and ready to follow that up with coercion undertaken with its armed forces. In this case the American pacifists, true to tradition and form, demand that the United States step out alone with a gun to protect another country which would not be in the fix it now is if it had not become just what the pacifists want to make of their own country. The American pacifists would do just that.

THE SIMPLE LIFE IN COLLEGE.

The income of Yale university in 1932 will fall half a million dollars short of estimated expenditures, President Angell has announced. Accordingly expenditures are to be reduced by 10 per cent. As any one familiar with the affairs of American universities knows, Yale's financial troubles are by no means exceptional. Princeton, Columbia, Harvard, and Chicago are known to be feeling the pinch of depression. There is probably not a single endowed institution which has not suffered more or less, and most of the state institutions are also facing the problems of continuing their work on reduced incomes.

To college administrators the new poverty is alarming if not tragic, but to outsiders it will appear salutary. Money has been flowing to the colleges too freely. Much of it has been spent in building, which has added greatly to overhead costs without a proportional return in educational values. Notoriously, the universities have gone in for sumptuous building, and particularly for sumptuous living accommodations for students. A fairish college dormitory today offers at least as much in the way of personal comforts and luxuries as can be found in a good club.

The notion seems to have prevailed that marble pools and overstuffed chairs are good for a young man. Possibly so, but the traditions of the race are all to the contrary. Unless these traditions are wholly without foundation, simple living makes for virility. It places a premium on fortitude and emphasizes the lesson that if ease is desired it must be won by hard work.

The pampering of college students tends to implant in them a belief that luxury is theirs by divine right. The more firmly they hold to that notion the harder it will be for them to adjust themselves to daily living after graduation.

As Mr. Mencken recently observed, the royal road to entrance in "Who's Who" is birth in Vermont. That state has presented to the nation a wholly disproportionate share of its distinguished intellects. Of course, it may be only an accident that Vermont is also the state in which simplicity of living is probably more general than in any other state in the Union. It may be an accident, and again it may not. Of the five states which have contributed most to "Who's Who" three are New England states whose soils are so poor that luxuries are little known. If plain living makes strong men on Vermont hillsides, it may do no harm to college boys.

Editorial of the Day

HERE'S TO WINNERS AND LOSERS.

[The Peoria Transcript.]

So far as most Peoria fight fans are concerned, the glamour and excitement of the "Golden Gloves" boxing tournament has ended. With the finals Monday night, nothing more remained but to wish the eight winners the best of luck on Feb. 29, when, as the team from this part of central Illinois, they will compete in the regional eliminations in Chicago.

The "Golden Gloves" tournament was originated and promoted in the Peoria area by the sports department of the Transcript and the Journal. It was first staged two years ago. At that time the Y. M. C. A., despite its limited seating capacity, housed the show. Approximately 600 persons on each of two nights saw the youngsters batter each other for the coveted honor of representing their community in the midwestern finals. Last year ticket demands justified moving the show to the Shrine temple, but interest exceeded seating capacity, and S. R. O. signs were displayed nightly.

This year the show was moved into the largest available hall in the city, the Rialto theater. Again crowds were tremendous, and hundreds were turned away. Tournament officials, who are the sporting editors and staff of these newspapers and representatives of the American Athletic union, under whose supervision the bouts are staged, are now wondering where they will put next year's show.

The phenomenal growth of the tournament is gratifying to the Transcript and the Journal. But there is an even greater significance in popular reaction to it. Boxing in Illinois has endured many setbacks and criticism in the last half century. More recently, however, with the legalization of the professional sport, it has come into somewhat better repute. It is possible we are unduly enthusiastic over the game, yet we cherish the belief that amateur boxing will have a good effect upon boxing, and that if boys of the age of those who took part in the Golden Gloves shows become interested in the sport its reputation will be improved.

mister spiggs came home and said they couldn't go out to the bilgers over the week-end as they had planned because the old bus had gone flooey and he had put it in the repair shop and the man said it had to have new gaskets and the brake drums and a clutch and batteries and some more things. goodness said missus spiggs then i don't see why he can't get it fixed up by saturday afternoon. then he's got to lubricate the bus and grease all the spring leaves refit the clutch to the fly wheel fill the shock absorbers with oil and dress up the transmission shaft said mister spiggs reading from the list the repair man had given him. let's go without the end of the transmission shaft being dressed up said missus spiggs. we are just simple people and we shouldn't care whether the transmission shaft is dressed up or not.

women never understand anything about machinery said mister spiggs and it's no use my telling you any more what's needed to put the car back into A1 shape. but anyhow the bus being busted we can't go anywhere this sunday. maybe there is somebody else going out to the bilgers and we could ride with them suggested missus spiggs who was always good in thinking up things. no said mister spiggs i asked bilger and he said nobody else was coming out. if it wasn't sixty miles out there i'd have asked him to come in and get us. so i guess we stay home and listen to the radio.

oh shoot said missus spiggs. i hate to hear about bargains on sunday because the stores are all closed then and what's the use? and every time i'm trying to hunt up some good jazz music i always run into a preacher preaching and i just can't bear it.

it's tough luck said mister spiggs but without a bus of course there's nothing to do but stay home. missus spiggs thought a long time and then she said why not go on a train? and mister spiggs said by golly that's a grand idea. i never once thought of trains because i haven't rode on them for years and years not since we've had an auto. i used to go out to grandma's on the train when i was a little girl said missus spiggs and it was great fun. we would go to the station and buy tickets and get on the train and after it started the conductor would come around and take up the tickets and then the brakeman would holler out the names of each station where the train stopped.

it's nice clean sport said mister spiggs and i can remember when i was a boy my father used to take me on trips on the train and i would eat peanuts and go up and down the aisle to drink ice water in the tank at the end of the car. by george i had forgotten all about trains except to cross crossings carefully when i am driving the old bus. we used to go to my grandmother's on the train in summer time said missus spiggs and goodness we children were all so excited about it we would commence talking about going away on the choo-choo cars as we called them right after new year's and we never stopped until vacation time came in june and we got on the train. but for weeks before we started the house was all topsy-turvy. miss gimp who did all our family sewing would come every day and work on the new dresses for us girls to wear on the trains. oh the very mention of a train makes me excited yet.

same here said mister spiggs. i remember the train butcher that kept marching up and down the aisle selling apples and popcorn and chewing gum. he sold magazines but mostly the police gazette which the men used to buy when they thought the women passengers weren't looking or maybe they'd go out and stand on the platform and buy it out there. yessir trains were real exciting in the good old days. of course i haven't ridden on one for years. i guess the last time was when we went to niagara falls on our wedding trip. and you got a cinder in your eye and made an awful fuss about it said missus spiggs. yes said mister spiggs there was one trouble with trains you always got a cinder in your eye. but they're different now i understand. i remember some friend of mine who was telling me he had made a trip on a sleeping car and that nowdays they have the windows nailed shut so that the dirt can't come in and spoil the cushions. give me the old bus i say every time. i like to have lots of fresh air. but one thing nice about going on the train will be that we won't have any hitch hikers standing out in the middle of the road wiggling his thumb at us.

no indeed said missus spiggs they have to go up to the ticket window if they want to ride on the train and buy their tickets. that's a fine idea said mister spiggs. i don't like hitch hikers. i read just the other day of a hitch hiker who was picked up and given a ride by some nice kind driver and after a while the hitch hiker clouted the man over the bean and kicked him out of the machine and drove away with it and they never did catch him. oh they're just terrible said spiggs. why i heard of a lady hitch hiker who was being given a free ride by some auto driver down south somewhere and after he had gone fifteen or twenty miles found out she had the yellow fever or smallpox or something like that.

well said mister spiggs i read about a case worse than that. a man over in ohio felt sorry for a poor lone woman who was standing by the side of the road wriggling her thumb and he took her in and after fifteen or twenty miles he found out she had something worse than yellow fever or smallpox.

my goodness said missus spiggs what was it she had? twins said mister spiggs. heaven's sakes said missus spiggs those hitch hikers will do anything nowadays. you can just bet they don't ride with me said mister spiggs and that's one reason i'm glad to turn back to the days of my childhood and ride on the train again. of course there's the danger of them running off the track or having a collision with another train said missus spiggs. that's true said mister spiggs but there's danger in everything. a brick's liable to fall on you from the cornice of a building every time you walk down the street and you never know when you're going to get a new income tax bill.

just then the telephone bell rang and after missus spiggs answered it she found out that the bilgers had invited the sprucers out and the sprucers would stop and bring out the spiggses in their brand new sedan.

DIABETICS AND ARTICHOKES.

WHETHER Jerusalem artichokes can be eaten by diabetics continues to be a debated question. There are those who claim that not only are they a safe supply of carbohydrates for this large group of people, but even that they have some curative powers.

Drs. Stein, Longwell, and Lewis say there is no basis for this last claim. It is made only by people who have had experience with a single case, or who have been careless in their laboratory tests and observations. They think the opinion of any one who holds that Jerusalem artichokes have any prominent place in the regimen of a diabetic is not entitled to much consideration. On the other hand, they advocate allowing diabetics to eat a moderate amount of these artichokes in proper circumstances. Their opinion, midway between the extremes, is based on analyses and clinical experience.

The argument for allowing diabetics this vegetable is that the sugar it contains is known as inulin, and differs a good deal from the sugars used on the table. Analysis showed that artichokes that were gathered early and when not fully ripened did contain inulin. On the other hand, those that were left in the ground until they were fully matured contained other sugars, and were not so harmless.

Therefore, much depends on the artichokes, the place of growth, the time of year, and considerations of that sort. They found it possible to decide which artichokes to use, by a simple test. If the vegetable had a sweet taste it should not be used. If it tasted flat it could be. In this the vegetable does not differ from others, or from fruits.

Starch is built up by the plant as an immature product. It tends to change repeatedly until it becomes a fruit or vegetable sugar, on the one hand; or into cellulose or fiber, on the other. If used in several of these change periods it does not serve as a source of body sugar. This is the case with bran and soy beans and still other substances.

It is all right to give diabetics a moderate amount of artichokes, according to Drs. Stein, Longwell, and Lewis. It supplies variety of flavor that is acceptable, and the sugar it contains is handled as well as any other and, at times, a shade better. At that, it is best to pick those that are not sweet and have not been left in the ground to mature. Beyond this, artichokes have no place in the dietary of diabetics.

The trend of opinion now is towards better regulated but more liberal feeding of diabetics, and the use of this vegetable has a place in the new plan.

DANGER IN ASIATIC SERVICE.

Citizen writes: If our soldiers contracted flu in the camps during the world war, isn't it quite probable that soldiers could now bring to us from the far east some very terrible old world diseases—typhus fever, leprosy, etc.?

Could anything be done about a quarantine for all soldiers returning home on furlough, or at any time until passed by a board of doctors?

REPLY.

There is considerable danger that soldiers returning from China may bring us some new diseases. Communicable disease is one of the Four Horsemen that follows in the wake of war. Typhoid was widely spread after the civil war. Malaria and amebic dysentery, after the Spanish-American war. Just the relation of the world war to flu remains unsettled. However, the precautions taken with returning soldiers in 1919 were inadequate.

The United States public health service has been investigating far east diseases in America, and especially on the west coast, for ten years or more, and have a very considerable mass of information.

The two illustrations you select are not the best you might have chosen. We are already fairly well supplied with typhus and leprosy.

MANY CAUSES POSSIBLE.

A. O. S. writes: What is the probable cause of a feeling of dizziness in a man 47 years of age, weight 150 pounds, 5 feet 9 inches tall, with blood pressure of 135?

REPLY.

I can name some causes from which your physician might select yours. My guess as to which is probable in your case might mislead you. Among possible causes are eyestrain, middle ear disease, constipation, anemia, arterio sclerosis, and brain tumor.

CONTRACT MAY AUTHORIZE.

Mazomanie, Wis., Feb. 21.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I borrowed money from a finance company and have made six payments. Now I am out of work and unable to make any further payments, but am willing to when I can. Kindly advise what, according to law in Wisconsin, the finance company can do if payments are not kept up. My furniture was taken as security.

LOAN AND INJURY.

Chicago, Feb. 21.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. When a man loans money to another verbally and without a written agreement, can the lender collect or garnishee the borrower's wages?

2. When a man is injured while on the job for a railroad company in Illinois can the company have the settlement trial in another state, or must they have it in the state in which the accident occurred?

J. C.

1. Yes, by appropriate court proceedings.
2. Ordinarily the hearing would be in the state where the accident occurred.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

NOT AT CITY EXPENSE.

Chicago, Feb. 19.—[Friend of the People.]—There is a large dead tree between the sidewalk and street in front of my property. In the wind this morning a large branch fell, luckily without damage, but it is endangering my property and pedestrians. To whom should I apply to have it removed? H. B.

The forestry division of the city removes only dead and dangerous trees from the parkways. Our inspector reports that the tree mentioned is a live, sound, 40 inch poplar. If the owner desires to remove the tree himself we shall be glad to send him a free permit upon application.

CHINA-JAPAN WAR, 1894

TIENTSIN, Aug. 7.—A Chinese cruiser has captured a Japanese trading bark and taken it to Taku. All pilots have been warned officially that they must not guide Japanese vessels nor give them any information as to the waters and the coast.

LONDON, Aug. 7.—An extraordinary gazette has been issued containing a proclamation by the queen of Great Britain's neutrality in the war between China and Japan. There is also published in the gazette a letter from the earl of Kimberly to the lords of the admiralty setting forth the rules to be observed at the various British ports and harbors. A belligerent man of war must leave British waters within twenty-four hours after its arrival therein unless the weather or the necessity of taking on coal or provisions prevents. If a Chinese and a Japanese vessel are in a British port together an interval of twenty-four hours must elapse between the departure of the two vessels.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 7.—Although the United States neutrality laws forbid the enlistment of Americans for service in Japan, there is no way of preventing any one from accepting a commission in Japan's army or navy if he can get it, and Japan is seeking American officers. It is understood that Lieut. Richard Graham Davenport of the United States navy, who served nearly ten years in Japanese waters, has been offered the command of a man of war of the first class by the Japanese minister of war. If Lieut. Davenport can obtain a two years' leave of absence he may accept the position. It is pretty certain that any American with a military education and a good social record who can speak Japanese well enough to command troops will have no difficulty in obtaining a commission under the mikado.

Chinese that Russia is at war with Japan on account of Japan's treacherous attack on the Russian fleet. This proclamation is under six headings. The first warns the inhabitants that they must prevent the encroachments of Chinese on Russian territory; second, Russian and Chinese interests are declared to be identical; third, the people shall continue their occupations and treat the Russian troops with confidence; fourth, the railroad telegraphs are left to the protection of the people; fifth, the people are warned not to obey threats of the chunchus (bandits) who are the curse of Manchuria, but to assist the troops to exterminate them; and, sixth, the proclamation states that if the people antagonize the troops or show them hatred they will be exterminated without mercy. The proclamation makes an earnest appeal to the people for sympathy in the present crisis.

28 YEARS AGO TODAY

FEBRUARY 25, 1904.

LONDON.—"Another Merrimac episode, though unattended with the success which Americans had at Santiago," was the report which London discussed with its supper last night. At tea time it had just heard that four Japanese ships had been sunk at Port Arthur. By dinner hour this statement had received apparently semi-official confirmation. What happened was that Admiral Togo of the Japanese fleet attempted to "bottle up" the Russian fleet by employing four merchant ships filled with explosives and stone under convoy of torpedo boats. He planned to blow up the ships when they reached the designated points, the cargoes of stone then to form an impassable barrier. The Russian battleship Retvizan opened fire on the Japanese torpedo flotilla. The other Russian vessels and forts joined in. Two of the Japanese ships were sunk and the others were so badly injured they beached outside the harbor. The success of the Japanese effort is in doubt.

YINYOW.—Viceroy Alexieff has caused a proclamation to be issued throughout Manchuria notifying the

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

FEBRUARY 25, 1916.

WASHINGTON.—Threats of drastic action by the United States if the Teutonic powers carry out their intention of sinking armed merchant ships without warning after next Tuesday are contained in a letter which President Wilson addressed to Senator Stone of Missouri, chairman of the senate committee on foreign relations. Speaking of what he regards as a project by Germany and Austria to disregard the immunities conferred by international law upon defensively armed merchant vessels, the President says: "If the clear rights of American citizens should ever unhappily be abridged or denied by any such action we should, it seems to me, in honor have no choice as to what our course should be." This is generally interpreted here as a warning by the President that he will not shrink from invoking measures provocative of war if the resumption of submarine warfare on armed ships results in a further sacrifice of American lives.

LONDON.—The German army has smashed its way to within heavy gun range of the French fortress of Verdun during one of the greatest battles of the war. The Berlin war office announced the capture of the villages of Brabant-sur-Meuse and Haumont and the Herbe wood, less than eight miles from Verdun, and also the capture of Samogneux on the east bank of the Meuse, a bare six miles from Verdun's northern ring of forts.

VIENNA.—An Italian transport, carrying troops away from Albania, has been sunk by an Austrian airplane in the harbor of Durazzo, it was officially announced.

NEW YORK.—Eight more delegates who went to Europe as members of Henry Ford's peace expedition last December arrived here on the Holland-American liner Nieuw Amsterdam. Mr. Ford went down the bay on a cutter and met the ship at quarantine. Gaston Plantiff, his business representative, who led the party after Mr. Ford left it to return to America, stated that the expedition had cost his employer $400,000 and that the peace efforts are to be continued through delegates who remained in Europe.

MR. MALONE ON THE INCOME TAX.

Park Ridge, Ill., Feb. 20.—As you no doubt are aware, I have vigorously opposed the passage of the state income tax law of Illinois.

Although this law will not become effective until July 1, 1932, it is to be operative as of Jan. 1, 1932, subjecting all incomes subsequent to Jan. 1, 1932, to taxation.

It is my opinion that the people of Illinois should know the attitude of the next governor as to this extra, additional tax.

I favor its immediate repeal if the Supreme court decides that the law is constitutional. My reasons are as follows:

1. I am opposed to setting up additional costly taxing machinery to squeeze more money from the taxpayers for the benefit of the tax spenders.

2. It creates a barrier to the operation of business and manufacturing enterprises in our state.

3. It will open a golden opportunity for political organizations to put on the pay rolls thousands of shoopers, spies, and investigators to pry into the private business of the taxpayers.

4. My plan is to eliminate every useless jobholder in the state, in every department, and to cut expenditures to the bone.

5. I am convinced that the state government can function at a saving of up to 40 per cent.

6. I believe it but just and honorable to make my position clear on the issue of income tax before the primary, and I demand that all three downstate candidates do likewise.

7. I am convinced that the great majority of the people of Illinois who earn one thousand dollars or more a year are overwhelmingly opposed to this new scheme of the tax spenders to extract more money from the taxpayers through a new tyrannical tax machine.

WILLIAM H. MALONE.

HISTORY'S LESSONS.

Chicago, Feb. 22.—Anent your Sunday editorial, "Senator La Follette and History," I beg to point out that both the senator and your learned scribe have run afoul of the same fallacy, namely, that history teaches. Since it teaches this to me and that to you, it follows that it teaches nothing. History is a chronicle of events and not a philosophy. Men do, however, write philosophies of history and come out at the same end for which they, in the beginning, headed; witness the historical lessons of Bishop Bossuet, Paul Barth, Oswald Spengler, and others. For truth, "historical parallel is a banana peel on the doorstep of argument," and THE TRIBUNE, in pointing out Senator La Follette's bias, has but revealed its own.

E. S. JOHNSON.

ASSIGNMENTS FOR MR. EVANS.

Chicago, Feb. 20.—I wish to express to you my great appreciation of your editorial in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, "The Last of the Neanderthalers." It is a gem.

I trust you will be able to turn your shafts toward the various large scale rackets such as those which Mr. Evans has recently covered in the news columns. I would include in this not only such things as Boulder dam development, but also the huge sums spent on the Mississippi and the prospective sums on the St. Lawrence.

The greatest racket in history, however, is the contributions to those who were in our army during the last war. The regular contributions of the United States last year to the veterans of the world war were 512 million, of which Chicago, because of its population and wealth, contributed over 20 million. In addition to this, over 1,000 million were given in the name of "adjusted compensation," of which Chicago sooner or later will have to pay over 40 million. In the meantime, the 20 million per year will steadily grow unless steps are taken to combat these raids on the treasury.

THE BEGGAR STATES.

Chicago, Feb. 22.—THE TRIBUNE has made much of the fact that many of the senators voting for the La Follette-Costigan bill hailed from the states which pay less in federal taxes than they receive from the government for highways and other improvements.

Beggar states THE TRIBUNE terms these unfortunate commonwealths. And beggar states they are in fact. They have been beggared by industrialism.

They have been beggared by a Chicago farm machinery dynasty which has wrung uncounted profits from the farmers of the almshouse states. In return one of the retainers of this dynasty was loaned to the government to administer some of that farm relief which THE TRIBUNE loves so little.

They have been beggared by an oligarchy of Chicago packers who have endowed universities with the money made out of meat produced in the unscrupulous states and out of the hides of its producers.

They have been beggared by New York banksters and their lackeys. To such have the residents of the open spaces trusted their meager savings in return for worthless bonds, if, indeed, anything at all.

Yes, indeed, we have our beggar states, and with THE TRIBUNE I fear for the consequences should such regions become more powerful in the government. Farming the farmer might then become as lacking in profit as farming the soil has been for so long.

Perhaps if the time ever comes when the residents of the agricultural states have incomes large enough to be taxed the present danger will be averted. Until then the few who own the nation's wealth must pay the bills. And I greatly fear that such woeful wails as now arise when they are called on to do so will cause only derisive laughter in the multitude, not all of whom live in the beggar states.

JOSEPH L. BALDUS.

SNORING.

Chicago, Feb. 22.—First you must buy a barrel and be sure it is made of hard wood; if there are a few knots in the wood it is so much the better. The next step is to take the barrel apart. Now then select the strongest stave and carve a handle. From here on you must pay close attention. Listen carefully in your own home and do not overlook your neighbors, as it is often worse if coming in from next door, as it is then so hard to locate.

At last you hear it a faint gurgle, now it grows louder, longer, and stronger. Opportunity awaits you. Tiptoeing in, gently snatch off the covers. The stage is now set. Seizing the paddle firmly, paddle sharply and resonantly on the soles of the feet, once, twice, three times. That is ample. The snoring will cease instantaneously. Leave quickly. This has never failed.

If he is lying face down do not paddle the feet.

CHESTER BRUNS.

IT WOULD SEEM SO.

Chicago, Feb. 20.—Having a position as a waitress is not always a pleasant one, yet we take our joys with the sorrows. But when one of our patrons, whom we try to please the best, best way possible, hands us counterfeit money for a tip is it not discouraging, to say the least?

LUCILLE KENNETT.

THE MOTORIST'S TAXES.

Chicago, Feb. 21.—In a news item appearing in THE TRIBUNE of Feb. 21 Mr. George O. Fairweather is credited with making the statement, in an address before the county board, that the highway department has no right to spend a dime for new construction. I wonder if Mr. Fairweather realizes that the motorist and not the real estate taxpayer pays for the construction of new roads. The motorist has and will continue to pay his taxes willingly and on time, provided he gets new roads and bridges in return for his money. The motoring taxpayer is not on strike, so why deprive him of what is justly due him?

FORMER FRIEND TURNS AGAINST MRS. SUMMERS

Cab Driver Testifies for State in Poison Trial.

Samuel Strauss, 25 years old, a taxicab driver for whom the widowed Mrs. Margaret Summers, 48 years old, purchased a cab while he lived in her home, was the first state witness yesterday at her trial for murder in the court of Judge Walter T. Stanton. Mrs. Summers is charged with poisoning her nephew, Thomas Meyer, 16 years old.

Assistant State's Attorney C. Wayland Brooks in his opening statement told the jury the prosecution will try to show that the motive for the alleged poisoning was $3,630 in insurance on the life of young Meyer, which was taken out and paid for by his aunt.

Tells Doctors' Diagnoses.

Brooks declared the boy's ailment was diagnosed by two physicians as arsenic poisoning; that he was taken by one of them to the county hospital, and was on the way to recovery when Mrs. Summers appeared and insisted on taking him back to her home. Defense Attorneys Emmett Byrne and Harold Levy waived their opening statement.

Apparently impervious to the crowded courtroom, Mrs. Summers sat quiet and composed, except for the occasional clasping and unclasping of her hands.

Strauss, questioned by Prosecutor Brooks, related that he had met Mrs. Summers in September, 1930, and had thereafter driven her to Effingham, Ill., in her own car. They visited her parents and brought the Meyer boy back with them to Chicago.

Describes Boy's Illness.

Q.—Will you describe Thomas to the jury as the was then? A.—He was 16, rather tall, and healthy looking.

Q.—When did he first begin to complain of feeling sick? A.—About the middle of December. He said he had sore throat, ached all over, and that he couldn't move his legs.

Q.—Who prepared the food for Thomas and took care of him all the time he was sick? A.—Mrs. Summers. Part of the time his chum, Charles Harrington, helped her.

Harrington, who followed Strauss to the stand, testified that Mrs. Summers once told him she would give him $25 for a suit for helping with Tommy, if she got the insurance.

A conference in chambers preceded the testimony. Here Judge Stanton ruled that evidence about other deaths in Mrs. Summers' home was inadmissible. He will permit the state to show, however, that she had carried other insurance policies on boarders who died.

REFUSES TO SEND WAR ACE TO JAIL FOR NONSUPPORT

Because Mrs. Muriel Reed Reno, 1014 Dinsmore road, Winnetka, waited five years before attempting to collect back alimony from Leonard M. Reno, world war ace, Judge Joseph Sabath refused yesterday to send him to jail for nonpayment. Instead her alimony allowance was reduced.

Reno, who lives at 430 Diversey parkway, spent a month in Alimony Row at the county jail last fall. His present wife, who was Jessica Reed, Follies beauty, arranged his release on bond. He now owes $7,935 to his first wife, who divorced him in 1925.

Reno told the court that his ex-wife and their daughter, Muriel, 8 years old, are not in want. The first Mrs. Reed has two maids attending her, he asserted, while he is out of work. Judge Sabath cut the alimony from $135 to $100 a month, with the order that $25 of the latter sum shall apply on the arrears.

Republicans Point with Pride to Vote in Cicero

Republicans in Cicero pointed with pride yesterday to the final tabulation of votes in the town primaries Tuesday, which showed that the Republican ticket, headed by President Joseph Z. Klenha, with no opposition polled 6,369 votes, whereas the total votes cast in the Democratic primary, where there was a contest, were 4,688.

VANISHED GIRL'S NUDE BODY FOUND IN SHALLOW DITCH

Mystery Shrouds Death in Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 24.—[Special.]—The scratched and nude body of Elsie Flothmeier, 22 year old pastor's daughter of 4860 North Howard street, was found today lying face downward in a shallow ditch in an open field.

The girl's clothing was found draped over a bush fifty yards from her body. Almost the entire body was covered with small cuts and scratches as though she had dragged herself through the brambles and underbrush.

The body was found by two boys who were members of a large party which had searched the woodlands and fields of Fox chase and Burholme following Miss Flothmeier's disappearance yesterday.

Miss Flothmeier is the daughter of the Rev. Frederick Flothmeier, pastor of the Tabor Lutheran church, Roosevelt boulevard and Mascher street.

Pending the investigation by the homicide squad police would make no statement.

The girl disappeared yesterday after leaving her father. She had expressed the intention of taking a walk through Burholme park.

The girl had been nervous after she finished her examinations at Tennant college. The family had taken her to a New Jersey resort for a two weeks' rest. Mr. Flothmeier said this afternoon that the girl broke down under the strain of her first two examinations and was taken out of school without being permitted to finish the others.

The girl, a graduate of Frankford High school in 1928, was an attractive brunette. She was born on the gold coast in West Africa when her father was a missionary there.

Murder Defendant Freed on Ruling by Court

Jack Taboujian, 704 North Ogden avenue, on trial for the murder of Miss Mary Glowacka, 17 years old, 621 North Racine avenue, was acquitted yesterday by a jury in Judge G. Fred Rush's court on a directed verdict by the judge. Taboujian shot Miss Glowacka Oct. 17, 1931, in an attempt to murder Peter Pashjian, 820 North avenue, whom, Taboujian said, had broken up his home. On the evidence the judge ruled with Taboujian's attorney, Barrett O'Hara, that he had fired in self defense.

SENATE CONFIRMS JUSTICE CARDOZO TO SUPREME COURT

Washington, D. C., Feb. 24.—[Special.]—The senate today confirmed the nomination of Chief Justice Benjamin N. Cardozo of the New York State Court of Appeals to occupy the vacancy created on the bench of the United States Supreme court by Associate Justice Holmes' resignation last January. There was no debate and no record vote.

Justice Cardozo's appointment has had the approval of virtually all the senate factions despite the previous hope expressed by certain senators that the President would select a judge from some other section rather than add a third New Yorker to the roster.

During a subcommittee hearing on the nomination only one witness appeared in opposition. This was William H. Anderson, former head of the New York Anti-Saloon league, who served a penitentiary term for falsifying the league's books and whose conviction Justice Cardozo had refused to review. The subcommittee heard Anderson, then endorsed Justice Cardozo.

SWANSON GOES BEFORE JURORS IN KEGEL CASE

State's Attorney John A. Swanson and his assistant, Charles Lounsbury, went before the grand jury yesterday in response to that body's request on Tuesday that the case against Mrs. Marie Sahlin Kegel, wife of Arnold H. Kegel, former health commissioner, be nol prossed. Mrs. Kegel was charged with an attempt to commit murder by poison.

It was reported that State's Attorney Swanson told the grand jury that since the indictment it had voted against Mrs. Kegel had been returned in court, the case was now out of the grand jury's hands. Mr. Swanson, according to the report, told the grand jury that in his judgment the evidence should be heard from both sides before a judge or jury, and that if Mrs. Kegel was innocent she would be vindicated.

The state's attorney's office is still waiting for Mrs. Kegel to surrender. Mrs. Mary Ryan, a former maid in the Kegel home, who made the charges, is in the John B. Murphy hospital. Mrs. Ryan has charged that Mrs. Kegel dropped poison in her ice cream soda after failing to persuade her not to testify in a pending divorce. The grand jury returned the indictment on Feb. 13, but voted on Tuesday that it had made a mistake.

Woman Hit by Bullet in Bandit Chase Dies

Miss Ollie Hansen, 35 years old, 908 Main street, Evanston, a milliner, died yesterday at the Evanston hospital of a bullet wound received on Feb. 3 when she was struck by a stray bullet fired by Lloyd Worthley, 711 Monroe street, Evanston, a private watchman. He was pursuing a Negro, who had held up the barber shop of Milan Kulyan, 1717 Sherman avenue. Worthley fired three shots at the Negro, one of which struck Miss Hansen. The robber escaped.

JUDGE RULES OUT BAKER WITNESS IN CANCER TRIAL

Kansas City Doctor Must Prove He Has License.

Davenport, Ia., Feb. 24.—[Special.]—Dr. E. M. Purdue of Kansas City, Mo., was called to the stand today as the first so-called expert witness for Norman Baker in his $500,000 libel suit against the American Medical association, but his testimony was cut short by Federal Judge G. H. Nordbye who ruled Purdue must first present proof that he has been properly licensed by the state of Missouri to practice medicine. Baker is owner of an institute at which he gave treatments for cancer.

Dr. Purdue, who has been one of the chief advisors of Baker's counsel since the opening of the trial, ran into difficulties when he began talking about being persecuted by the Missouri state board of health twenty years ago.

Questions Doctor's License.

"I want to know whether or not you have been licensed to practice medicine in Missouri?" the judge asked.

"I have," Dr. Purdue answered.

This brought a protest from Defense Attorney E. M. Burke, who told the court Dr. Purdue has persistently refused to present his qualifications to the state board of health.

On further questioning, Dr. Purdue admitted he had no license from Missouri because the legislature issued no such licenses, but that his authority consisted of an affidavit filed at Kansas City. He also said he had taken "special" courses in osteopathy and chiropractic. He attempted to put into the records a statement that he had refused to pay the "bribes of $2,000" required by the state board of health for a license. The judge ordered this statement stricken from the records.

Witness Ruled Out.

Baker's attorney declared Dr. Purdue has been practicing medicine in Kansas City for 20 years, but the judge ruled that evidence qualifying Purdue as an expert witness must be produced before he would be allowed to testify.

That the defense expects to question closely any "expert" witnesses for Baker appeared evident by the presence of Dr. Max Cutler of the Michael Reese and Hines Veterans hospitals of Chicago. Dr. Cutler testified for the American Medical association last week.

Two Get Year in Jail for Frauds at Election

County Judge Jareckl yesterday sentenced John Boraicke, keeper of a rooming house at 2846 Warren avenue, and Clarence Nelson, one of his roomers, to a year in the county jail each for frauds committed in the mayoralty election last April. Nelson voted as a repeater in the 1st precinct of the 29th ward, and Boraicke identified him falsely as another voter who was registered on the poll book.

PAY ALIMONY OR GO TO JAIL, HUSBAND TOLD

Mrs. Martha S. Tate, 836 Mapleton avenue, Oak Park, yesterday brought her former husband, William S. Tate, 4337 Cornelia avenue, president of the Chicago Job Press, into Circuit Judge Daniel P. Trude's court on a rule to show why he should not be held in contempt of court for being $400 arrears in alimony. Mrs. Tate was granted $200 a month for herself and her daughter, Grace, 14 years old, and was given her Oak Park home in settlement last May when she obtained a divorce.

Tate admitted that he had remarried the month after his divorce and had joined a loop club about the same time. Judge Trude said he would send Tate to jail for six months, but Mrs. Tate stepped forward.

"Judge I don't want him to go to jail. What I need is some money. All I have is 90 cents in my purse.

The judge then ordered Tate to appear in his chambers at 2 o'clock today with $200. "Either that or go to jail," he added.

The Charming Cheat

SYNOPSIS.

Ricardo Dane visits New York in search of his aunt, Miss Filomena Stanley, his mother's half-sister. Ricardo's mother had recently died and left him heir to the ranch and mountain land in Romeu valley, California, where he had spent most of his life. He intended to find his sole remaining near relative and bring her back to Romeu Valley. He had understood this to be his mother's dying wish. His aunt, an actress, had been out of favor with the family.

Ricardo locates a Filomena Stanley, but instead of an aged aunt he finds a beautiful young aunt. She is living in a Bohemian studio with a Follies girl, named Frances. Ricardo readily believes this lovely creature, who acknowledges the relationship. Ricardo showers her with gifts and moves her into a better apartment. He moves into the same building on another floor. Webster Sutton, a college friend of Ricardo's, visits New York. He and Eunice Greenway, a girl from home, who is studying in New York, are entertained by Ricardo and his aunt. Eunice is a friend of Ricardo's fiancée, Rachel Beatty. She heartily disapproves of Filomena. Web believes his friend is being trimmed and, before he leaves, tells him so. Ricardo learns that Web was right when Filomena is called home due to the illness of her father. After another search Ricardo finds his real aunt. She is acting in a Broadway play. Ricardo's plan is to have Filomena prepare to marry him and leave her waiting at the church, but, before he can carry it out, Rachel arrives in New York with her father, who has been called there on business. Rachel meets the real aunt. She doesn't fit in with the stories Rachel has heard. Ricardo evades telling her the truth, but confides in his aunt. Eunice takes Rachel to call on Filomena. Ricardo meets them in the lobby. They see Filomena leaving the building. That evening Ricardo brings his aunt to have dinner with Rachel and Mr. Beatty. Aunt Fil, unknown to Ricardo, invites Rachel for breakfast next day. She also asks Filomena.

INSTALLMENT XXVIII.

A FICTITIOUS PAST.

"The wedding's Monday, is it?" said Filomena through her brioche.

"Yes," said Rachel, with dignity, "we're going to be married Monday morning and we're going home by boat through the canal."

"O, yes, out where all those horses are," nodded Filomena.

"Yes," agreed Rachel shortly, hurt and angry beyond words to realize how much this girl might know about Romeu valley.

"You wouldn't want to ask Filomena to come to the wedding, I suppose?" asked Ricardo's aunt ingenuously.

"Why, I—I—didn't suppose she'd want——" stammered Rachel, flushing.

"I'd love it," said Filomena. "Any one mind if I smoke?"

"Of course Dick wouldn't want her to come. Perhaps you ought to consider that. After all, it is partly his wedding."

"Dick said he'd never seen you before," said Rachel.

"He would say that," returned Filomena, eyeing the end of her cigaret. "Men always want to conceal their pasts, don't they?"

"I don't know, I'm sure," said Rachel coldly, "I don't know anything about it. I never knew any men with pasts."

"You do now," said Filomena cheerfully, "I'm certainly Dick's scarlet bit, aren't I? No wonder he wanted to keep me a secret."

Rachel looked at her, marveling. The girl had no shame whatever.

"But of course Eunice went and told you all about me," Filomena said.

"I know what's the trouble with Dick," interposed Rachel coldly.

"Eunice said——" began Rachel. She stopped. She had made up her mind not to talk about Dick to this girl. It was too undignified.

"He told Eunice that you were his aunt," she finished.

"O, he was always saying that," said Filomena easily, "He used to always be calling me Auntie. Because of my name. I called him—I called him Nipsy. That was short for nephew. Of course, we began by pretending that I was his aunt."

"O," said Rachel, who was unwilling to own to an overpowering curiosity as to how this affair had started out anyway. "O, I see."

"That didn't last long," pursued Filomena, "as you might guess. Then we took the apartment——"

"Did you know about me?" asked Rachel curiously.

"O, yes. I knew about you. But you weren't supposed to know about me. After all, I—well, I had a good time out of it, and——"

"So did Dick, I suppose," agreed Rachel bitterly. "How—where did you happen to meet Dick, anyway? I didn't suppose he knew a soul in New York. Except Eunice. It wasn't Eunice who——"

"I never saw Eunice till she came up with that boy from the west," Filomena assured her. "But the first time I saw Dick—well, let's see. It was one of those studio parties. You know, those gin parties where everybody gets more or less done in. We just fell for each other at sight. I suppose we were both a little bit—well, it was a pajama party, you know. I used to be in the chorus," added Filomena, conscious that this was the necessary finishing touch, "and it's pretty hard work for pretty small pay. It wasn't very hard to give that up. It was a lot easier——"

"And paid better?" asked Rachel in a flash of venom.

"Well, yes, I guess so. That is—with Dick thrown in, yes."

"You must have known you'd have to give him up," persisted Rachel.

"Girls like me," returned Filomena, "never think about the future. You know, we—we just live in the present and get all we can out of it."

"Filomena," said the older Filomena suddenly, "honestly, did you know in the beginning about Rachel? Somehow I have an idea you didn't."

"I didn't know, at first," she admitted.

"You mean," demanded Rachel, "that Dick really—that he let you think he was—was free, that he—O, I can't believe he'd do that. I can't believe he'd go on—I can understand how it started, I think. But to go on——"

"I should have discouraged him more, I suppose," said Filomena.

"But I suppose, after that night, it was all over, for you," suggested Rachel, impelled by that horrid curiosity that she could not completely down.

"O, yes, it was all over after that," said Filomena, lifting large, innocent eyes for a moment.

"And then you got the apartment?" probed Aunt Filomena.

"O, yes, right away."

"That's where you cooked those waffles, I suppose?"

"He told you about that? Chatterbox, isn't he? Yes, I always got the breakfast. He—he loved to have breakfast in bed."

Rachel barely suppressed an exclamation of acute distaste. But after digesting this bit of information she asked irrelevantly, "Where did you get those green shoes? I mean—did Dick——"

"Well, he hasn't paid for them yet. But he—will. They cost twenty-nine dollars."

This remark of Filomena's was to Rachel the very keynote of depravity.

"The trouble with Dick," began Aunt Filomena, who could not bear to be omitted from this highly interesting discussion, "the whole trouble with Dick——"

"I know what's the trouble with Dick," interposed Rachel coldly, "I know exactly what the trouble with Dick——"

"I don't think you do," said Aunt Filomena, "if you'll excuse me. Trouble with Dick is, he's been bossed too long. He's never had a will of his own and he doesn't know where to get one."

"I don't know what you mean," said Rachel, still coldly.

"I mean he's got a sort of thing called a Mother Fixation—at least I think that's what they call it. All his life his mother made up his mind for him. I know about it, for she was my own sister and I know what she was like——"

"I knew her, too," flared Rachel, "and she was the loveliest——"

"My dear, she was. She was the loveliest thing. And she was the cleverest thing, too. She was far too clever to let Dick realize what was going on. Now he just can't get along without being bossed by some other woman. When Rachel was there, she did it. When he once got out of Rachel's sight, the next woman who came along got the job. That's all there is to it."

"I—just happened to be around, then," said Filomena, in a forlorn voice.

"Certainly you just happened to be around," rejoined the older woman. "It might just as well have been some other girl——"

"Eunice," suggested Filomena.

"I suppose so. What's Eunice like anyway?"

"She's very tall and too moral for words," said Filomena.

"Doesn't sound promising, but she'd have done it all the same."

"I don't believe it," said Rachel, "Dick's not like that. He's not a simple fool, and that's what you're suggesting."

"Glad you admire Dick," said Dick's aunt, "I do myself. I think he's adorable. But you can't dodge facts. He's soft putty in a woman's hands."

"I don't believe it," reiterated Rachel, "he's not soft. He's not easily led. You never knew him at home, what he was like." She paused. "Then it wasn't really Dick's fault," she said in a different tone, "it really wasn't Dick's fault at all. It was—her fault."

Filomena glanced up quickly. "My fault? Yes, of course. Get him to tell you about that. I suggested getting the apartment. And of course it was all my idea about having the marriage license. He was nothing but putty——"

"Marriage license?" said Rachel, sharply.

"Didn't I tell you? Yes, we had a marriage license. We never used it, though. It won't spoil your Monday morning."

"Marriage license," muttered Rachel.

"Marriage license," she said again, "you mean—is that true? Did he?"

Filomena nodded carelessly. "One of the things they always do, isn't it? Yes, we went down and got a marriage license. Let's see, it was last—O, I forget what day. I can't show it to you. But maybe he can."

Rachel turned toward Aunt Filomena with an effort at a polite farewell.

Bright Sayings of the Children

In a school lunch room where everything was being done to entice the children to eat the vegetables needed for their growing bodies, one little girl was asked if she didn't want some nice carrots. She turned up her head and said that she didn't like carrots. The manager told her that eating carrots would make her hair nice and long. She laughed, and said, "My father eats carrots, and he is bald headed." M. W.

Little Burton, 3 years old, is always being asked for kisses by the older members of the family. Recently, when his aunt asked for a kiss, he replied, "I gave you one yesterday. What did you do with it?" B. E. S.

Tulip Shoots Need Safety from Frosts

BY PAUL POTTER.

Gardeners who have been thrilled to see the green shoots of shallowly planted tulips or crocus appearing during the mild weather of last weekend are being warned by experienced flower growers to cover them up to avoid late frosts.

Even on the south side of a building, where the tulips and other early perennials are protected, a mulch is necessary.

Many gardeners are also planning now to get the jump on any possible flower disease troubles by making an early spring cleanup of the beds. Leaves of the iris should be cut back close to the ground in another few weeks and all old leaves about the crown should be removed.

The peony tops should be cut close to the ground and all stalks burned or sent away with the refuse, since they may carry over some diseases. When the mulch is removed later, all rubbish should be raked away, or better still, pulled out carefully by hand, to leave the soil surface entirely clean.

Those who have sought to combat the dreaded aster wilt which takes such a toll of this fine flower are finding satisfaction in a rather simple process of sterilizing the soil. This is particularly recommended in small yards where asters are to be planted where asters have grown in previous seasons.

The bed is spaded up ready for planting, without the addition of fertilizer. Then a formaldehyde solution of the strength of one pint in twenty gallons of water is applied. The solution is used at the rate of one gallon per square foot of soil. Cover the treated area with burlap sacks, old clothes, or blankets, and leave undisturbed for a week.

After removing the covering, the soil should again be stirred up to allow the gas to escape, and in another week the bed is ready for fertilizing and planting. Tools should also be disinfected with the solution before working the treated soil. A warning is also given to treat only such beds where no shrubs or other perennials are located. The formaldehyde will kill them.

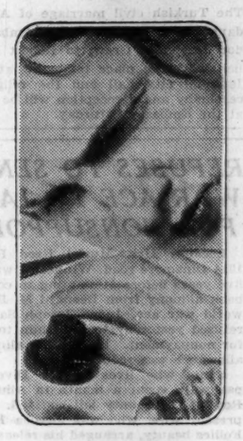
Sunk!



Planning . . . hoping . . . and then—the thing she dreaded

Nature won't postpone her process to accommodate social engagements! Two weeks ago she was sure she could go. Then—just an hour before the party—it had started. That excruciating pain which is now avoidable.

Expected. Dreaded. Those muscular pains reckoned by the calendar. You can't always tell to the day and hour when they'll begin. But you can count on their relief seven minutes after taking Midol!

The periodic process is natural, but the painful part is not. Midol is non-narcotic; it never interferes with the process, but it does banish the pain. These tablets take effect in five to seven minutes. Better yet, the woman who takes them beforehand will experience no pain at all. Midol relieves headaches, neuralgia, neuritis, too. Always to be had at any drugstore.

ADVERTISE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

Save money! Pepsodent Antiseptic gives 3 times your money's worth

PEPSODENT ANTISEPTIC is 3 times as powerful as any other leading mouth wash. Hence it goes 3 times as far. That's economy for you! Why waste money on antiseptics that must be used full strength to be effective?

WHICH of the two kinds of antiseptics do you use when fighting sore throat colds—infection—unpleasant breath? For that's all there really are—just two leading kinds. On one side you have the mouth wash that kills germs only when used full strength. On the other side you have Pepsodent Antiseptic—utterly safe when used full strength, yet powerful enough when diluted with 2 parts of water to kill germs in 10 seconds. Pepsodent Antiseptic is at least three times as powerful as other leading antiseptics. Hence, it goes three times as far—gives you three times as much for your money—and gives you greater protection against sore throat colds. What a fine way to save money. Instead of paying $3 for three bottles, you pay $1 and make the three bottles yourself. For years 3 people in 4 diluted the old-style mouth washes. But they were fooling themselves and not killing germs. So when choosing your antiseptic, be sure you choose the one that kills the germs even when mixed with water. Insist on Pepsodent Antiseptic that remains effective when diluted—and be safe! Be safe—and save money!

BAD BREATH (Halitosis)

The amazing results of Pepsodent Antiseptic in fighting sore throat colds, proves its effectiveness in checking Bad Breath (Halitosis). Remember Pepsodent is 3 times more powerful in killing germs than other leading mouth antiseptics. Remember, it kills germs even when diluted with water!

Critic Presents Some Closeups of Two Authors

Rupert Hughes, Bacheller Are Her Subjects.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

RUPERT HUGHES hasn't changed a line since the last time I saw him—how many years ago exactly I don't remember. It must be at least eight, because he has a lovely young red haired wife that he didn't have then, and Who's Who says he married her in 1924.

I don't know what we would do without Who's Who—literary editors, that is. If it were not for that trusty guide I'd never believe that Rupert Hughes is 60 years old. He certainly neither looks nor acts it. Rushing around gathering up notes and planting last minute kisses on the lovely red hair as he dashed for a train to La Grange where he was giving a talk on George Washington before the American Legion, he had every movement and motion of a lad off for the fray. Gay—jaunty. And what that man knows about Washington! The world may think that he—Rupert Hughes, I mean—yanked the halo off the brow of the father of his country. But nobody who reads those three grand volumes misses the halo, so much more effulgent is the shine of sheer humanness in the eyes of the hero of them.

Mrs. Hughes said at tea that when she was young George Washington was her pet hate. "If Rupert could convert ME" . . . How many children's pet hate was that goody-goody youngster proudly waving that hatchet in the air like a flag! Well, we know now Georgie was no goody-goody . . . I forgot to find out the exact moment of the publication of the last volume—the one about Washington as President of the United States, but it isn't written yet in its entirety, I'm sure of that, because we discussed Oliver Barrett's Washington material [he has a treasure trove of Washington documents as he has of Lincolniana] and Mr. Hughes said that he was going over some of it again when he comes back to Chicago next week.

Benedict Arnold "Military Racketeer"

It struck me as a little ironic that Washington's birthday should be the publication date of "Benedict Arnold" [Vanguard]. Now that I've read it, though, I understand. Edward Dean Sullivan, who has done some snappy volumes on racketeering in our town, and who is an authority on the business, finds Benedict Arnold a military racketeer. "Benedict Arnold, shorn of his three cornered hat, his five cornered arguments, and his colonial and Britannic backgrounds, had literally everything in common with the racketeer as this nation knows him today." The fact that Washington was the "constant friend and unfailing protector" of Arnold argues well for Washington, the author says, for it "takes something to catch something," and it took "that other American waster and blackleg, Aaron Burr," to know Arnold for what he was. Mr. Sullivan does a snappy and thorough job of scalpeling Benedict Arnold. In a very modern manner he writes what is really an old-fashioned biography, for most modern novelists are concerned with whitewashing the villains of history.

Luncheon Chat with Bacheller

If it hadn't been for the Washington bicentennial I shouldn't have seen Irving Bacheller the other day. I haven't seen Mr. Bacheller for—it must be at least ten years. I had luncheon with him last Saturday under the aegis of Marcella Hahner, who had invited him to Marshall Field's book section to lecture on Washington and to autograph copies of his novel about Washington, "The Master of Chaos." He is a darling—even if he is a charming liar! I suppose one dares to call a man a darling publicly when he is 73, and what else than a charming liar can you call him when he greets you with "Why, Fanny Butcher, more beautiful than ever." And he managed to be that southern and congenial when he had arrived at seven something that morning from Winter Park, Fla., and that evening was scheduled to be on the train back to Winter Park, Fla. He had a grand tan and when I said so he proudly confided, "For sixteen years I've never missed a day at my desk." "Or on the golf links?" said I. "It's a record for a man my age," said he. I don't see how authors stand the gaff of travel and speechmaking.

Deserted Wife Tells Women of Her Failure

Learns Too Late What Makes a Home.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

When a wife has lost her husband to some other woman and can sit down and expose wherein she, the deserted wife, failed, her comments should be of value. For this reason we introduce "Awakened":

"Several years ago," she writes, "I, too, was married to a man I dearly loved. We were the average American couple with two sweet youngsters to rear. After four years friend husband looked for gayer company, not from an educational standpoint, for we were both college bred.

"Our home was one of the few in which harsh words were never spoken. Both my husband and myself were considered good looking and ideally mated. After trying to hold on to F. H. to no avail, a decided to give him up to a woman I called my rival then. He has since married his gay companion—and apparently is happy with her. But I began to take an inventory of myself. And here's what I found out:

"A wife has to be more to a man than the mother of his children. He wants to come home to some one who is not too tired to listen to him; to one who doesn't forget to tidy herself before dinner. He wants to talk to a wife who can spend at least one-half hour a day reading and keeping up with the outside world.

"Men with wives like that seldom have time for other companions. Men do not care for the neighborhood gossip, or for tales a relative has carried to friend wife. Nor do they care to be nagged about anything. They all want to be able to relax in their homes unmolested by wrangling or other undue noises. They prefer, if economy is necessary, to have women forego the house furnishing extravagance for a personal appearance that is pleasing.

"Rivals do not intentionally snare men from their moorings. It is good company that attracts men. The good company may develop a love. . . . And rivals have heartaches, too. Their lives are not always so rosy. They get very tired of entertaining men and trying to smile when their hearts are weary. They have the art of keeping a man interested, mastered, and to a wife who has become a 'nobody' they look gayer than in reality they are.

"Very few men are snared, these days," concludes "Awakened."

Cyrena Van Gordon to Become Easterner's Bride Next Saturday

New York, Feb. 24.—[Special.]—Mme. Cyrena Van Gordon, mezzo-soprano of the Chicago Civic Opera company, and Howard D. Smith of New York and San Francisco, president of the Consolidated Copper Mines corporation, with offices at 120 Broadway, obtained a marriage license today at the municipal building.

The ceremony will be performed on Saturday, with only members of the immediate families present. After the ceremony a reception will be held at the Fifth avenue home of the bride.

When obtaining the license Mme. Van Gordon gave her age as 36. She was born in Camden, O. She was divorced in Chicago in 1931 from Dr. S. Bogart Munns.

Mr. Smith is 50 years old, and gave his occupation as an engineer and his residence the Pacific Union club in San Francisco.

THE STAGE

A play called "Tradition," written by B. V. Mindenburg, was presented at the Eighth Street theater last night for a stay of half a week. It deals with a conflict of ideas and point of view between two brothers, one a rich, progressive Jew, resident in London; the other a Polish rabbi clinging to the orthodox tenets of his faith.

This production appears to be a semi-professional adventure in theatricals, although there are a few old stagers in the cast of twenty-five players. The performance moves with the deliberate, time killing pace that is the mark of amateurism. F. Mortimer Mitchell and Robert Arnold appear as the two brothers who stand for modernized and reactionary phases of Judaism.

The Playhouse will reopen next Thursday night, March 3, with "Death Takes a Holiday." Ann Forrest will be given the rank of star in the rôle of the girl who falls in love with the ghastly Prince Sirki, alias the Dark Angel. The latter rôle, acted here last season by Philip Merivale, will be in the hands of Don Burroughs. There are intimations that this organization is a stock company, and that other productions, with Miss Forrest in the leading rôles, may follow.

"The Sandy Hooker," with Edna Hibbard as its star, now figures on the playbills for next week. This play will begin an engagement at the Cort theater Sunday evening. Lenore Ulric was the original actress of Miss Hibbard's rôle.

The company now playing "Mourning Becomes Electra" at the Blackstone theater will end its engagement March 5. A gap in the bookings at the Blackstone will follow. However, two other Theater Guild productions will be offered there this season. One of them will be "Reunion at Vienna," with Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne. The other may be Bernard Shaw's new play, "Too Good to Be True," which will have its world première in Boston next Monday night. C. C.

New Handbags Out in Front for Smartness

Come in Variety of Colors and Styles.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

WITHOUT a chance for any argument, you'll all agree that the smartest things in Chicago shops this week are the new spring handbags, and you have never paid so little for such stunning and unusual models. Bags, this season are as individual as the many distinctive personalities that shop for them . . . sleek, sophisticated models for tailored town clothes . . . colorful contrasting leathers and fabrics for sports costumes . . . slim silk bags for afternoon wear, and vivacious little vanities for evening . . . designed with a modern flair for color and distinction.

Having joined in the large chorus that says for the billionth time that this is a great blue year, we hasten to assure you that there are plenty of blue bags ready to meet the demands. Envelopes and squares that are anything, if not generous as to size, outside and in . . . bags with tricky little straps or handles . . . pouch affairs to hold all the feminine mysteries that accompany the well dressed woman wherever she goes . . . and large, large bags that are trying to grow into week-end cases. Whatever shade of the blues you are using this spring, you are assured of true blue matching wherever you shop.

Wrinkled Leather Handbags Smart

New wrinkles in bags—yes, indeed—black, brown, blue, beige and colors—you can have small ladylike wrinkles or big corrugated wrinkles that would do justice to the deepest furrowed financial brow—but wrinkled leather handbags are quite the smartest things in town.

And stitches—yards of it, on bags of silk crêpe and soft leathers—stitches that run up and down, criss-cross, and stitchings that wind in and outside of intricate patterns and designs—delightfully different pouch bags are stitched in quaint old fashioned quilted patterns.

A good shining subject for bags this spring is patent leather—and if you are enthusiastic about black you'll probably see the fashion light on patent leather bags in color—red, all shades of blue, beige, and even a lovely shade of yellow—luckless ladies that have to go out in rainy weather should carry these cheerful colored bags—too many of us even yet dress drearily on gray drippy days.

Fabric bags are awfully good and not half as fussy as you might think. Nubby knitted fabrics are, of course, designed especially for your tweeds and rough woolen frocks, suits or coats. The new colors are gorgeous—golden yellows, brilliant green, russet red and bright blues. Clasps and frames are mostly composition and metal.

Monograms Good This Year.

Monograms have always been difficult to resist . . . . but this year a good monogram letter is the final bit of individual swank. One extremely good looking bag has a huge enamel monogram inside a circle, centered on the flap of the bag . . . it can be ordered in one, two, or three colors, and while the initial cost [no pun intended] is rather expensive, think how many succeeding bags you can fasten it to without losing any of the original smartness.

One of the thinnest, the squarest, and biggest things you ever saw, is a typical traveling bag with countless pockets, divisions, compartments and everything any globe trotter needs, including a mirror that will frankly show you your entire face . . . it is of fine pin seal in either black or brown . . . it has a well trained hand strap that can stay flat or will rise up to meet any carrying charge . . . and added to all this, it boasts a triangular flap, ornamented with three triangles of metal . . . whereon the proud owner engraves her monogram.

Collar Trims Crepe Dress

Old fashioned in name only, a white battenberg lace collar trims a black silk crepe dress with new fashioned chic and charm. It is most attractive when worn by such a lovely and striking blond as Miss Lilyan Tashman, but is equally smart with brunette or titian colorings.

Subtle Fragrance of Light Spray Gets Best Result from Perfume

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Do you know that olfactory organ of yours can become unresponsive to an odor continuously used over a period of time? And that that is why one is in danger of applying too much perfume at a time and thereby losing the lure of the subtly scented?

In the art of perfuming self there is not the bold advance seen in the current use of makeup, let's say. You paint your lips today and you paint them so the whole world knows your lip coloring is not natural. But perfume, being purely a thing of emotional appeal, should not be used boldly. Or, if I may put it thus without offense, you simply cannot smell of perfume. You cannot announce your arrival at a gathering nor register your departure with the smell of perfume.

Remember, perfuming is an appeal to the senses and is accomplished successfully by subtle suggestion, not by boldly announced fact. It's for this reason attention is called to the fact that the nose can become so used to a scent that its sense of proportion is dulled. A change to another brand may be advisable. Or, one can refrain from adding that extra touch that defeats the original purpose of perfume.

When in doubt, or whether in doubt or not, practice moderation in its use. Never douse yourself. A light spraying is always more effective.

Here are a few other facts of interest about perfume:

Perfumes are affected by light, heat and contact with air. A bottle of good perfume should be kept tightly stoppered, in a cold place, away from strong light.

Every perfume is affected to some extent by the personal odor of its wearer. This is why testing perfume on the skin rather than on a handkerchief, scarf or dress is advisable.

And smelling perfume from the wet stopper of the bottle at a perfume counter may please at the moment, but it may be disappointing later, because of the confusion caused by the scented alcohol fumes that first escape the bottle. For a test, spread a little of the essence over the back of the hand and wait until the alcohol is evaporated before smelling.

Group of Society Girls to Help Care for Infants at Orphanage

Attend Early Morning Lecture at St. Vincent's to Learn About New Social Service.

BY JUDITH CASS.

JUST a few weeks ago society editors were wearing out the ribbons on their typewriters with stories of debutante parties. From October until mid-January the social news columns painted a kaleidoscopic picture of debs rushing from one festivity to another—dancing until dawn and arising at noon in time for lunch and a series of parties until the next dawn.

Now that short but sweet butterfly period is over and the girls who were debutantes a few months ago are post-debs now, and instead of continuous partying, they're occupying themselves with serious and useful occupations. The Junior league, the Service club, Emerson house, the Children's Memorial hospital, and numerous other philanthropic institutions are all bidding for their time and service. Yesterday a group of these girls who seemed so frivolous and light hearted a short while back met at St. Vincent's Orphanage and became acquainted with a phase of social service which is absolutely new to them. They arrived at 8:30 o'clock in the morning for the first of a series of Wednesday morning lectures by Dr. Maurice Blatt, head of the pediatric department of Cook county hospital, on the care of infants.

There were 27 girls, all of them debutantes of the last few years, at the lecture, and the mother of one of them tells me she has never seen young things more interested and enthusiastic than they were about the instructions for washing, feeding, dressing, and all the other details of expert baby care.

Every one of the girls plans to be on hand each Wednesday for these early morning lectures, and after they've absorbed enough knowledge of the subject to become practical baby nurses, they will divide into groups and take turns helping the orphanage nurses and nuns in the wards. There are 200 babies at the asylum now and the nursing staff is being considerably overworked.

Mrs. Kinney Smith is a sort of senior chairman of the group of girls. A few of those present yesterday were Miss Louise Clarke, Miss Patty McCormick, Miss Margaret Chapman, Miss Florence and Miss Noel Cremin, Miss Marie Smith, Miss Barbara and Miss Dorothy Senn, Miss Phyllis Radford, Miss Betty Blair, Miss Alice Sexton, Miss Alide Bremner, Miss Isabel Gordon, and Miss Catherine Patrick.

Set Debut Date for Miss Patterson.

The first debut date for next year that I have heard of is that for the ball at which Miss Josephine Patterson, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph M. Patterson, will make her formal bow to society. The ball is to be on Dec. 28. Miss Patterson, who is taking a course in journalism at Northwestern, expects to start on her newspaper career after she has spent a season seeing life as a gay "deb" and no doubt she will be as serious about her work as is her elder sister, Alicia. She and her new husband, Joseph W. Brooks, who recently spent a few days here en route to New York from their southern honeymoon, had a crash in their airplane in New York state on Monday, but luckily the only injury suffered was a wrenched knee which fell to Mrs. Brooks' lot. This may delay a bit her return to newspaper work, but it won't be long until she is hard at work in the advertising department of her father's tabloid, the News. Having been a reporter, she now is going to learn something about advertising, and from there she will go to various other departments so that before long she will be a well rounded newspaper person, ready to tackle any editorial job. The eldest of the three Patterson girls has given up the stage, you know, and is leading a domestic life as Mrs. Griffith Mark in Greenwich, Conn.

Luncheon for Scout Chief.

Mrs. James H. Douglas Jr. of 1500 Lake Shore drive, Chicago Girl Scout commissioner, is giving a luncheon at the Casino club today for Mrs. Frederick Edey, national president, and Miss Josephine Schain, national director of the Girl Scouts. Among the guests will be Mrs. Lester Armour, Mrs. Chas. E. Brown, Mrs. Richard Bentley, Mrs. Britton I. Budd, Mrs. Harold Beacom, Mrs. A. A. Carpenter, Mrs. Benjamin Carpenter, Mrs. Walter Cavanaugh, Mrs. Samuel Chase, Mrs. Nathan Davis III., Mrs. Edison Dick, Mrs. George Farnsworth, Mrs. Morris Jonston, Mrs. Charles R. Lindsay Jr., Mrs. Charles R. Lindsay III., Mrs. Robert G. McGann, mother of Mrs. Douglas, Mrs. Theodore Robinson, Mrs. A. K. Selz, Mrs. John Stuart, Mrs. Ezra Warner and Mrs. Julius Weil.

MRS. J. H. DOUGLAS JR. Carson Pirie Scott-Underwood.

Ezra Warner, John P. Wilson, Gustavas Swift and Joseph Cudahy will also attend.

Friends of Opera Open Drive for Guarantee Fund

The members of the Friends of Opera who are serving on the committee to secure the $250,000 guarantee fund that Samuel Insull asked the organization to secure have started work with a determination to succeed, judging by the meeting they held yesterday afternoon at Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick's residence.

Although the work has just started, quite a few pledges were reported, among them being one made by Mrs. Victor C. Sanborn of Lake Forest in memory of her sister, the late Miss Caroline Kirkland [Mme. X. of THE TRIBUNE], who "labored with voice and pen" to aid the Chicago Civic opera. Mrs. Sanborn's pledge was made in a note to Mrs. Arthur Meeker after the latter had talked on the radio the other night.

Among other pledges reported yesterday were those of Mr. and Mrs. Meeker, Mrs. James Ward Thorne, Mrs. Wentworth Field, Mrs. Everett Eaton, Mrs. Edward F. Swift, Mrs. Waller Borden, Miss Carrie Pam, Miss Alice Barkman, Mrs. Henry Bartholomay, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Hinde, Mrs. Charles H. Schweppe, Mrs. Robert G. McGann, and Mrs. Charles S. Davis.

Mrs. Charles King Corsant, chairman, presided yesterday and gave an impassioned "pep" talk which proved how wise the powers-that-be were to get her to serve as chairman of this important committee. Some of those at the meeting were Mrs. McCormick, Mrs. Meeker, Mrs. Charles H. Swift, Mrs. Borden, Mrs. Arthur A. Small, Mrs. A. F. Callahan, Mrs. Herbert Witherspoon, Mrs. Mark Trude, Mrs. George Halleck Taylor, Miss Marie Rozet, Miss Margaret Hambleton, Mrs. William S. Monroe, Mrs. Vernon Herbst, Mrs. Joseph M. Patterson, Mrs. Ernest R. Graham, and Mrs. David S. Cook. Mrs. Borden will be hostess to the committee for its weekly meeting next Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

What Movie Comedians Do in Idle Hours

Ates Tries Stuttering in Restaurant.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 24.—Roscoe Ates, whose forte as a comedian is his high class stuttering, was one of the film crowd which took part in the recent six day search through the Tehachapi mountains north of Los Angeles for the wreckage of the ill-fated Century-Pacific trimotored airliner which carried eight to earth in the season's worst blizzard.

Going into the lunchroom in the little mountain village of Lebec, which was headquarters for the search, after midnight one night, Ates turned to his companions, Terry de Lapp of the Los Angeles Times and George Contreras, deputy sheriff assigned to homicides, and said: "This waitress doesn't know me. Don't wise her."

Sitting down at the counter, Ates turned to the pretty blond after his companions had ordered. "A cup o' c-c-c-c-c-c-c-c," sputtered Ates. Benignly holding back a desire to smile, the blond leaned forward helpfully. "Coffee?" she volunteered. And Ates blurted: "Milk." The waitress was puzzled for only a minute. "P-p-pupuplease bring me some s-s-s-s-ou-soup." "Soup," cried the girl. "No, a spoon," shouted Ates.

Ates' companions had to go outside to stifle their explosions.

Charles Ruggles, the comedian, was telling a woman acquaintance about the tragedy at his home when his fox terrier, a smart and mischevious little devil, got into the aviary where Charley [who is an amateur bird fancier] keeps a treasured collection of canaries and finches. The dog pounced on one of the canaries and sent it to canary heaven.

"And then what did you do?" inquired the scandalized lady, expecting, of course, to learn how the dog had been chastised.

"Me?" as Charley looked guileless, but surprised. "Why, I buttered two pieces of bread and ate the canary for a sandwich."

They held a class election at the University of Southern California yesterday and the de ns were perturbed when frolicsome male students stuffed the ballot boxes with the name Jean Harlow in such numbers that the movie actress was chosen to the title of "Kampus Kollich Kween" over the regular campus girls. Maybe it's only a coincidence, but the college election commissioner is named Ed Belasco, a name reminiscent of many press agent coups. The authorities decreed a new election.

Ralph Graves alternates between film acting, directing and writing. Just at this moment he's acting again, being the crippled boy's father who tries to make his son feel cheerful and normal in "Limpy." Jacky Cooper is Limpy. M. G. M. is making the picture, whose cast includes Chic Sale, in the rôle of a trolley conductor who befriends the boy; Dorothy Peterson, Helen Parrish and Andy Shuford.

Nils Asther has discovered, due to sending back for his papers preparatory to applying for American citizenship, that he was not born a Swede at all. His birth papers show Nils was born in Copenhagen while his parents, both Swedes, were visiting in Denmark. He grew up a Swede by residence.

House Built in Refrigerator to Study Atom

Ten Room Structure Is Windowless.

Cambridge, Mass., Feb. 24.—(AP)—A ten room house in a refrigerator is the latest scientific building at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, where it is known as the spectroscopic laboratory. The building will be officially opened tomorrow with an inspection by members of the American Physical society and the Optical Society of America during their joint three day annual meeting here.

The house is designed as a nursery for atoms, a place where temperature can be controlled with extraordinary precision to facilitate study of the light emitted by atoms. Investigations in the new laboratory are under way under the direction of Dr. G. R. Harrison, director of the research laboratory of experimental physics.

If all heat should be shut off in the atom house, with the air outside at freezing, it would take a month for the temperature inside to drop 1 degree.

The house is a windowless concrete building, entirely inclosed by the big refrigerator, the function of which is to maintain a cool temperature on the outside walls. The refrigerator is a shell of brick, lined inside with 8 inches of cork, and inside that 24 inches of concrete. The house is separated from the inner refrigerator wall by a 6 inch air gap.

The floors are composed of several layers of concrete with sand and cork between them.

Arts or Sports Are Avocations for Bachelors

Fill Leisure Hours with Varied Activities.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

TO the glories of bachelor bliss, glasses high!

Sixty-nine years before Christ, Horace extolled their virtues. Edward Gibbon considered a state of single blessedness conducive to his masterpiece on ancient Rome, Lord Byron to his "Childe Harold." Even James Buchanan, our country's bachelor President, is known to have remarked that "nothing is to be preferred to the life of a single man."

Even as history has produced its worthy bachelors, they are with us now in interesting array. Chicago has its coterie—gay yet engrossingly serious with hobbies enough for leisure hours to protect all of them against the assaults of a leap year maid. Under the dignified titles of business executives, lawyers, and doctors they veil their other abilities as authors, artists, musicians, aviators, and athletes.

Being Author as Avocation.

Of all these categories, our town has one of its finest representations among the authors. There is Durand Smith, who seriously considered a literary career after study at Oxford to that of following family precedents. Business won the favorable decision, however, with writing an avocation. Now his magazine and newspaper contributions need no introduction to a critical public. Arthur Meeker Jr. looks upon writing as both a vocation and avocation, with several books already to his credit.

Ellsworth Laflin is equally well known . . . the author of a number of the famous Princeton Triangle club plays and as the author of "The Anxious Bench." Mr. Laflin was one of the founders of the "Theater Intime" during his undergraduate days at Princeton.

"I'm awfully strong on hobbies," said Alan Healy, who can deliver an intelligent lecture on art, aviation, or politics, although he's a lawyer.

Mr. Healy has his own pilot's license and plane, although at the present moment the airship is laid up in Albany, N. Y., with a broken wing. He finds air transportation particularly convenient when it comes to attending a reunion in Williamstown, Mass. Robert Hill joins Mr. Healy in his interest in aviation.

Makes Sketches of Poorer Districts.

Another bachelor whose vocation and avocation might be listed under the same heading is Cornelius Trowbridge. Mr. Trowbridge is studying art now in Chicago and, we understand, intends to go abroad soon for further study. A group of sketches he has made wandering about some of the city's poorer districts disguised as a "bum" have attracted many a favorable comment from members of society.

Arthur Barnhart will indorse and second any interest Mr. Healy may have in politics since this subject engrosses most of his sleeping and waking hours when he isn't practicing law. While a student at Harvard law school Mr. Barnhart organized a Democratic student convention and now has carried his interest in organization to the founding of the South Side Voters' Information league, a nonpartisan group.

There are ever so many of the city's bachelors who prefer athletic relaxation during their leisure hours to any other diversion. Edward Wilson is one of them.

Horses His Strongest Love.

"Horses are my strongest love," he confessed yesterday. Mr. Wilson rides several times each week during the winter around the indoor ring at the Chicago stockyards and in the spring, summer and fall on his family's Lake Forest estate, where there are extensive stables as well as a pack of hounds, including English, Gordon, Irish, and Llewellyn setters.

Winter or summer Alexander Knott is on the north shore bridle path. In fact, this is the way he spent most of this last holiday week-end. There isn't a summer passes that Mr. Knott, with his brother, Henry A. Jr., doesn't pack up for a canoe trip in the north woods. Leonard Draper, associated with one of the city's important insurance firms, finds time aside from business to keep up the swimming prowess he established as captain of the Princeton swimming team in days past.

Separate Cape Replaces Jacket in Some Paris Fashion Shops

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—The separate cape is a fashion that smart Parisiennes are taking up in a big way. It all began with the fur capelet that everybody wore for evening this winter. Mme. Schiaparelli is one of the couturiers to come out in favor of the cape to replace the evening jacket, and Worth likes the little cloth and fur cape for daytime, worn with simple woolen street dresses.

Martial et Armand offer something new in evening capes. This is a rather long taffeta cape, and one of the new models in this fabric is shown at the top of the sketch. It is made of flowered taffeta having a metal thread in the weave, and the cape is draped somewhat like a dolman. It is held close around the hips and has a very high ruffled collar that reminds the observer of a ruff. Worn with the new spring evening frock of embroidered lawn, this cape is very smart and altogether delightful to look at.

Below is one of Worth's little woolen capes that are trimmed with fur. This cape is made of vivid green wool and is cut to fit closely over the shoulders. It has a rounded cutaway closing at the right side of the front, and the collar, made of two sable skins, comes down to border this closing. With it goes a small muff of sable. Worth also makes these capes with cloth muffs bordered by sable.

Official Contract

By Charles True Adams

(International bridge authority; author of "Official Contract at Sight.")

Have you some stock certificates with really excellent engraving, and big corporate seals, and imposing corporate names and said to yourself "It just can't be true. These must have value." Have you done that?

If you have you know how South felt in yesterday's play-a-problem. He looked at his diamond suit—150 honors—it was awfully pretty, and yet after the final bid he looked again and said it couldn't be true, but way down in his heart he knew that they were utterly worthless. This was the hand.

NORTH.
♠—A,9,5,3,2
♥—J,10

WEST.	EAST [dealer].
♠—J,8,7,6,4	♠—K,Q,10
♥—Q,8,2	♥—A,K,7,6,3
♦—None	♦—8,7,6,5
♣—A,Q,10,5,3	♣—7

SOUTH.
♠—None
♥—9,5,4
♣—K,J,2

East dealt and bid a heart. South, hopeful and jubilant, overcalled with an attacking overcall of three diamonds. West bid three hearts. North passed. East bid four hearts and South silently and sadly passed.

South opened the ♦ K, West [the dummy] trumped with the ♥ 2, North played the 4 and East the 5. Dummy now led the ♠ 4, North went up with the A, East played the Q, and South, much to declarer's disgust, discarded the ♦ 2. North promptly returned the ♠ 2, East played the K, South trumped with the ♥ 4, and dummy played the 6. South returned the ♦ Q which dummy trumped with the ♥ Q. Dummy now led the ♥ 8 and declarer took the trick with the ♥ K. Declarer then led back the ♥ A, clearing the trump suit. To the seventh trick declarer led the ♠ 10, which dummy overtook with the ♠ J, leading back the ♠ 8, which declarer trumped with his ♥ 5. Declarer now proceeded to lead out the ♥ 7 and followed with the ♥ 6. He then led the ♣ 7. South's J came up and dummy took with the Q. To the twelfth trick dummy laid down the ♣ A which, of course, took and took in the last and thirteenth trick with the good ♠ 7, for five odd.

An enthusiastic South, overcome by the beauty of his diamond suit, and tempted to bid five diamonds, would have found West and East taking five tricks—two heart tricks and three clubs [or club and trump tricks] before North and South got in the lead. They would have been set then a minimum of three tricks. If North and South were not doubled and were not vulnerable they would have just broken even on such a bid. They would have lost three tricks which would have been equaled by the 150 honors. As this hand was played, North and South were vulnerable and probably would have been doubled. It, therefore, would have been a most costly procedure.

Here is tomorrow's play-a-problem:

NORTH.
♠—7,6,4,3
♥—K,8,5
♦—8,5,3
♣—K,7,2

WEST.	EAST.
♠—A,K,Q,9	♠—8,5,2
♥—6,4	♥—9,3
♦—K,J,10,2	♦—9,7,6,4
♣—Q,J,5	♣—10,6,4,3

SOUTH [dealer].
♠—J,10
♦—A,Q
♣—A,9,8

Bid and play this hand and then compare the result with the one printed tomorrow.

Mrs. N. V. J. wants a recipe for scrapple and also wants to know—but wait just a minute and I'll let you read her letter. She writes:

" . . . also, do you have a recipe for fish chowder, and I would like one for scrapple. If you have a simplified one that just calls for liver sausage with the cornmeal it might be all right. Some women have told me that they make it that way. However, it is entirely new to me. I do not know how to proceed, so if you have a recipe available, will you please give it?"

Before we give the recipe for scrapple we hereby promise Mrs. N. V. J. and the others who have asked for them that several recipes for chowders will be given tomorrow. Now for the scrapple!

Philadelphia scrapple is a dish which has been favored by the Quakers for many years. It can be made with liver sausage substituted for the cooked fresh pork, for after all liver sausage is made from pork, but the finished product doesn't deserve the name of scrapple. Not that it matters, for you attach a name to it yourself, and it's good, anyway.

TRUE PHILADELPHIA SCRAPPLE.

Buy five pounds of fresh pork shoulder. Wash it well and then cover it with cold water. Add half a teaspoonful of sage and three teaspoonfuls of salt to the water. Put over a low fire and bring slowly to the boiling point. Boil hard for fifteen minutes and then reduce the heat and allow it to simmer for two and one-half to three hours, or until the meat leaves the bone. Remove the meat from the liquid and free it of all gristle, bone, etc., and cut it up very fine. Put the meat back in the liquor and add two cupfuls of cornmeal for every four cupfuls of pork. Remove all the lumps by straining this carefully, and then cook slowly for two and one-half hours. Pour this into bread tins and permit them to stand until cool. Then cut in slices, roll in bread crumbs, and fry. Scrapple is also good served cold.

Hoosier Salon Success; New Works Offered

Colored Wood Blocks on Display.

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

An amazing financial success met the Hoosier Salon recently held in the Marshall Field galleries. Mrs. C. B. King, chairman of the association, announces a total of $3,385 in sales. Although the Hoosier Salon is definitely related to Indiana, many of those who purchased works of art are Chicagoans. The financial success of an exhibition is important, and with this good news from the Hoosier Salon we can hope that Old Man Depression has at last turned on his heel and started around the corner.

The permanent gallery of the Hoosier Salon Patrons' association is at 211 West Wacker drive. An exhibit of etchings and block prints by various artists has just opened there. Oscar B. Erickson, a member of the Palette and Chisel club, has a group of delicately colored wood blocks. His "The Little White House" and "Spring" are exquisite. Among the painting fraternity, "Roof-Tops," a gray and red composition with a flavor of Japan about it, is much liked.

L. O. Griffith shows a powerful group of scenes from New Orleans. Possibly the finest of them is "Banana Toters"; running it a close second is "David's Barn"; and his "Rustic Lines" is delightful. C. Carey Cloud offers a few colored prints of animals, charming possibly for a child's room, but a little too seasoned with sentiment to rank with the work of Griffith or Ralph Fletcher Seymour. Mr. Seymour has a stunning line of etchings. His "North Shore Bluffs at Ravinia" is beautiful, and "The Big Drop" is very effective. The "In Naples" is a captivating print. "Wood Carriers, Santa Fé" and "Shoshone Indians Squaw Dance" are extremely well done.

John Courtney Sandefur is represented with several etchings delicately limned, a little reminiscent of John Taylor Arms. Charles W. Dahlgreen shows landscapes, the winter scenes particularly fine. J. H. Euston offers a group of prints of the dunes, some of them really lovely. The exhibit will continue to March 6 and is worth a visit.

Call New Pastor.

Children Need Some Facts They Don't Ask About

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

While we're on this subject of the questions children do ask, I'd hate to leave it without taking up the subject of the questions they don't ask.

It is not unusual for a mother to write, "My daughter [or my son] has never asked me a question which has any bearing on sex. She evidently has no curiosity in this direction. Would you thrust such information on her, when evidently she knows nothing?"

Just on general principles I wouldn't thrust any information on a child. But, also on general principles, I don't believe we can give to a child only the information that he asks for definitely. In planning a child's general or academic education we don't wait and give him only what he asks for. We think there are certain things he ought to know and certain things he ought to be helped to think about intelligently.

We see that he is informed along certain lines such as history, mathematics, the world about him. We instruct him in personal hygiene, without waiting for him to ask. So, if we are logical and can keep ourselves as natural and impersonal as we should, we will see that our children have sex education as well as any other kind of education. If they never ask a question about it, we must first lead up to it ourselves and then volunteer necessary information.

But—and with a large B—it is scarcely possible for a normal child never to have asked any of the questions which for want of a better term we class under that head. All small children ask such questions and follow them up—unless those questions are ignored or evaded—or unless the children are shamed out of it. So, at some time all children have asked such questions, even if they've stopped for lack of response.

Sure Way to Get Rid of Dandruff

Girls—if you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to comb or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it; then you destroy it entirely.

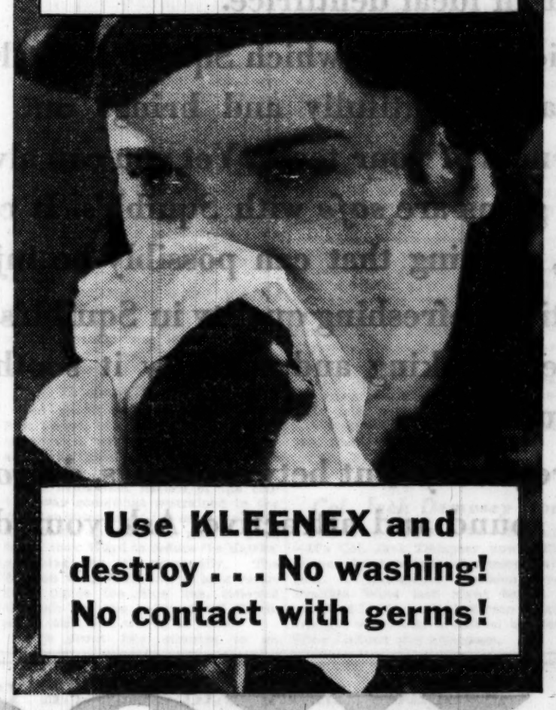
To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. Four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you may have. This simple remedy never fails.

GRIPPE, FLU, COLDS make handkerchief washing repulsive!



Use KLEENEX and destroy . . . No washing! No contact with germs!

THIS advertisement is addressed to every woman who has ever washed a handkerchief used during a cold, grippe, or flu.

Can you think of any more repulsive task? Would you like to escape from it forever?

A new disposable handkerchief!

Thousands of women have done so. You see them everywhere—in public, at home—using a delicate, downy square that looks softer—cleaner—than any handkerchief. It's Kleenex. The new, disposable, sanitary handkerchief that showed us how disgusting the old way really was.

Kleenex is just used once. Then you destroy it. Its amazingly low cost makes this possible. You have no unpleasant washing to do. You store no germ-filled handkerchiefs in laundry bags, to spread infection through other clothing.

And you never use a soiled handkerchief! Never carry germs back to your face. You run no risk of self-infection during colds.

Try Kleenex for beauty

Try Kleenex. And not only for handkerchiefs. Use Kleenex for removing creams and cosmetics. Its extreme absorbency assures you that your pores are really cleared of all impurities.

No one can hide a "DIRTY FACE"

But everyone can avoid it. For we know today the secret of avoiding "Dirty Face." We know that Daggett & Ramsdell's Perfect Cold Cream will route each lazy pore to duty, keep the skin free from dust and blackheads.

Only a balanced cream like Daggett & Ramsdell's Perfect Cold Cream can reach below-the-surface dirt and get rid of it. Only Daggett & Ramsdell's can give the skin the three essentials it must have—and give them all at once, in one application. These three essentials are lubrication, moisture, protection. Three groups of ingredients are put into Perfect Cold Cream for these very purposes—all balanced properly, of course.

Do try this wonderful, different cream. Get a jar and use it regularly. Once or twice every day. Your skin will pay you back in full measure.

The south side last night chose its 16 representatives for the Golden Gloves Tournament of Champions which starts Monday night at the Chicago Stadium. Thirty-two hundred, the largest crowd of the metropolitan sectional trials, saw the finals at White City.

Long before the doors opened at 6 o'clock hundreds were waiting so that they might obtain choice seats at the ringside. Their patience was rewarded by the greatest series of fights in the 1932 Golden Gloves campaign. When last night's bouts started, 64 boys remained in the tournament. This morning the victorious 16, two in each of the eight weight divisions, join with the winners of the west and north sectionals to repel the invasion of the championship teams from five states at the Stadium.

While Chicago now will look to its greatest boxing show, the fifth annual Tournament of Champions, those who have followed the seven nights of sectional campaigning and who were at White City last night have already seen some of the best amateur bouts of the year. The inexperienced lads were missing in last night's finals. Those who competed, except in the heavyweight class, already had won two bouts each on Monday or Tuesday night.

Brand Beats Farrell.

Nearly all the bouts went three rounds and in many only narrow decisions divided the victor and the loser. And all the close fights were not in the final series. One of the best of the program was that between Don Brand of Fort Dodge, Ia., and John Farrell, a left handed lightweight from Robart's Boxing school. For two rounds it would have required a magnifying glass to discover which was the better boxer.

The boys not only fought at a furious pace, but neither was the least bit timid about taking a smack to return it with interest. In the last round, just before the bell, Brand caught Farrell with a hard right hand which dazed the Chicago boy. This undoubtedly brought him the decision.

Then there was Ed Messner of the Visitation C. Y. O. He whipped Jimmy Sands of the Pullman A. A. in three rounds in the semi-finals of the flyweight competition. And when he beat Jimmy he whipped a tough boy. Messner used a great left jab and hook to pile up his winning points.

Too Much for Georgie.

Georgie Trapp, of Postl's Health club, who had fought like a champion Tuesday night, found he couldn't outpoint McClure Carson, a colored welterweight from the Jones Athletic club, and was forced to leave the Golden Gloves trial after three rounds.

Gene Klopack of St. Hilary C. Y. O. also proved he has dynamite in his right hand when he knocked out Harlow Rogers in the first round of their heavyweight battle.

McClure Carson was the first lad to qualify from the south side. He stopped Vincent Satkoff of Coulon's club in two rounds. Satkoff, a mighty fine boxer, was dazed in the first round from a hard right hand blow and never did recover himself.

Marek Appears Tough.

Max Marek of St. Rita C. Y. O. walked into the Tournament of Champions by stopping Chester Zall of Ted Bogan's gym in two rounds. Marek took a few himself, but he weaved in and out, pausing now and then to hammer in powerful body blows which eventually wore down his rival. You'll hear more about Marek.

And if you wish to see the best amateur boxers in five states battle for the right to carry on against New York, you'll be at ringside next week at the Chicago Stadium.

Adam Smith, That Bouncing Baker Boy, Is Back Again

BY FRENCH LANE.

Adam Smith, the big, round boy from Rockford who bounces up and down like a rubber ball when he goes out to do some boxing, is coming back to THE TRIBUNE'S Golden Gloves Tournament of Champions which opens at the Chicago Stadium next Monday night.

Adam is just as big and as round as ever, for he still works in a Rockford bakery. But he came through the Rockford Morning Star's sectional tournament with colors flying, knocked his opponents in every direction, and the folks in Rockford say he will not miss winning a Golden Glove this year.

It's His Third Attempt.

This will be Adam's third try for a Golden Glove and for the last two years one might say he has just been beaten a nose for the championship. Back in 1930 Adam fought nobly and finished second to be the heavyweight runner up to Grant Fortney, the Chicago taxicab driver.

Last year Adam was beaten out by Johnny Long, the freak left hander who was the heavyweight representative of the Gary Post-Tribune team.

Adam will not be traveling over any easy path next week. Last summer in the Central A. A. U. outdoor championships in Chicago he was whipped rather neatly by Duffy Dvonch of Chicago. Just a few nights ago Duffy qualified as one of Chicago's west sectional heavyweights. "And if there is one fellow I know I can whip it is Adam Smith," said Duffy yesterday when he learned that Adam was coming back into Golden Gloves competition as Rockford's representative.

Just about this time Adam was winning his way into the Tournament of Champions and Duffy was telling his neighbors on the west side how he was going to sock Adam, a story came from Kokomo, Ind., about the heavyweight who is to represent the Kokomo Tribune in the Tournament of Champions.

Watch Fred Young.

This fellow's name is Fred Young and he is putting in the winter at the Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey circus camp at Peru, Ind.

For the last few years Young has been the hardest hitting roustabout that has traveled around the country with a circus. When the home town boys started something Young always finished it. So he competed in the heavyweight division of the Kokomo sectional and won away off by himself, according to the way the boys in Kokomo tell about it.

In last year's Tournament of Champions Johnny Long was the Gary Post-Tribune heavyweight champion and Jack Kranz, a steel worker, was the light heavyweight title holder. This year Long is fighting as the light heavyweight and Kranz has stepped up into the heavyweight class.

There is no shortage of heavyweights in this year's Tournament of Champions. From every tournament center come reports of a mighty giant who is ready to whip wildcats, tigers, and lions on his little journey which leads up to the Golden Glove championship. Most of them are newcomers to the ranks of the Golden Glovers.

Celebron, De Shepherd Return.

Two other former champions of the Rockford team are coming back with Adam Smith to help make the Tournament of Champions just a picnic for the folks in Rockford. They are Bill Celebron, welterweight, and Al De Shepherd, flyweight. This boy Celebron made a great showing in last year's Tournament of Champions and a little improvement over his fighting of a year ago may find him a Golden Gloves winner this year.

The folks at Rockford are so confident their boys will go somewhere this year they are coming in large numbers for every session at the Tournament of Champions.

STILL TRYING

GOT READY CASH? WELCOME, PAL, TO OUR GOLF CLUB!

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 24.—Among other consequences of the depression, many citizens have decided to give up their memberships in golf clubs, and any one who has any unemployed money at this time, if interested in the game of golf and the social concomitants of golf, may join into any one of a number of good and hitherto choosey golf clubs at a moderate price and with no questions asked.

A lot of citizens who were interested in play to the almost total exclusion of work a few years ago will be in no mood for play for some time to come. This should be no hardship to the country in general, because, if the old trend of the prosperous era had been continued a little further, the nation would have been composed entirely of two classes, idle and luxurious players and servants to wait on them, or, possibly in time there would have been a third class, composed of servants to wait on the servants who waited on the members.

They May Even Play Golf.

The social standards of golf, and by golf I mean not the game itself but the social program of which the game had become only a small part, will be revised sharply downward. This may be a good thing for the sport, because the fad of luxury and festivity at the golf clubs had relegated the actual pastime of knocking a ball about the greensward to the status of a mere excuse.

Golf clubs in most cases had become luxurious roadhouses, and dances, dinners, card tournaments and numerous other social activities of a character quite unrelated to golf had become the principal concerns of organizations which were theoretically devoted to the game. A golf club house, of course, needs consist of nothing more than a decent place in which the golfers may change their clothes, take their showers, store their equipment and absorb a little plain food and wholesome restoratives. There should also be one or more telephone booths so that the members may, with reasonable privacy, explain why they will be late for dinner.

But beyond these simple necessities, the golf club need not go, and all the orchestras, the jeweled plumbing, the swimming pools inlaid with sapphires, the modernistic bars, the hotel quarters for the members and the guests of members who find themselves physically unable or merely disinclined to go home, are merely the developments of that prosperous frame of mind in which so many thousands of people imagined themselves to be Vanderbilts once or at most twice removed.

It is no exaggeration to say that the emperor has never lived who enjoyed the facilities which the average

Abel Scores Two Goals as Hawks Defeat Maroons, 3-1

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Those big, brutal Montreal Maroons thundered into the Chicago Stadium last night with every intention of stepping all over the young Blackhawks. But they reckoned without the largest of those Hawks, an elderly, bald pated gentleman named Taffy Abel. For their lack of foresight they were punished by a 3 to 1 defeat, two-thirds of the winning score being compiled by the same Taffy.

It was probably the biggest evening in the Blackhawk career of old Mr. Abel. Game after game he has hung back, fending off the attackers of Chuck Gardiner. There was an occasional solo dash for himself, but for the most part Taffy tended to his knitting while such fleet youths as Gottselig, Ripley, and Couture were down at the scoring end of the ring.

He had scored once earlier in the season and that was his first goal in two years.

Penalties Were Plentiful.

Neither team left any doubt about its intentions of winning, and the first few minutes found plenty of spirited skating, not to mention a great deal of bumping, particularly on the part of the robust Maroons.

The celerity of the Hawks proved to be the basis of the first goal. The alert Gottselig dropped square into the middle of a Montreal foray and shot the puck to Couture. Lolo then executed several fancy polkas around the Montreal defense and finished up driving home the score in 3:35.

The warfare became heated here and a parade to the penalty box, comprised largely of Maroons, ensued. Thompson and Brydson began it with a high sticking duel which eventually banished both. Ward and Bostrom then conducted a slashing bout in the corner of the rink until Referee Hewitson called it a draw and sent them both away.

Abel then sent the Hawk customers into a hysteria by making the score 2 to 0. Holmes and Wentworth assisted him, but Taffy drew all the cheers.

Cook and March caused the red light to flicker for what appeared to be the Hawks' third goal, but it was nullified when the officials decided that Tommy had interfered with Goalie Walsh.

Thompson Is Bad Boy.

Ten penalties were levied in the first period, nine of them of a minor complexion, while a ten minute penalty was presented to Siebert for sassing the referee.

The belligerent nature of the contest was somewhat restrained in the first ten minutes of the second period. The battle shifted from goal to goal, but it took Ward to reduce the Hawks' advantage by one personally. The Maroon wing fired one at long range from inside the Blue line, followed through for the rebound off Gardiner's stick, and scored in 10:55.

With about two minutes to go Thompson, who had been doing some plain and fancy skating, engaged in what was called a high sticking argument with Wilcox, although both seemed eager to continue it without benefit of weapons, and Wilcox went so far as to remove one glove when he was restrained by Ward. It was Thompson's third penalty of the game.

One More for Hawks.

The third period began even more savagely than its predecessors, but somehow both teams kept their fury within the letter of the law and only two sentences to the jail house were recorded.

The Hawk defense did itself proud several times. Once Trottier, who presented Stew Adams of the Hawks with a broken arm on the Maroons' last appearance here, slyly flicked a shot at Gardiner, caught the rebound, and shoved it across to Siebert, but Chuck turned back the latter's almost open shot.

With the whole Maroon team playing down ice, Abel picked up a loose puck and, with the Montreal territory undefended, scored the third and final Hawk goal in 19:30.

Don't Forget, Boys, It's Col. Jack Dempsey Now

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 24.—[Special.]—It's Col. Jack Dempsey now. The former heavyweight champion, who won a newspaper decision over Frankie Wine last night before a crowd of 13,000 in the Jefferson county armory, was made a colonel by Gov. Ruby Laffoon this afternoon.

CROWLEY DELAYS ACTION ON IOWA COACHING OFFER

East Lansing, Mich., Feb. 24.—(AP)—The decision of James H. Crowley, Michigan State college football coach, on the third offer made to him by University of Iowa, was held in abeyance tonight at the request of his present employers.

While Dean Chester A. Phillips of the Hawkeye athletic board watchfully waited in Ypsilanti, Mich., and communicated with Crowley by telephone President Robert S. Shaw of the State college today asked Crowley to wait "at least 48 hours."

Crowley had told President Shaw of the offer at a "substantial increase in salary." Shaw asked the delay "in fairness" to the college, with which Crowley has a contract to serve two more years. Meanwhile, Shaw began a series of conferences with State college athletic officials, apparently to seek more money for the coach.

College authorities have indicated they will release Crowley from his contract if he asks it, and it is the campus consensus that he will do so unless his salary here is raised.

HAWKEYES HAVE HOPES.

Iowa City, Ia., Feb. 24.—(AP)—While James H. Crowley conferred with Michigan State and University of Iowa officials over where he would coach next year, Hawkeye athletic authorities awaited hopefully today his decision to move his activities to Iowa City. Iowa is reported to have offered him a substantial raise over his salary at Michigan State.

Crowley's request for a delay before making his decision was interpreted as adverse to Iowa's chances of obtaining him. Dean Phillips of the athletic board, who has been handling the negotiations, had intimated previously to Iowa officials that the chances were about even for him to remain at Michigan State and the delay showed considerable hesitancy on Crowley's part toward making the change.

STUDENTS WANT CRISLER

Minneapolis, Minn., Feb. 24.—[Special.]—A plea by the Minnesota Daily, student publication, and the present football squad to retain Fritz Crisler as athletic director was voiced today to university authorities.

Fred B. Snyder, president of the board of regents, is expected to confer with Crisler tomorrow, but Crisler's friends believe he has made up his mind to leave Minnesota and go to Princeton as head football coach.

The Minnesota Daily, in a first page editorial, demanded that "vacillating officials of the country's third largest university meet the 'market price' to keep Crisler as director."

Speed Records

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Feb. 24.—(AP)—The new world's automobile speed record of 253.968 miles an hour, established today by Sir Malcolm Campbell of England, is the sixth to be set over a mile route here since the late Sir Henry Segrave, also of Great Britain, startled the world by driving an automobile faster than 200 miles an hour over the ocean speedway in 1927. Following is a list of records hung up here since that time:

Date—	Driver.	M. P. H.
March 29, 1927....	Segrave	203.790
Feb. 19, 1928.....	Campbell	206.956
April 22, 1928.....	Ray Keech	207.552
March 11, 1929....	Segrave	231.362
Feb. 5, 1931.....	Campbell	245.733
Feb. 24, 1932.....	Campbell	253.968

Daytona Beach, Fla., Feb. 24.—[Special.]—Hazarding a gusty cross wind that at times threatened to blow his powerful Bluebird racing car off the course, Sir Malcolm Campbell set a new world's automobile speed record of 253.968 miles an hour on the ocean speedway today.

Campbell was timed by the electrical clock at 267.459 miles an hour on his first run, which was made south with a stiff northeast wind on the rear quarter of his car. The elapsed time over the record mile was 13.46 seconds.

Without changing tires and without even stopping at the end of the 12 mile course, the British driver turned and drove back north against the wind, passing the record mile in 14.89 seconds, an average speed of 241.773 miles an hour. The record speed was computed from the average elapsed time for the two runs.

He Fooled Officials.

This average elapsed time taken with and against the wind was 14.175 seconds. His record today exceeded by 8.235 miles an hour his record of 245.733 miles an hour established last year.

Before making his first run Campbell announced he would drive his Bluebird car southward to test the course, indicating he would not attempt record speed. A few minutes later the powerful car with its 12 cylinder Napier motor roaring from an open throttle hurtled past the timing tower, splashed through several patches of shallow water and disappeared in its own black smoke down the beach.

Before A. A. A. officials could compute the time for this run, the course telephone operators announced Campbell was returning and in a few minutes he drove northward against the wind, completing the entire record performance and covering 24 miles in less than 15 minutes.

Hand Splits Open.

After setting the new record Campbell said he was much disappointed and wished to try again, but the tide had set in and officials advised him to wait. He immediately announced that if conditions were favorable tomorrow he would go for all records, including the five and ten mile marks.

"I estimate the velocity of wind across the course today at 40 miles an hour," Campbell said, "and besides losing speed going north I had to fight the wind all the way to keep it from blowing the car clear off the course."

He showed his hands. The skin on the palm of the left one was split open from gripping the wheel, and both were nearly blistered. He said the course was inferior to that last year when he set the record of 245 miles an hour. Today he drove through four patches of water.

Going south, he said, the car picked up splendidly all the way and reached a maximum of 270 miles an hour, according to tachometer reading, which showed a maximum of 3,750 motor revolutions per minute. But returning north the best he could get out of the engine was 3,400 revolutions. He said that on his windward run he had passed the record mile before reaching maximum speed.

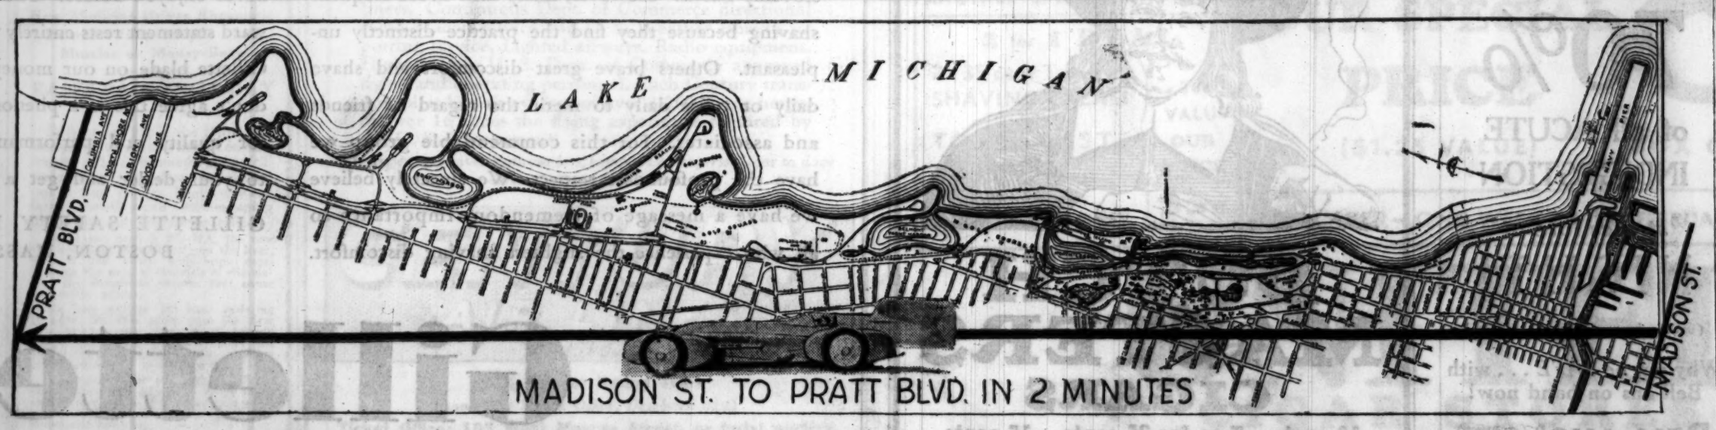
Gets Five Mile Start.

Campbell today took a five and one-half mile rolling start for each run, driving without difficulty under the 45 foot arch of an ocean pier at a speed of 100 miles an hour.

In addition to breaking the record for the mile Campbell set new marks for the one kilometer and five kilometer distances today, and also attacked the five mile record of 211.07 miles an hour set by him at the Verneuk pan course in South Africa. The attempt at the latter distance failed, however, for the reason that the timing trap failed to register on the run north and an average for the two runs was not recorded.

His average time today for the one kilometer distance was 8.90 seconds, an average speed over the distance of 251.940 miles an hour. His run south over this distance was made in 8.53 seconds, for a speed of 262.242 miles an hour. Northward his time was 9.27 seconds, a speed of 241.308 miles an hour. His record today upset his former mark of 246.086 miles an hour, made here last year.

HOW TO GO HOME IN A HURRY AS THE BLUEBIRD DOES IT



Here's how Sir Malcolm Campbell could get you home in the evening if you live on the north side and there weren't any traffic policemen to interfere with his driving at the speed of 253.968 miles per hour which he made yesterday at Daytona Beach, Fla., in his motor car, the Bluebird. Campbell could start at Madison street as the traffic light flashed green and set you down at Pratt boulevard, a straight line distance of eight and one-half miles, in exactly two minutes and one-half second. Ripping along at a mile every 14.175 seconds, he could pass Chicago avenue in the time it required Gene Tunney to take his long count.

Bozeman Adds to Lead in All-Star 3 Cushion Meet

Jay J. Bozeman, young Californian, holds a full game lead as the result of two victories in the all-star, five-handed, three-cushion billiard tournament at the Kieckhefer Recreation yesterday. In the afternoon he defeated Welker Cochran and at night he took the measure of Art Thurnblad, the 1931 world's champion.

Other features of the third day of play were Willie Hoppe's first victory in four games, the balkline star defeating Augie Kieckhefer, the present world's champion, and Kieckhefer coming back with a hard fought triumph over Cochran.

Bozeman defeated Cochran, 40 to 38, in 48 innings in the first afternoon game. His high run was 7, Cochran's 7. Hoppe defeated Kieckhefer, 40 to 36, in 38 innings, in the second afternoon game. Both had high runs of 5. Bozeman defeated Thurnblad, 40 to 20, in 40 innings, in the first night game. His high run was 7, Thurnblad's 5. Schaaf and Stribling End Boxing Drill

Young Stribling and Ernie Schaaf finished boxing yesterday for their ten round appearance at the Chicago Stadium tomorrow night in one of the oustanding heavyweight fights of the year.

The National Boxing association has dropped Stribling to fifth place among the heavyweights since his unsuccessful attempt to lift Max Schmeling's crown, and Schaaf has been elevated to fourth, following his 20 victories in 21 starts. According to the N. B. A. ratings only the champion, Sharkey, and Walker are ahead of Schaaf and the Georgian. Tomorrow's bout may result in further shifting of the standings.

Schaaf Cuts Drill.

Schaaf wound up his boxing by sparring two rounds with Ed Wills. The drill was set at three rounds, but Ernie cut Wills' lips with a stiff left jab and Wills was unable to continue. Schaaf then finished his workout by shadow boxing three rounds and punching the light bag two more. He weighed 210 pounds, but expects to go into the ring at 208 pounds. He will do only light exercises today.

Stribling, who worked at Trafton's gym an hour later than Schaaf, boxed the usual four rounds, two each with Al Fay, who meets Tommy Davenport in a six round supporting bout on the card, and Tom Jones. He concentrated on a left jab and hook, despite his father-manager's declaration that Schaaf is wide open for the Georgian's natural right hand. Stribling expects to knock out Schaaf. He scaled 188¾ pounds after the drill.

Walker to See Match.

Walker, who expects to meet the winner, will watch the match before leaving for Denver, where he faces Roy [Ace] Clark, 215 pound Philadelphia Negro, March 8. Col. Jack Dempsey arrives in Chicago today from Frankfort, Ky., to see the bout with a view toward meeting the victor next summer.

Adolph Heuser of Germany, who was injured while defeating Nick Palmer several days ago, was forced to withdraw from the Clyde Chastain bout on the card.

Henry Lenard, South Chicago southpaw, and Joey Freeman signed yesterday to meet in a six round match at White City Monday. The contest will be Lenard's second in almost a year. Freeman has won 39 matches in 40 professional encounters. Five other combats are on the program, with Kid Leonard, Moline middleweight, meeting Freddy Eiler of Louisville in the windup.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

BASKET OFFICIATING.

BASKETBALL officiating, in The Wake's opinion, is the most difficult of all arbitration in sport.

Not only are officials subject to severe physical tax in following the floor play from end to end in quick changes of ball possession, but they must give rapid-fire verdits on fouls and penalties that are required in no other game. Their edicts, too, are largely a matter of judgment, which adds greatly to the task and also adds to the criticism."

The Wake, in a reportorial capacity, is called upon to view many sports events. Offhand, we would say that we agree with officials in 90 per cent of their football decisions, in 98 per cent of their baseball decisions, in 80 per cent of their ring decisions, and possibly about 70 per cent of their basketball decisions. Yet, unless it is a palpable case, in which public interest is concerned, we do not question officiating judgment. Officials are nearer the scene of action. They make it a study. We have a working knowledge of all sports, but view the affair from the standpoint of the public.

Just now an Indiana university publication is launching a crusade against what it calls the "old guard" of basketball officials. It is raising a cry for new blood. This cry has been echoed in other centers. Perhaps it is justified in some instances. But what is the remedy? New and inexperienced men, probably!

We went right to headquarters and asked Commissioner John L. Griffith how he appointed officials for the Big Ten basketball contests.

"The men now working," he replied, "are those most favored by all coaches of Big Ten teams."

"Do they make mistakes?"

"Probably."

"Can't you eradicate that?"

"How? At Saturday's Chicago-Ohio State game I sat with L. W. St. John of Ohio State, who is chairman of the basketball rules committee. I have coached basketball. About half the time we didn't agree on fouls called. Supposedly we both are expert in basketball, so you see what the officials are up against."

"How about some new blood?"

"Unless the men were exceptional, and we're always looking for that kind, they wouldn't last more than two or three games. Probably our officials make mistakes in such an exacting rôle, but they're experienced and honest. That's the best we can do."

What more can be asked? We hereby agree not to question any decisions in games at which we are a spectator only.

Sox Go South; Omit Promise to Win Flag

The annual optimistic pre-season prediction was missing yesterday when the White Sox boarded a train at the Union station for Mineral Wells, Tex., on the first leg of their spring training trip. The players will stay a week at Mineral Wells before leaving for the camp at San Antonio.

Unlike his predecessors, some of whom were free in predicting the Hose would finish in the first division, Manager Lew Fonseca refused to say whether or not he thought the Sox will be among the first four teams at the end of the season.

"We'll wait and see what happens when the season opens," declared Fonseca, who is beginning his first year as pilot of the club, having taken the reins from Donie Bush, who resigned.

In the party which started south were Red Faber, veteran pitcher; Hal McKain, Frank Grube, Irving Hadley, Sam Jones, and Bob Fothergill. Harold Anderson, who was obtained from St. Paul, and Catcher Benny Tate will climb abroad the train at St. Louis.

Three former members of Midwest league clubs, who will be given a trial, also were in the party. They are Bruce Campbell, Joe Bartulis, and Clyde Bower. They received engraved belts from the officials of the league.

SPECIAL CLASSES KEEP CUBS BUSY FOR THREE HOURS

Taylor's Stock as Regular Takes Jump.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Avalon, Catalina Island, Feb. 24.—[Special.]—The Cubs' training school for rookies was operating at full blast for three sunny hours today. Everybody on the premises with a rating of Doctor of Baseball was given a class and the young fellows had to listen to and watch about every demonstration imaginable.

Manager Hornsby conducted one school down at the sliding pit, located at the far right edge of the palm fringed field. Coach O'Leary looked after the veterans like Charley Root, Pat Malone and Gabby Hartnett to make sure they didn't become over enthusiastic. Coach Red Corriden was offering instructions to any and all who care to absorb some of the fine points of the profession.

Hornsby Likes Taylor.

And Old Grover Cleveland Alexander, as sprightly as any person on the lot, volunteered to show budding prospects such as Lon Warneke and Johnny Welch, just what it was that made him a great pitcher. It was Alex's instructions some years ago, that converted Guy Bush from a green pea thrower into a moundsman of consequence. Alex knows how to tell 'em things.

Manager Hornsby evidently isn't kidding about his belief that Harry Taylor, the ex-East Chicago High school boy, might develop into a successor to Charley Grimm at first base. When he started his individual instructions, he summoned Taylor along with Billy Herman and Stanley Hack, who are slated to be the respective second and third basemen.

First he gave them more sliding exercises and then made them demonstrate their ability at rounding a base. Later Marvin Gudat, the outfielder drafted from the Columbus American Association club, was asked to join this select group. An outfielder is sorely needed and Gudat is going to have plenty opportunity to prove he is better—or not as good—as either Johnny Moore or Dan Taylor.

Malone Looks Fit.

O'Leary had to keep Malone under surveillance because the big fellow wants to overdo things. That's how well Pat is handling himself, thus far, in his determination to prove he isn't quite as much of a playboy as his previous performances indicate. Pat has worked so strenuously that he has shed poundage faster than a Scotchman running out on a café check. He has pitched in batting practice every day and Hornsby has had to caution him repeatedly about getting reckless with his arm, which now appears to be in condition.

Notice: Cubs' Left Field Job Taken, Says Stephenson

North Platte, Neb., Feb. 24.—[Special.]—Left field is one position on the Chicago Cubs' team that isn't open for some newcomer on the club roster. You have the word of one Jackson Riggs Stephenson for that.

Stephenson is a member of the party of Cub regulars traveling westward to join the rookies in spring training and, contrary to his habit of recent years, he is the life of the party. After spending half of last season nursing a broken ankle he is eager to get back into the game, and he feels that it's going to be a pretty frisky youngster who takes his left field berth away from him.

"My ankle feels all right now," he explained. "I walked a lot on it this winter and hunted a lot last fall. I officiated in football games. After running in those games it would hurt a little, but that's something that can't be helped. It'll probably hurt for a while when I run, but it's all well and I'll be in there swinging."

member of the American golf club regarded as quite ordinary during the last few years of the boom. Buckingham palace is an old building, and the king's own royal bath water undoubtedly is brought to the English conception of a boil, which is to say that the chill is removed from it, by that marvel of English household convenience and luxury, the gas geyser, which has a capacity of one demi-tasse per hour.

I have never heard of such an outrage in an American suburban golf club, but if it had ever happened that a member had turned the hot water tap in his plate glass shower booth and the water had not gushed forth in a stream hard enough to knock the cupola off a courthouse and hot enough to boil an egg at forty rods, the matter would have been taken up by the house committee and the thing would have gone very hard, indeed, with the responsible parties.

It was a matter for boasting a few years ago that there were so and so many thousand golf clubs in the United States. Possibly some of these clubs either will be disbanded or closed, but in the majority of cases it is likely that the program and the luxury which have come to mean golf in this country will be curtailed all to the advantage of the game itself and, possibly to the relief of some surviving members, who only wanted to play golf in the first place and found themselves assessed, pro rata, for the social activities of other members and their families.

Password Is, "I've Got a Dollar."

In my travels through the suburbs along the route of the 5:15 I have noticed of late large signs profaning the once sacrosanct premises of expensive golf clubs, announcing in blunt, understandable language that one and all may knock the little ball around at a price of $1 per head for 18 holes. There is no waiting list, apparently, and the American dollar bill laid down on the secretary's desk is now the equivalent of the social references, the initiation fee, and the dues which were required not so long ago. This seems to be a fair price. During the boom, members of golf clubs estimated that the cost of a round of golf, including the running expense for membership, for dues, for entertainment, equipment, and one thing and another was from $10 to $35.

There was one club on the east coast of Florida which may still be in existence, which had an initiation fee of $5,000 and other costs and fees in proportion. Inasmuch as it was in operation only a few months every year and inasmuch as few of the members played the course more than thirty days per year, the cost per round there may have been $100 or more. Of course there were orchestras hidden behind the palms at every turn and the waiters and other help wore sneakers lest the members become aware of their presence, but I imagine that a man could go out and shoot himself a fair average mess of golf of an afternoon without any orchestras, and even if he knew that he might have to step and fetch it himself when he returned to the grill for his meal and his sedatives.

It's Not So Tough.

I have seen some of the very best people eating hamburgers on high stools in lunch wagons in the small hours of the morning in West Palm Beach and elsewhere and apparently enjoying themselves, and if the very best people can make light of such hardships, it should not be too hard for the generation which is only one or two generations removed from the red flannel shirt to forego some of the fittings and the illusions of Piping Rock and Meadowbrook and bang out some golf next summer, even though there be no truffles on the menu.

It will be a social blow to some persons who had begun to be accustomed to the soft sound of the club steward's respectful "Yes, sir" and his "Yes, madam" to find golf and golf only at their clubs next spring. But after all, an entire nation cannot be composed of royalty, and golf itself is a simple matter of long walk in the country, interrupted by occasional swipes at a ball.

Aknahton, Turf's Mr. Hyde, Bobs Up as Ringer Again

Miami, Fla., Feb. 24.—[Special.]—Racing officials uncovered a ringer case here today when it was discovered that Gallmont, which ran as a three-year-old in the third race at Hialeah Park yesterday, was Aknahton, a four-year-old which figured in the sensational ringing case at Havre De Grace last fall. At the Maryland track Aknahton ran as Shem.

The Havre de Grace swindle resulted in Nigger Nate Raymond and five or six others blamed for the affair being ruled off the Maryland turf.

In yesterday's race the horse was run in the name of Willis Kane. Kane could not be found today. A. F. Travenner, the trainer, told stewards that Kane turned the horse over to him about three weeks ago.

Gallmont stuck among the leaders during most of the race, but began to fold up in the stretch. He finished 11th in the field of fourteen. Stewards became suspicious of him when one of them happened to notice his peculiar coloring after the race. Investigation disclosed he had been dyed overnight and that the sweat raised by the race had caused the coloring to run irregular.

'STOLEN SWORD' GIVEN PERSHING BY VENEZUELAN

Patriot Says Blade Was Taken from Museum.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 24.—[Special.]—Rafael de Nogales, Venezuelan patriot and former Turkish general, is all excited about a sword. He came right out in public this afternoon with the charge that a particularly historic blade presented in the name of his country to Gen. John J. Pershing was stolen from the National museum in Caracus. Señor de Nogales wants the sword returned to the museum.

President Hoover, Secretary of State Stimson and a single action pistol also have a part in Señor Nogales' endeavors to right a wrong. Congress is implicated and Juan Vincent Gomez, the Venezuelan dictator, is pictured as the arch wrongdoer.

Serious Matter, He Says.

It is a serious matter to all of Latin-America, says Señor de Nogales, for the steel weapon is one once waved in battle by Gen. Jose Antonio Paez, in leading Latin-American armies in wars for freedom.

It happened this way. Gen. Pershing paid a visit to Venezuela back in 1925 and soon afterward Dictator Gomez forwarded, through diplomatic channels, the sword in question as a gift to Gen. Pershing.

Complications immediately arose as the Latin-American press registered a loud outcry and Gen. Pershing left the sword in government vaults. And now the relic is rusting at Washington and Señor De Nogales is awaiting the decision of congress as to whether Gen. Pershing shall or shall not be allowed to accept the sword as a souvenir.

Sees Request for Return.

"I am positive that if the relic is not returned promptly to where it belongs, that is, to the National Museum of Caracas, a future really representative and constitutional congress in Venezuela will not fail to make the necessary diplomatic representations to the United States for recovery of the sword," Señor de Nogales declared.

The state department, inquiry revealed, is of the opinion that Señor de Nogales should write his letters to the Venezuelan government. If the Venezuelan government wants the sword back, it will get it back.

WOMAN CLAIMS A FOUNDLING AS HEIR TO ESTATE

Cleveland, O., Feb. 24.—[Special.]—Terry Tower, three months old infant abandoned here a few hours after birth, today was the center of a mystery in which police of two cities look on the insistence of Mrs. Christine Smith that she is the mother of the baby as an attempt to share in a $30,000 estate.

Mrs. Smith, young widow of a once prominent Buffalo physician, reiterated her original contention that the child, named Terry Tower by nurses at St. Ann's hospital, where it was taken following its discovery Dec. 2 in the new Union Terminal tower, is her own.

On the outcome of the case depends ultimate disposition of a $30,000 share in the estate of the late Mrs. T. Guilford Smith of Buffalo, mother-in-law of the woman.

The terms of her will provided that in case of the death of her sons, Dr. Smith and Pemberton Smith of Larchmont, N. Y., the estate should go to their children. Dr. Smith, who died last August, was believed to have been childless until his widow appeared in Buffalo last month with a baby which she claimed had been born at the home of a sister in Cleveland.

The baby later was identified as Terry Tower. Police say Mrs. Smith once admitted under questioning that the child was not hers, but since has returned to her original contention. The child still is in Snyder, N. Y., a suburb of Buffalo.

AUTO ACCIDENT DEATH TOLL IS RAISED TO 171

Two fatalities in Cook county yesterday increased the automobile toll for 1932 to 171. The victims:

William Fetters, 76 years old, 7761 Harper avenue. Died at his home from a broken neck suffered Dec. 1 when he was struck by an automobile at 78th street and Stony Island avenue. The driver was John R. Vanderveer, 8818 Dante avenue.

Stephen Galowitsch, 71 years old, 6132 North California avenue. Died in Keystone hospital from injuries received when he was struck by the automobile of a hit-and-run driver as he waited for a street car at North Crawford and Dickens avenues last night. The license number of the car was traced to Harold McCabe, 6101 North Washtenaw avenue. McCabe had reported the automobile stolen after the accident, police said.

Policeman Glenn Reaser, 27 years old, 1822 West Monroe street, and Samuel Leathen, 33 years old, 2441 Flournoy street, a city fireman, were injured yesterday when their sedan collided with another car at Wood street and Ogden avenue.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Pals

TRADERS BATTLE PROPOSED CURB ON SHORT SALES

House Balked in Effort to Speed Bill.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 24.—[Special.]—Opposition to federal regulation of short selling in both security and commodity exchanges developed on congressional fronts today.

RICHARD WHITNEY.

Richard Whitney, president of the New York Stock exchange, told a subcommittee of the house judiciary committee that "short selling is a necessary and useful practice."

"It is an outstanding achievement that our market has stayed open," Mr. Whitney declared. "If there was no short selling I am confident the market would have closed months ago."

"Saved by Exchange."

Mr. Whitney asserted that the "huge total" of loans based on securities in this country had remained liquid because the exchange stayed open. Had they become illiquid, he said, "our entire banking system would have been devastatingly affected."

"Short selling is not a dominant factor in security prices," the exchange head told the committee. "Though the exchange has been under closer supervision for the last year than ever before, we have failed to discover any evidence of organized short selling or bear raids."

Meanwhile representatives of the grain trade, learning details of a bill designed to curb short selling, succeeded in forcing the house agricultural committee to hold public hearings on the measure next Friday in order to give them an opportunity of expressing their opposition.

Would Limit Volume.

The bill, in the form of an amendment of the grain futures act, would regulate futures exchanges by giving the secretary of agriculture discretionary power over the amount of cotton or grain which could be traded in on any one day.

A majority of the house is reported to have contemplated reporting the measure out without a hearing and pushing it through before the grain trade and other interested parties became aware of what was happening.

The proposed measure would place all agricultural commodities under the control of the grain futures administration in the same manner as wheat is now controlled, by substituting the word "commodities" for the word "grain."

3 DEAD, 3 BURNED AS FLAMES RAZE MICHIGAN HOME

Wolverine, Mich., Feb. 24.—(AP)—Three persons were killed and three others seriously burned early today in a fire which destroyed the home of Lee Hetrick here.

Mrs. Hetrick, an 18 months old son, Burton, and a 2 months old daughter were burned to death. Hetrick, a daughter, Marion, 4, and another daughter, Dorothy, 3, were seriously burned.

Hetrick awoke to find the house in flames. He threw Dorothy out a window and carried Marion outside. Flames prevented his reëntering to save other members of the family.

Quarantine Put on Dogs in South End of County

State Veterinarian W. H. Welch announced a quarantine of all dogs yesterday in Bremen, Thornton, Bloom, and Rich townships following the discovery of rabies in the area. All dogs must be tied up or they will be shot by policemen, Dr. Welch said. The disease was discovered after stock had been bitten by dogs.

Poet's Widow Dies

Mrs. William Vaughn Moody.

Funeral services for Mrs. William Vaughn Moody, widow of the poet and dramatist, will be held tomorrow. In keeping with her last request, the services will be private and no formal announcement will be made. Mrs. Moody died of bronchial asthma in her home at 2970 Ellis avenue on Monday night after a short illness.

Mr. Moody, the author of "The Great Divide," and other plays, died in 1910, but Mrs. Moody's home continued to be a gathering place for artists and writers in Chicago. Among her recent visitors had been John Masefield, England's poet laureate; Rabindranath Tagore, India's mystic poet; James Stephens, Irish poet, and Padraic Colum, Irish writer.

Born in Parkman, O., Mrs. Moody attended finishing schools in the east and was graduated at Cornell university of which she subsequently was a trustee. Mrs. Moody came to Chicago in 1899, and became an instructor in English at the Hyde Park High school. She met Mr. Moody, then professor of English literature at the University of Chicago. They were married in 1909.

Mrs. Moody relinquished in 1929 the ownership of Le Petit Gourmet, a French restaurant at 615 North Michigan avenue, and the Home Delicacies association, which she had founded. She was a member of the Fortnightly, Woman's, College and Arts clubs of Chicago. Mrs. Moody is survived by a niece, Miss Alice Harriet Tilden, a student at the University of Southern California.

FATHER COUGHLIN SUES PUBLISHERS OF RADIO TALKS

Baltimore, Md., Feb. 24.—(AP)—The Rev. Charles E. Coughlin of Detroit and the Radio League of the Little Flower, a Michigan corporation which sponsors the priest's radio sermons, filed suit in federal court here today to prevent further publication of "Father Coughlin's radio sermons complete."

The suit asked an injunction against Knox & O'Leary, Baltimore publishers, and was made returnable March 18 on a show cause order.

In addition to the restraining order, the action asked the court to declare an alleged contract between the priest and the publishers null and void and to award damage, the amount to be set by the court, for inconveniences suffered as result of the controversy over the book.

Mass to Be Celebrated for Rev. John F. Neenan

A solemn requiem mass will be celebrated tomorrow morning at Holy Family church, 1076 West Roosevelt road, for the Rev. John F. Neenan, S. J., former pastor of the church. The Rev. M. Joseph Heeney, pastor of St. Ferdinand's church and a close friend of Father Neenan, will deliver an oration. Father Neenan died last Friday at St. Mary's, Kas., where he was buried. He was 60 years old. He was a former teacher in St. Ignatius High school and for 12 years was pastor of the Holy Family Catholic church. In 1915 he was transferred to Cincinnati, later to become superior of the Jesuit mission in British Honduras.

EXTORTION NOTE DEMANDS $1,000; JAIL MESSENGER

Four days ago Karl Harig, 6030 North Rockwell street, a member of the firm of the Brust-Harig Manufacturing company, Inc., die makers at 1735 Carroll avenue, received a crudely printed note instructing him to go to his bank, draw out $1,000 and pay it to a boy who would call at his home. The note threatened him and his two children, Herbert, 16 years old, and Bertha, 13, with death if he told the police. He did not.

Last night Harig answered a knock at the rear door. A boy entered and asked for the money. Harig procured his revolver and took the boy to the home of Policeman Joseph Seiler, who lives next door at 6032 North Rockwell street. At the Summerdale police station the boy said he was Frank Weil, 16 years old, of 1724 North Washtenaw avenue. He refused to discuss the note or the threats. Police found he was not known at the Washtenaw avenue address. He was turned over to the juvenile authorities.

WM. D. YOUNG, RETIRED BROKER, IS DEAD AT 63

William Denison Young, 63 years old, 804 Forest avenue, Highland Park, a retired merchandise broker, died in his home yesterday after an illness of a year. Up until the first of the year, when the partnership was dissolved, he was senior partner of Young & Livingston, 435 West Ontario street. Mr. Young, who was a graduate of Yale university, was born in New London, Conn., and had been engaged in business in Chicago for the last 25 years. He was a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity. Surviving him are his widow, Mrs. Grace Young, and a daughter, Alice. Funeral services will be held at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning at St. Mary's Roman Catholic church, Lake Forest. Burial will be in St. Mary's cemetery, Lake Forest.

W. D. COOLIDGE GETS WASHINGTON SCIENCE AWARD

William David Coolidge, associate director of the General Electric Research laboratory, was presented with the Washington award for 1932 for developing ductile tungsten and the X-ray tube, at a meeting of the Western Society of Engineers in the Hotel Sherman last night. The award is given annually jointly by the society and the American Society of Engineers, the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers, the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, and the American Institute of Electrical Engineers.

The presentation was made by Frank D. Chase, president of the Western Society of Engineers. Dr. Harry Woodburn Chase, president of the University of Illinois, was the principal speaker of the evening.

EAGER TO TELL ABOUT HER STOMACH

"I want to tell others about my experience with Pape's Diapepsin," says Mrs. B. Eastman, 1200 California St., Denver, Colo. "I tried a lot of things for my indigestion, but none of them did any good. Then a friend persuaded me to take a few tablets of this wonderful preparation.

"Now I even eat cabbage without any distress afterwards. It used to cause real suffering. I am not nearly so nervous as I used to be; feel much stronger and better in every way."

A medicine must have real merit to bring forth enthusiastic statements like this. And when not one, but hundreds, even thousands, are telling the same story of success, there seems no reason to doubt the day-in and day-out reliability of Pape's Diapepsin to help stomach sufferers.

These harmless, candy-like tablets relieve the heartburn, nausea, gas, belching, headaches, dizziness and other symptoms of indigestion.

through his own neglect!

It was just a scratch at first—he thought nothing of it.

Then it festered . . . blood poison set in . . . amputation followed!

That's not unusual! Any break in the skin is an entering place for germs.

It's not enough to kill the germs already present — you have to keep new germs from getting in.

That's why Unguentine is the ideal antiseptic—it's in ointment form. It stays on the cut and keeps on guarding against infection.

Don't wait until the accident happens—order Unguentine today and keep it handy always.

COLDS

Must be driven out from within

Science says that the cold germ is an ultravirus . . . invisible even under the microscope.

All that is known is that the infection gets into the system, producing a poisonous substance which shows up in sneezing, headaches, sore throat, feverish condition, cold-aches and pains . . . and, unless this infection is destroyed and driven out, it often develops into other serious ills.

Bromo Quinine has been proved the most effective method of destroying cold infection and expelling it from the system.

IN WHICH COPS' TEA MANNERS ARE PUT TO TEST

Detective bureau squads and police from the Chicago avenue station rushed to the office of Simpson & Alexander, contractors, at 25 West Illinois street last night when a call was broadcast that burglars were in the place. The watchman had sent in the alarm when he heard noises in the office. But when the police arrived all they found was three Northwestern university co-eds, one of them a daughter of one of the partners in the concern. They were Miss Agnes Alexander, 7 East 113th street; Marion Schuh, 11212 Indiana avenue, and Louise De Boer, 18 East 113th street. Miss Alexander explained that they passed the office and decided to go in to make a cup of tea. The girls gave the policemen tea and told their fortune with tea leaves.

BANKERS HOLD RED TAPE SLOWS RELIEF ACTION

Industry Continues to Step Warily.

BY O. A. MATHER.

Governmental efforts to revive business and industry haven't been much more effective than kindred efforts to reduce expenditures and taxes. There have been so many false starts by the administration and congress in Washington that hard headed financiers and business men have adopted a distinctly skeptical attitude.

While nobody is willing to deride any effort or measure designed to foster a revival from depression, it is the private comment of Chicago bankers and business leaders that bungling and red tape have minimized the benefit of measures that otherwise might have been effective. For example, the restrictions imposed in the Glass-Steagall bill on loans to be made by the Reconstruction Finance corporation is a case in point. Another is the red tape which delays the making of loans and, in the case of banks, virtually defeats emergency aid.

Proceed Cautiously.

The fact that the big industries are not expecting or relying much on governmental restoratives for ailing business is suggested in the midweek reviews of the steel trade. The two principal consuming lines, automobiles and railroads, are proceeding cautiously.

"Industrial production, as reflected in orders for steel, has shown no response to that obvious improvement in business sentiment that has resulted from government efforts to bring about economic recovery," the Iron Age says. "Steel ingot production has, in fact, declined another point this week to 26 per cent of the country's capacity. The failure of the steel industry to maintain this month the rate of improvement that occurred in January is manifestly due in large part to the caution of the automobile industry pending public showing of the new Ford models. February automobile output may be less than that of January, while the March outlook will remain uncertain until the Ford schedules are known.

Buying Interest Revives.

"A slow revival of buying interest now apparent among the railroads assumes an importance at a time like this greater than the actual tonnage that has been placed. Building construction is not yet showing evidence of seasonal acceleration. However, expectations of the steel industry that a belated seasonal rise of some proportions will occur are borne out by announcements of leading producers of bars, plates and shapes of a $2 a ton advance on second quarter business."

Slack conditions continue in industry in the middle west, according to the monthly review of the Chicago Federal Reserve bank. Reduced employment and pay rolls were reported by most groups on Jan. 15 compared with a month earlier, although the declines were partly seasonal and somewhat less than in recent years.

Cancels Previous Gains.

"Manufacturing industry canceled most of the December gain in total wage payments, but added fractionally to the number of employés," the review continues. "The automobile industry again proved an exception to the trend, causing the third successive monthly increase in employment in the vehicles group, accompanied by a slightly larger pay roll. One other group, leather products, increased wage payments, owing to longer hours at Illinois and Michigan plants, but fewer men were employed than in December.

"The remaining eight groups declined in both employment and pay rolls. Losses in employment ranged from less than 1 per cent to nearly 6 per cent, and pay roll reductions were somewhat larger. Nonmanufacturing activity continued to contract seasonally, as three groups showed smaller employment and pay rolls than in December. All types of construction were less active, department stores and wholesale establishments reduced their forces after Christmas and the utilities lost moderately. Coal mining gained slightly in both number of men and their earnings."

Creditors Ask Receiver for Reed G. Landis Company

An involuntary bankruptcy petition was filed in the United States District court yesterday against the Reed G. Landis company, an advertising concern at 26 East Huron street headed by Maj. Reed G. Landis, world war ace and son of Kenesaw Mountain Landis, baseball commissioner. The petition was filed by Attorney Nathan Haffenberg on behalf of the McGraw-Hill Publishing company and other creditors with nominal claims of $1,000. The estimated assets and liabilities of the company were not listed in the petition.

RAIL IMPROVEMENT WAITS BUSINESS GAIN, F. J. LISMAN ASSERTS

F. J. Lisman, New York investment banker, in a discussion of railway problems before members of the Traffic club yesterday, stated that the future of the roads depends on business itself for without an improvement in business the roads cannot expect to see their situation gain.

The highway competition of the railroads is here to stay, he said, but he expressed the opinion that while the railways will lose short hauls and less than car load freight to motor trucks he does not believe that they will lose long hauls. Long hauls by motor trucks are not economic, he asserted, and consequently this branch of transportation will lose out in the long run.

Shippers Ask U. S. End Rail Rate Fixing

BY SCRUTATOR.

If a law were enacted directing the federal trade commission to see to it that every merchant should charge a "fair and reasonable" price for each item of goods that he sells, the commission's first task would be to determine what is a fair and reasonable price.

The necessity for handling a vast amount of detail probably would force it to adopt some pat scale for setting the price at which red herring should sell in Miles City when the price of 10 penny nails was 12 cents in Atlanta.

This may seem absurd, but the interstate commerce commission in attempting to carry out the instructions given it by congress in the transportation act is confronted with a problem not unlike the hypothetical one mentioned above.

Phrase Still Mysterious.

The act provides that all freight rates must be just and reasonable. If congress knew just what was meant by this phrase it failed to advise the commission, and nobody has since been able to find out.

It would be impossible for anybody to prove that a rate was either unjust or unreasonable per se. One can only prove that it is higher than some other rate for an equal distance, which is no proof at all, since it is just as well evidence that rate B is too low as that rate A is too high.

In attempting to relate the rate on horseshoes from Kokomo to Keokuk to the rate on lumber from Walla Walla to Syracuse and a thousand and one other rates, the commission found that it had to devise some slide rule method. It evolved what is known as the mileage scale, in which the charge varies with the length of haul.

Thus, cost of service began to be the prime factor in rate making for an industry operating hitherto largely —and pretty successfully—on a value of service basis. The gears didn't mesh. Railroad earnings dropped and shippers found that their markets had been interfered with by these radical changes in transportation charges.

Boost Changes Transit Methods.

In a vain attempt to keep the roads' earnings up the commission granted a series of horizontal rate increases. These proved to be no help to the railroads. Instead, they caused producers' markets to contract still further and created a steadily increasing demand for other types of transportation.

The commission had turned on something that it couldn't turn off.

As pointed out before in this column, railroad people have finally discovered that governmental regulation has got the carriers out on a limb—that it has produced the highest rates in history, broke the railroads, and restricted the flow of commerce. These results are due to the fact that the commission regulates the price of the only thing that the railroads have to sell—transportation.

The railroads are not alone in their discovery. The shippers, likewise, are beginning to voice similar opinions. In a resolution forwarded to the interstate commerce committees of both houses of congress, the St. Louis Shippers' Conference association says this:

"Mileage scales which have been or are now being established tend to localize industry at large population or consuming centers through the creation of rate barriers which are virtually insurmountable by competing industries which are located elsewhere and which must depend upon long rail haul transportation in an endeavor to meet local competition.

"These insurmountable rate barriers have the practical effect of creating the equivalent of high tariff walls around every community and consuming center of any size, with resultant serious consequence to the free interchange of interstate commerce."

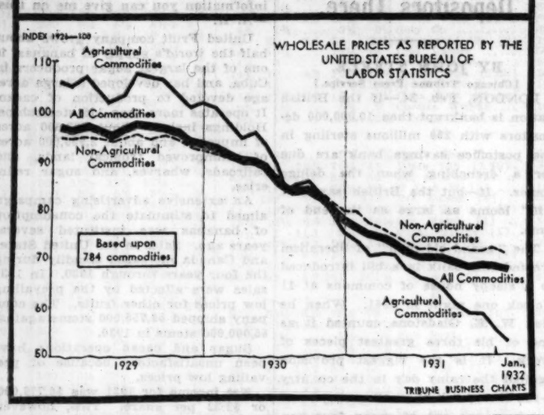
Would Free Railroads.

The association urges that the railroads be given greater freedom in meeting competitive conditions of various kinds "not only with other means of transport but as between commodities, communities, and industries as well."

This is a polite way of saying that these shippers would prefer to be more at the mercy of the railroads and less at the mercy of the interstate commerce commission.

The railroads won't make rates that act as embargoes. The commission will and does. And the railroads with their heavy investment in fixed property need large volume of traffic more than anything else.

PRICES OF NON-AGRICULTURAL COMMODITIES HAVE BEEN SHOWING BETTER FIRMNESS



FRANCE WILL RESUME GOLD WITHDRAWAL DURING NEXT WEEK

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 24.—Reports from London today stated shipments of gold from New York to Farnce will be resumed next week. Then about $12,000,000 will be taken on the steamer De Grasse. This, say the London advices, will be followed by four others of similar size, making a total of $60,000,000.

It is presumed here that these shipments will be of gold which has been earmarked at the reserve bank by the Bank of France, while the latter bank has been withdrawing $132,000,000 from its previous earmarkings.

While the reserve bank officials do not disclose the amount of gold still under earmark by each central bank here, it is assumed that the Bank of France does not hold more than about $75,000,000. The total under earmark is estimated at less than $400,000,000.

The only gold shipment announced today was a $200,000 withdrawal for Germany. There were no imports. Gold under earmark for foreign account increased $12,501,000.

Sterling exchange here was a cent higher today at $3.48¼. One of the factors believed to be contributing to its strength was the estimate from London that the British government would close the fiscal year with a surplus of £10,000,000, instead of a deficit, which had been feared.

Another factor is the fact that the new British tariff goes into effect March 1, which is expected to restrict imports to Great Britain.

BRITISH TO FIX WHEAT PRICES; HELP FARMERS

LONDON, Feb. 24.—(AP)—The government today revealed a project to guarantee wheat growers in the British Isles a standard price of 10 shillings per hundredweight as a part of its general 10 per cent tariff policy.

The plan was contained in a wheat quota bill placed on its first reading in parliament yesterday and made public today.

Exactly what price the quota bill would yield to wheat growers in the British Isles depends on a variety of factors. At the present rate of exchange, however, the price would be around $1.03¼ a bushel. March futures sold today on the Liverpool exchange at 57¼ cents per bushel. These figures are reckoned with a hundredweight at 112 pounds and a bushel at 60 pounds.

The announced purpose of the measure was to bring back to wheat cultivation about 14,000,000 acres abandoned or devoted to other purposes since the world war.

This objective would be attained by fixing the annual domestic wheat output at 27,000,000 hundredweights [50,400,000 bushels]. To guard against wheat growing on unsuitable ground the measure stipulated that if the domestic supply exceeded 27,000,000 hundredweights the payments to growers would be reduced proportionately.

U. S. Treasury Will Sell $100,000,000 3 Mo. Bills

Washington, D. C., Feb. 24.—(AP)—Secretary Mills announced tonight the treasury would sell on next Monday $100,000,000 91 day treasury bills.

The bills will be sold on a discount basis to the highest bidder. They will be dated March 2 and mature on June 1, when they will be paid off at their face value.

The money received from the sale of the bills will be used to retire $100,000,000 in bills which become due on March 2.

Goodyear Tire Reductions to Apply Only to Trucks

Akron, O., Feb. 24.—(AP)—Goodyear Tire and Rubber company today said a 10 per cent price cut announced Monday would apply only on truck tires to large commercial accounts. There will be no change in the price of automobile tires for passenger cars. Three other large rubber companies, Firestone, Goodrich and General, announced similar cuts.

Chicago Reserve Official Calls People Too Gloomy

Recent developments in finance in the United States should work toward a restoration of public confidence, Eugene M. Stevens, chairman of the Chicago federal reserve bank, told students and faculty members of the school of commerce and administration of the University of Chicago yesterday.

Cent. Ill. Public Service New Bonds Offered at 88

Three new bond issues were announced yesterday. Halsey, Stuart & Co. is offering $1,500,000 Central Illinois Public Service company 6 per cent bonds, due Feb. 1, 1957, at 88 and interest. The offering is being made to test the sensitiveness of the present market, the bankers asserted. A banking syndicate headed by the Continental Illinois company offered an issue of $1,500,000 St. Louis, Mo., 5 per cent road bonds. Others in the syndicate include the Harris Trust and Savings bank and the First Union Trust and Savings bank. A third offering of $600,000 Erie, Pa., due serially from 1942 to 1948, was made by a group headed by E. H. Rollins and including Halsey, Stuart & Co. and Edward Lowber Stockes & Co.

Can Directors Keep Secret? Becomes Issue

New York, Feb. 24.—[Special.]—The ability of boards of directors to keep a secret, and the propriety of action on important matters of policy, without prior approval of the executive committee or the full board, were discussed at length today. That was done during a hearing in the interstate commerce commission's investigation of stock purchases by the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific railway and the St. Louis-San Francisco railway.

The inquiry concerns the purchase of 25,000 shares of Gulf, Mobile and Northern by the Frisco in 1929-'30 and 25,000 shares of Frisco by the Rock Island in 1930. The purpose of the investigation has not been disclosed. The questions put to the witnesses today by C. V. Burnside, assistant director of finance for the interstate commerce commission, and William J. Walsh, counsel for the commission's bureau of inquiry, indicated the commission might have in mind some objection to purchase of railroad stock for merger purposes, without full knowledge of the directors of the purchasing road.

When Secrets Are Public's.

Explaining the secrecy which surrounded the transactions E. N. Brown, chairman of the board and executive committee of the Frisco and chairman of the executive committee of the Rock Island, remarked:

"Whenever you report things of that kind to a board of directors it becomes an open secret. Somehow I don't know how it happens those things get noised around." He added that a majority of the executive committee approved. The stock was bought on verbal order.

Prof. William Z. Ripley, member of the executive committee of the Rock Island, testified he first heard of that road's purchases of Frisco stock on Dec. 10, 1930. While explaining that there was no charge anywhere of bad faith or personal gain or ulterior motives, he expressed objection to not being informed.

"As far as I am concerned," he declared, "it must not occur again. If it does I shall resign from the board."

Southern Pacific Also Buying.

Mr. Brown testified that the purchase of Frisco stock by Rock Island was begun in October, 1930, after he was informed that the Southern Pacific company had acquired 45,000 shares of Frisco. He reviewed the earlier acquisition of 183,333 shares of Rock Island common by Frisco at an average of $57 a share and cited the importance of unification of those roads for the future of the Frisco, as well as to the interstate commerce commission allocation of those two roads to system No. 12.

He received, Mr. Brown said, informal approval from J. E. Gorman, J. J. Kurn, Charles Hayden, A. A. Cook and Jesse Hirschman before making arrangement with Speyer & Co. to buy 25,000 shares of Frisco. This was bought at an average cost of $70, and only the regular commission was charged. Funds used were on deposit with Speyer & Co. The settlement amounted to $1,752,872 and was made on Dec. 11, 1930, after ratification by the directors.

De Witt Millhauser, partner of Speyer & Co., on the witness stand objected to answering for the record a question on the amount of Frisco stock held by the firm prior to the Rock Island purchases.

Seeks Better Gulf Outlet.

The purchase of Gulf, Mobile and Northern, Mr. Brown testified, was intended to give the Frisco access to a better gulf port than Pensacola or Mobile. He did not know at that time, he said, that the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy had acquired a substantial interest in the Gulf, Mobile and Northern. He admitted knowledge of the steps taken by the gulf road to reach northward to Paducah, Ky., but thought the purpose was to connect with the Chicago and Eastern Illinois instead of the Burlington.

Mr. Burnside pointed out that the Burlington connection had been specified in an interstate commerce commission order of 1926.

The Gulf, Mobile and Northern stock cost an average of $38.04 per share. Speyer & Co. were brokers.

UTILITY TRUST ASSETS SHRINK 441 MILLIONS

Electric Bond-Share Reports for 1931.

New York, Feb. 24.—[Special.]—The annual report of the Electric Bond and Share company shows a net income of $25,050,084 for 1931, equal after preferred dividends to $16,929,829, or $1.15 a share earned on 14,676,754 common shares outstanding at the end of the year. That compares with a net income of $42,355,163 and a balance to common stock of $34,996,014 in 1930, equal to $2.43 a share earned on 14,384,736 shares.

The aggregate book value of investments as of Dec. 31, 1931, has been written down from $904,093,646 to $462,705,922, a reduction of $441,387,724, S. Z. Mitchell, chairman, and C. E. Groesbeck, president, says in their report.

Gross Income Is Lower.

Gross income in 1931 amounted to $32,560,483, as compared with $54,387,962 in 1930. Stock dividends received by the company in the form of common stock are taken on its books either at par value—or if no par value then at stated value as shown in the balance sheets of the respective issuing companies—or at market value if less than par value or stated value, as the case may be. If the stock dividends received by the company during 1931 had been recorded at no value, the earnings per share of common stock would have been $1.01, or if stock dividends received had been recorded at market value at dates received the earnings per share would have been $2.04.

"When the present Electric Bond and Share company was created (March 13, 1929,) as a result of the consolidation of the former Electric Bond and Share company and Electric Bond and Share Securities corporation, the investments thus acquired by the new company, calculated at market quotations then current, were in excess of $1,000,000,000," the report says.

"These investments were carried on the books of these predecessor companies at $239,690,410. For the purpose of the opening entries on the books of the new company the aggregate value of these investments was fixed at $638,892,237, or about 62 per cent of the market quotations then current.

Book Values Reduced.

"In view of the new changed conditions, it has been decided to reduce these book values by the amount which was added to book values in 1929 and further to reduce the book value of miscellaneous marketable securities to the Dec. 31, 1931, market quotations, thus reducing the book values of these miscellaneous marketable securities to approximately $36,431,000. These reductions have been charged against capital surplus."

As a consequence of these changes the investments of the company are now carried on the books as values. Securities of client companies and

New York, Feb. 24.—Stocks were shoved ahead today to the accompaniment of a flock of bullish rumors of uncertain parentage. There was a report that the steel companies, particularly Bethlehem, had received big orders for war munitions. Another was that an important announcement might be expected out of Washington within the next few days. News of a favorable development abroad was imminent. And so on.

No one presumed to say where all the good news was coming from and details of the various pending developments were lacking in every case. But with approximately 50 per cent of the late market upturn erased by the steady sales of the last two or three days, the trading fraternity no doubt figured that the list was due for another little upward swing and one excuse for the buying was as good as another.

Leaders in Demand.

Those going in for the so-called constructive activity, however, were rather finicky about their endeavors, limiting their orders in the main to issues that would make the best showing on the final score sheet. Such trading favorites as American Can, United States Steel, American Telephone and Telegraph, American Tobacco, Auburn, Atchison, Loews, Eastman Kodak, Consolidated Gas, Coca Cola and others prominent in the day by day turnover where the chosen ones. Their gains ranged from 1½ to to around 3 points.

The "push" in Auburn was advertised well in advance and was carried out according to schedule. The street was notified early in the session that the shorts in the issue were to be run in around noon and so it came to pass. Buying orders were dumped in as if in concerted arrangement and the price went bobbing up—helped no doubt by the panicky precautions of traders with short lines who had taken them at their word. From a low of 95¼ in the first hour, the issue went bouncing to 102 and held around that point till the lesson had had time to sink in. Then it gently ebbed back to 98½, where it closed with a net gain of 2¾ points on the day.

Action of Auburn.

It was spectacular tumbles of Auburn that upset the market so sharply on Saturday and again yesterday. Its sudden show of strength today helped

Southwest Corner ~ MADISON & CLARK ~ Chicago, Illinois

STEP TAKEN IN REFINANCING OF EVANSTON BLOCK

Title Is Transferred to F. M. Blakely.

BY AL CHASE.

Transfer of title to the southeast corner of Main street and Chicago avenue, Evanston, by the Chicago Avenue Building corporation to Frances M. Blakely, recorded yesterday, disclosed another step in the reorganization of the "Evanston block" as the property is called. Miss Blakely is a nominee of the Bondholders' Protective committee. Title to the property shortly will be held by a trustee and beneficial certificates of indebtedness will be issued to the bondholders.

J. L. KRAFT.

The property fronts 187 feet on Main street and 180 feet on Chicago avenue. It is improved with a two story store and office building with an apartment unit in the rear. According to William R. Richards, assistant secretary of the bondholders' committee, there are seventeen stores, fifteen of which are rented. Two of the seven offices are occupied. The apartment section contains twelve suites, of which nine are rented.

Erected in 1923.

The building was erected in 1923 and was financed by an H. O. Stone & Co. 7 per cent bond issue of $460,000, which has since been reduced to $399,500. Default in interest occurred on Sept. 1, 1929. The property was foreclosed and the Chicago Title and Trust company is receiver.

The Bondholders' Protective committee is composed of the following: Avery Brundage, chairman; Horatio B. Hackett, secretary; Francis R. Blossom, Charles M. Moderwell, and J. L. Kraft, president of the Kraft-Phenix Cheese company. Fisher, Boyden, Bell, Boyd & Martin are attorneys.

LeRose Apartments.

The receiver's report on the LeRose apartments, at 1719-21 Morse avenue, shows $881 cash on hand on Jan. 1, 1932; according to a statement just mailed to the bondholders of that property by the Bondholders' committee for the protection of owners of first mortgage bonds underwritten by the Sheridan Trust and Savings bank.

The receiver's report as to the operations of the property is as follows:

1931—	Rental Income.	Op. exp.	Net.
August	$ 75	$142.99	*$ 67.99
September	625	252.56	372.44
October	565	171.06	393.94
November	560	391.80	*31.80
December	455	39.99	415.01

*Deficit.

The general taxes for 1928 have been paid in full the report states, but the 1929 taxes remain unpaid. Title to the property is somewhat involved, there being several mechahics' liens and judgments, most of which were eliminated under the partial foreclosure. The property was 50 per cent rented on Jan. 1, 1932. The building contains fifteen 4 room apartments, three 5 room suites, and two shops. The lot is 50 by 173. The property was financed by a $90,000, 6½ per cent bond issue underwritten by the Sheridan-Trust and Savings bank. This has been reduced to $84,000.

ASSOCIATED GAS OFFERS $40,000,000 8 YEAR BONDS, 8%

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 24.—The Associated Gas and Electric company is offering directly to its security holders rights to subscribe to an issue of $40,000,000 guaranteed 8 per cent eight year gold bonds, participating conditionally up to 2 per cent additional each year, with warrants permitting the acquisition of stock in the company. The bonds will be sold in amounts as small as $10.

In a letter sent today to the security holders, H. C. Hopson, vice president and treasurer of the company, said the company at present owes $5,940,000 in bank loans, has no guaranties or contingent liabilities, except minor and incidental ones incurred in the ordinary course of business, and has in 1932 only $3,100,000 maturities of purchase money obligations secured by underlying securities.

In addition to the parent company, the following one year notes of operating companies mature this year, a large part of which were issued for retirement of high coupon mortgage bonds: Staten Island Edison, $7,424,000; Rochester Gas and Electric, $9,844,000, and Pennsylvania Electric, $8,895,000, a total of $26,163,000.

"Aside from the foregoing," Mr. Hopson says, "no obligations of any substantial amount fall due or are unprovided for prior to 1948. For financing, these current obligations and maturities approximately twice as large an amount of mortgage bonds of operating companies is available, most of which are legal investments for savings banks and trust funds in the state of New York and in one or more New England states."

Estimated receipts at Chicago today: Cattle, 5,000; hogs, 32,000; sheep, 17,000.

An increase in receipts yesterday paved the day for a bear raid on hog prices. The market dropped abruptly directly after the opening of the session, retreating to the point from which it had started the advance at the close of last week. Both the top and average prices were in line with last Saturday, at $4.20 and $3.90 respectively, and were only 10@15c above the 32½ year low of two weeks ago.

Lightweights took the early lead back to last week's prices and were still a step ahead of weighty stock on the way down at the close. It did not take buyers long to strip the market of its strength so soon as it became evident that the available supply exceeded immediate requirements.

Expect Better Volume.

Reports from the wholesale trade were discouraging and packers intimate a better volume of business, but call attention to the susceptibility of the trade to the influence of receipts, and are guarding against a possible reaction in pork prices by holding down initial costs wherever possible. However, larger houses swung in aggressively when a 10@20c cut had been realized in lighter weights and Armour, Swift & Wilson took about 7,500 head, mostly good quality 210@240 lb averages at $3.85@4.00.

Weighty hogs came in on the short end of the reduction and those dealing exclusively in weighty stock had to satisfy themselves with a saving of 5@10c. Although closing sales were lowest of the session, a better tone developed when advanced estimates indicated a shorter aggregate supply for today. Five western markets, including Chicago, expect 66,000, against 71,300 last Thursday. Yesterday's offerings at the eleven leading markets, at 108,000, compared with 84,000 last Wednesday and were 13,000 larger than in 1931.

No change was reported in the hog futures market. Bids and offers were exactly the same as on Tuesday's session. May and July contracts were bid $5.00, while the latter offered at $6.10. March bids were at $4.25@4.50 and offers at $5.00.

Cattle Mart Perks Up.

The cattle market perked up a little at the opening and sellers' hopes soared when load after load of medium and weighty steers went over the scales without retarding the call for that class. But when it came to the rank and file, trading slowed down and later developed into the usual long dragged out afternoon session, finishing on a "catch as catch can" basis. Local houses were among the leading competitors in the early buying of choice beef and action was good until all of the best grades had sold, the bulk at fully steady to strong prices and occasionally slightly higher.

Buyers followed the top load up to $8.35. Wilson getting 18 prime 1,221 lb averages at that figure, while a good showing of 974@1,490 lb averages went to all interests at $8.00@8.25. The bulk of beef cattle sold at $5.25@7.50, with a shorter supply of poorer classes going below $5.00. Recent activity on the wholesale trade has made big inroads in the surplus of beef in coolers and packers report only normal supplies now on hand. Prospects of smaller cattle receipts the remainder of the week gave the trade a better tone despite the undependable outlet for plain quality cattle late yesterday. Five western markets report only 12,800 head in sight for today, against 16,600 last Thursday.

Lambs' Advance Halted.

Buyers effectively halted the advance in lamb prices that started late Tuesday afternoon and before yesterday's close were operating easily at prices fully 25c under the general market the preceding day. Order buyers paid upwards to $7.00 at the opening yesterday, but city butchers stopped at $6.85 and packers bought the bulk of good grades at $6.50@6.75. Receipts at 13,000 were above a week ago, but only three Wednesday totals have been smaller since last October.

Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 5,000 cattle, 32,000 hogs, and 17,000 sheep, against 5,696 cattle, 30,762 hogs, and 20,114 sheep the previous Thursday and 5,536 cattle, 24,894 hogs, and 17,773 sheep a year ago.

PRICES OF WHEAT GAIN AS BUYING ARISES AT CLOSE

Traders Regard Foreign News as Bullish.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Foreign news on wheat yesterday was regarded by the trade as decidedly bullish and there were also official reports covering western Kansas and Nebraska, indicating that the new winter wheat crop in that section was in relatively poor shape. The news, however, fell flat as far as affecting the market to any extent early, prices holding fractionally above the finish of the previous day until near the close.

Rumors regarding conditions in Russia, which appeared to originate in Winnipeg, were received during the last half hour, which brought in fairly aggressive buying, and the finish was about the top, with net gains of 1⅞@1½c.

In addition to the rumors which claimed Russia had been forced to accumulate foodstuffs due to unfavorable conditions in various sections of that country, there were intimations through stock exchange sources that some good news was to come out of Washington or from abroad in the next few days. March finished at 58¼@58⅝c; May, 62@62⅛c; July, 63½@63⅝c, and September, 65⅛@65¼c.

Foreign Markets Strong.

The trade was decidedly surprised over the action of the Liverpool wheat market, which closed ⅝@⅞c per bu higher in the face of the decline in North America on Tuesday. The May delivery there was 62c at the finish, or ½c over Chicago at the time, and compared with ⅞c discount on Tuesday.

Recently Liverpool was 4¾c under Chicago, so that it has practically gained 5c per bu on the local market, and the premium yesterday was the largest since early in January. Winnipeg was also strong and gained ⅝@1c, with May at 68½c in Canadian funds. Hedging pressure was more in evidence there than for several days.

Cut in Acreage.

The Nebraska semi-monthly crop report indicated 35 per cent of the winter wheat acreage in the western part of that state would be abandoned and 27 per cent in the southwestern section, while in western Kansas a normal loss in acreage is looked for. Condition in the state of Nebraska was placed at 83, against 84 a month ago and 91 last year, with dry weather still in evidence in the western and north central counties.

While Winnipeg reported foreign demand for cash wheat as less in evidence than of late, the seaboard claimed around 1,000,000 bu had been sold in all positions, including a fair amount of American hard winter. There have been intimations of late that the sales of Manitobas have been materially in excess of the quantities reported. Buenos Aires closed ⅝@1c higher, with prices there the best at which any delivery has sold since late in November, May being quoted at 49⅝c at the finish.

Short Covering in Corn.

Corn was dull and slightly easier at the start, with May selling at 39c, or ⅝c below Tuesday's finish, but the trade broadened materially later. A general short covering movement disclosed an oversold condition and the May advanced to 40⅝c, with stop loss orders uncovered on the way up and sellers of offers were forced to protect themselves. Closing trades were about the top, with net gains of 1¾c, March being 38⅛@36⅝c; May, 40⅛@40⅝c; July, 43⅛@43¼c, and September, 44⅜@44½c.

There was nothing in the news to account for the buying movement, as the shipping demand again was slow and, according to trade reports, cash corn in the east was selling at relatively below a shipping difference from Chicago. The country was estimated to have sold around 125,000 bu to arrive as the result of the bulge. Buenos Aires closed ½c higher to ⅛c lower, with March at 33¾c. The latter delivery was only 1¾c under Chicago at one time during the day, the smallest difference in over a year.

A house with northwestern connections sold July oats early, but the market firmed toward the last in sympathy with corn and closed ⅛@⅜c higher. March was 22½c; May, 25½c, and July, 26c at the last. Rye gained 1@1⅝c with wheat and on reports of further export business at the seaboard. May closed at 46½c and July at 48½c.

BUTTER FUTURES STEADY

Butter futures failed to hold an early advance on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday, prices dropping back at the close to finish unchanged from Tuesday. Egg futures were also unchanged. Butter news tended to encourage the early advance, the storage figures being improved, but profit taking developed on the rise and the selling sent prices back. Production reports showed a decrease in the make from the previous week, but another increase over last year. The egg news continued unchanged, receipts very much less than last year and storage stocks moving slowly. There was little interest in the market. Sales: Butter, 94 cars; eggs, 11 cars. Deliveries: Eggs, 6 cars. Prices follow:

Commonwealth Customers Pay LESS for LOANS

$2.93 is the average Monthly Cost of a $225 loan under COMMONWEALTH'S Reduced Rate. This allows 25 months for repayment. There is no lower cost than this in Chicago.

COMMONWEALTH'S rate on amounts above $100 is substantially lower than the lawful rate usually charged.

THE personal property which nearly every family owns and the signature of husband and wife enable one to secure any amount up to $300 quickly and easily.

THERE ARE NO fees or deductions. You may take 25 months or pay all or part sooner. Interest at the Reduced Rate is charged only while you keep the money.

Why pay more than HOUSEHOLD'S LOW RATE on loans?....

Household loans, $50 to $300 to families at reasonable rates. Rate on loans above $100 almost one-third lower than maximum permitted by small loan law.

For example, average monthly cost of $200 repaid in 20 equal monthly payments is $2.63—the lowest in Chicago.

Strictly confidential. Husband and wife only need sign. No endorsers. Quick service. Twenty months to repay.
